WAYS OF THE WICKED.

Explained in the Municipal Court Yesterday Morning—Drunks and Disorderlies as Usual Whose Ways are Crooked—Had His Nose Punched—A Case for Investigation by Temperance Reformers—One for the Exercise of Charity—Recruits for the Army of Tramps—The General Grist.

A crowded house, and a house as enthusiastic in a quiet way as it was crowded, greeted the dispensations made yesterday morning in the municipal court. The docket was the largest of any called since Judge Burr re-occupied his judicial robes, and its disposition was as gratifying as regards the time occupied, as the unification of opposing factions must have recently been to dissembling Presbyterians; or rather those of the sect who have thought that the playing of an organ in church was one of the unpardonable sins. Drunks were in the majority with disorderlies and resistance of officers saving their distance and one case of larceny. The keeper of the bride well was telephoned to have twelve extra plates for dinner yesterday, to accommodate the accessions to his family that were carried out in the Black Maria.

Frank Collins imagined he was the sole possessor of Seven corners and its surroundings on Sunday night. Officer Lowell disputed his title, and was made the obdurate point at which Collins directed a volume of contumacious epithets. He was being taken to jail. He was fined $15, but as his possessions sized up but $3 was sent out of town for a time.

John Maginnis, James Foster and James Murry told the court they were drunk, in which they confirmed that recited by the officers. They attempted excuses for their conduct, in which the sentences, driven to desperation, periodic visits, Uncle Tom's Cabin, little Eva going to heaven astride a Texas jackass, and the like, could be indistinctly heard, but a fine of $5 each indicated that his honor didn't consider the provocations, grave though they certainly appeared to be, sufficient to palliate the offense.

A foreman of one of the street car stables had his nose punched Saturday night by one of the employees named Wagner. Regarding the punch as one not altogether palatable as one might think, he procured Wagner's arrest. The latter, like a boy in the waiting room on a certain occasion, had but little to say and was fined $10.

John Wilson proved that his being charged with drunkenness was an error of judgment in the entry of his arrest, and was discharged.

Ciprico Lillian, Jereboam Gasser, Demosthenes Sullivan with a peeling bugle, and Oscar Wilson, a quartette of drunks for this time only, were each fined a sum of dimensions that will keep them sober for a week at least.

John Baker is the name of a seventeen-year-old boy who told the court that this was only the second time he had been arrested for drunkenness. On Saturday the arresting officer was notified that a drunken boy had secured the vacation of Irving park, by his riot and disorder. Ladies had fled in fear, servant girls had skipped with fright, and children, by a miraculous interposition of heaven's goodness, had been enabled to depart in peace. The officer hurried toward the besieged locality, but found the cause en route, and arresting him succeeded in procuring his detention at the city hall. Yesterday morning he pleaded guilty to the charge, but refused to tell where he obtained the liquor, asserting that he was too drunk to remember anything about it. The court fined the youthful bacchanal $25, but suspended execution during good behavior; while he is sober it might be a good time for crusaders in the cause of temperance to ascertain what the court failed to extort from accused.

An intelligent appearing man, who gave the name of John Roel, was presented to his honor as a candidate for judicial severity and was elected for a full term. On Sunday he not only got drunk, but abused and insulted the man and woman who sold him the beer. Such heinous offenses as these are not to be tolerated in a Christian community, wherefor he was fined $25, the payment of which will be taken out in active and healthful exercise at the work-house.

Henry Maginnis, another boy whose bump of destruction is of huge length, breadth and thickness, expressed his predilection for rendering timid Teutons paralyzed with fear, by thrusting laths and scantlings through the front window of one of them residing on De Solo street. The kid said he only did it for fun, and the court decreed the fun to have been worth $15.

On Sunday night, as Officer Evans testified in court yesterday morning, he was standing at the entrance to Fourth street tunnel engaged in official meditation. While thus occupied he noticed a party of four men and one woman passed through the tunnel and proceeded in an opposite direction from where he meditated officially. Pretty soon he heard cries of murder, police, help, and hastened to the rescue of him or her in need of aid. Upon arriving at the locality of the impending calamity, he found Steve Curran, Pat Curran, Maggie Curran, and the two latter brother and sister, and W. G. Connelly conducting themselves disorderly, and attempted their arrest. He secured one of the Carrans, but interfered with the remainder of the opposing forces, namely Steve Curran and Connelly being arrested and delivered at the city hall by Officers Gladen and Moriarty. The prisoners claim that they were assaulted by unknown parties at the time stated, that they simply defended themselves and that neither of them offered resistance to arrest, but on the contrary were willing to accompany the officers. Such was the sworn evidence of Steve Curran, and Maggie Curran, the latter being examined through an interpreter as she was unable to speak English. The court imposed a penalty of $100 or 100 days in jail on the two Curran boys and $50 or sixty days on Connelly. All were taken to the bridewell. Stephen Curran protesting that it was only Thursday last his father was run down by the cars and killed, and the remainder of the family, including his mother, who sole supporter had become, would be rendered homeless and helpless.

John Johnson, a boy who proclaimed his innocence in language not employed in courts of law, or by book agents, was fined $5, or thirty days in jail, Robinson, another of the same kidney, was given two hours to get out of town. He got.

A young man named Marks, disconnected from either of that name advertised to appear in a new play of striking plot, wonderful situations and original design lately imported from Paris, was arranged on a charge of larceny preferred by his father. The old gentleman of some hanging him up for a $40 overcoat, the full particulars of which will furnish on Thursday morning. He went security for the appearance of accused, and taking the latter in tow left the court room.

Edward Richers was arrested by officer Gibbons, on Jackson street Sunday night, charged with cruelty to animals. The charge consisted in the alleged beating of a horse he was driving. Yesterday morning the prisoner pleaded not guilty to the charge and the arresting officer consenting that the beating he witnessed might have been no more severe than was deserved, the case was dismissed.

Israel Dudley, for passing a kid named Willie Fulton, was proved to have done that very same thing last Thursday, and paid $10 for the act.

The "Color Line" from a Colored Soldier's Stand Point. To the Editor of the GLOBE:—

FORT SNELLING, Minn., June 3.—Please allow me space in your columns to respond to Mr. "Clay's" comments (our patriotic and philanthropic hero) in the Globe dated May 31, 1883, relative to the "black musicians and soldiers leading the processions," and our ignorance, slavery, liberation, etc. what he would have done, had he belonged to one of those military companies which he had belonged to one of the companies, so he could have stepped out, then we would have seen his ignorance. Mr. "Clay" has mistaken the "black musicians and soldiers." They have not all been slaves and they are not all ignorant, not as much I presume, as some of Mr. Clay's beloved countrymen, as I know he must be a countryman, he can not be a resident of the city of St. Paul, among our friendly and social citizens of that city. We can not say anything against the treatment of the colored soldiers among the citizens of St. Paul. So if our friend Mr. "Clay" is of that city, we can but class him as one of the ignorant as the reason why he did not belong to one of those companies nor to the societies.

Col. Taylor seemed to be pleased at the black musicians and soldiers at the head of the procession. I do not see why Mr. Clay should kick simply because he was not in command. I suppose, Mr. Editor, as far as liberation is concerned, you know, we fought as hard for that, I suppose, as Mr. Clay, or probably harder, as I have an idea that he was in a coal shed during the war.

This communication is prompted by no feelings of disrespect to any one, but in the belief that our friend Clay is not worthy of society, or he would have been in the procession.

We, band and companies, "E" and "I," 25th Infantry, silently submit to the serious and palpable injustice done by our friend Clay. JOSE CARROLL, Soldier, 25th Infantry.

PITTSBURG, Mass., Sept. 28, 1878. SIR—I have taken Hop Bitters and recommend them to others, as I found them very beneficial. MRS. J. W. TULLER, Sec. Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The district court re-convened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The case of Chas. F. Bean vs. Phil. Foley was called for trial.

The ladies of the Universalist society give a strawberry and ice cream festival in the vestry of the church on Wednesday afternoon.

It is stated by physicians in this city, that in the last six months diphtheria has proved more than ordinarily fatal among adult patients.

No quorum being present at the meeting of the chamber of commerce yesterday, an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The practice of discharging fire-arms in the suburbs of this city cannot be too highly condemned. Several instances are related of persons who have narrowly escaped fatal results from shots fired at random.

The steamer War Eagle, of the St. Paul & St. Louis Packet company's line, due here at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, failed to arrive. At 6 in the evening no word had been received in regard to her whereabouts.

The chime of bells for St. Michael's church are expected to arrive here in about ten days, in accordance with instructions sent to the manufacturers by the Rev. Father Murphy. The chime consists of nine bells, the total weight thereof being 13,000 pounds.

No signs remain of the difficulty on Sunday last between Mr. Rhiener and the railroad company. The wagon that was placed on the railroad track by the gentleman above named, has been removed. Apparently everything is lovely and serene between the parties interested.

Three throat mirrors found secreted in a sewer and taken to the city hall for identification, were yesterday morning claimed by Dr. Cairns, who is of the opinion that the instruments were stolen from his office a short time ago by a certain person who was discovered in the doctor's rooms under rather suspicious circumstances.

Emma Rior, aged four years, and Miss Emma Goodman, aged seventeen, died of malignant diphtheria in the Soule's settlement last week, the first named on Wednesday, the latter on Friday. The two remaining children in the family of Mr. Rior are ill of the same disease, there being but small hopes of their recovery.

An individual known as the big boiler maker got into trouble at the Union house yesterday afternoon by calling the landlady outrageous names, depending, probably, on the weight of his person to save him from harm. The last seen of the gentleman he was walking quietly in the direction of the lockup, between two policemen.

For the benefit of persons at a distance who may be desirous of visiting the state prison, we state that certain have been fixed for the reception of visitors, and in no case will they be deviated from. From 9 to 10 in the morning and from 2 to 3 in the afternoon, are the hours stated on the printed notice in the warden's office. Applications are made almost daily by strangers who come at any hour convenient to the warden. On being refused admission they seem to think they are ill-used, not taking into consideration that the rules of such institutions are not necessarily arbitrary.

A coroner's jury was called yesterday afternoon by Dr. Merrill to investigate the facts relative to the killing of Max Gerber on Sunday. Nothing beyond what is already known was elicited. As some persons may not be aware of how the affair occurred it may be stated that the boys were fishing in the pond near the brick yard on the east side of the Lily lake road, when, without a moment's warning, young Gerber fell dead at the side of his companion, not uttering a word after the fatal bullet entered his brain. A most commendable act was performed by the gentlemen composing the jury, who bestowed their fees upon the afflicted parents to aid in defraying the funeral expenses of their son. The elder Gerber, although an industrious, hard working man, is in rather poor circumstances. Hence the action of the gentlemen as above stated.

Diamond Dyes are so perfect and so beautiful that it is a pleasure to use them. Equally good for dark or light colors. 10 cents.
