

MINNEAPOLIS GLOBE.

Yesterday was a gala day in Minneapolis.

There was a general suspension of business yesterday.

The St. Paul Bicycle club visited Minneapolis on the 4th.

The St. Joseph society picnic was a grand affair, ten car loads of happy folks participated.

Mr. Daniels, of St. Paul, succeeds Mr. Hall as manager of the American Express company here.

Sullivan's Boston restaurant is still to the front as a good place for meals at moderate prices.

The stars and stripes were floating in the breeze in every direction on the natal day of independence.

The Comique restaurant and theater are largely patronized by lovers of good meals and good amusement.

A man from Long Lake, named Frank Mayo, had his pocket picked of a gold watch and about ten dollars in money.

A goodly number of Minneapolis Irishmen attended the picnic given yesterday at Union Park, by the A. O. H. of St. Paul.

A young man named Lindberg was arrested on the charge of stealing property to the value of $100 from boards at 401, Fifth avenue south.

Frank Mayo, a resident of Long Lake, was robbed yesterday of a gold watch and $10 in money at the circus grounds, and he has not recovered them yet.

An employee of the Brush Electric Light company, named Harry Reynolds, has been arrested on the charge of embezzling $100 from the company.

There was a brief session of the municipal court yesterday morning, at which five men were fined for intoxication, one of whom went to jail in default of paying $5 and costs.

A sociable will be held to-morrow evening at the residence of Mrs. W. W. Hawes, 415 Sixth street south. The ladies of Holy Trinity church furnish the ice cream and strawberries.

Yesterday evening, Herman, son of Cates Miller, residing at 1820, Two and a half street, South Minneapolis, shot himself through the palm of the left hand with a revolver, the ball coming out through the back of the hand at the joint near the wrist.

A boy about twelve years old was knocked down and run over yesterday afternoon on the corner of Washington avenue and Hennepin by H. M. Martin's delivery wagon. The wheels passed over his body, bruising him considerably. He was taken to Dr. Linn's office, and from there to his home on First street.

As the circus procession was passing through the streets yesterday morning a horse owned and driven by H. M. Thayer took fright and started on a runaway. Mr. Thayer and his little daughter were both pitched out of the buggy and the latter received a broken arm from the fall. Mr. Thayer was only slightly bruised.

The detectives of Minneapolis say that fewer crooks are following Cole's circus than former circuses in the northwest. No theft was committed in either St. Paul or Stillwater, and so far there has been no perpetration in this city. The officers are on the qui vive, and will certainly frustrate any attempt at depredation by circus followers.

A prodigious crowd of disgusted citizens attended Cole's circus frigid yesterday afternoon and evening. The grand features besides some very old clown business consisted in flaming paper on bulletin boards and paid advertisements, but no matter how big the humbug, Minneapolis people are certain of attending every circus that comes en masse.

A boy twelve years old and living with his parents on First street north, but whose name could not be ascertained, was run over yesterday on Washington avenue by Hod Martin's delivery wagon, the wheels passing over his body and inflicting only a few slight bruises. He was brought to Dr. Lynn's office, where he received proper treatment and then removed to his home.

MINNEAPOLIS PERSONALS.

Judge Koon has gone East on a two months' vacation to join his family.

Mrs. E. Thompson and daughter are spending a few days on Lake Superior.

Frank R. Pratt and Carrie B. Wolverson commenced their honeymoon on the glories Fourth.

Fred A. Shaw, recently admitted to the bar, has become a member of the firm of Rea & Kitchel.

Adison Gage, Jr., late managing editor of the Journal, has returned from Decorah, Iowa, to his home in Anoka. It is hoped that the change may benefit his health, which has been poor for some time.

Picnic at Murphy's Grove.

The National League picnic at Murphy's grove yesterday was numerously attended and every one enjoyed himself to his heart's content. Among the multitude were observed Alderman Glenn, wife and family, Alderman Walsh, wife and family, Jake Barge, Ed. A. Stevens and wife, Judge Mahony, who occupied a rude bench as treasurer, W. H. Doan, his law partner, Judge Quinn, wife of Fairbank, Street Commissioner Ervin, Hon. J. E. McDermott, who was in his shirt sleeves dispensing cold lemonade to the thirsty. The Moran brothers, Mr. O'Connor, Mrs. Celia Byrne, Mr. St. Louis, John McHale, John Fallon and family, James Cullen, who sails for Ireland next week, P. H. McPharland, James Byrnes, wife and family, who labored hard in assisting the waiters, Richard Walsh and other patriotic sons of Hibernia interested in the success of the enterprise.

The following ladies deserve special mention for volunteering as waitresses to serve refreshments: Mrs. James O'Brien, Miss Ada O'Brien, Miss Celia Byrne, Mrs. James Byrnes, Miss McDermott, the late president of the land league, Mrs. McArdle, Miss O'Connor and Miss Nellie Sullivan, who is always on hand when her country's cause requires her presence. The terpsichorean exercises were ably managed by P. H. Gibbons, who acted as master of ceremonies, and Mr. Brennan, Mr. Lamb and Mr. Mahony acted in other capacities on the dancing platform. There was not a sign of disturbance or intoxication on the grounds all day. Everything went on happily and harmoniously, and the net proceeds will be in the neighborhood of $150.

An Inconvenient Fire.

A fire was started in the large two-story frame building on the corner of Second avenue south and Third street after midnight and made rapid headway before the department had a steam playing on it. A half hour later and the flames had been drowned out. The building is old and dry and occupied by F. Herman as a carpenter and wood working shop, and consequently the entire property was of an extra inflammable character. Mr. Herman was at Lake Minnetonka, and therefore no definite information concerning loss or insurance could be ascertained. It is thought the loss will be $4,000 and covered by insurance. It was the work of an incendiary.

A SAD AFFAIR.

An Accomplished Young Lady Teacher in the St. Paul Public Schools Attempted to Hang Herself in Minneapolis While Suffering from Mental Aberration—Saved from Self-Destruction.

Miss Tillie (Dance), a teacher in the St. Paul public schools, attempted suicide by hanging at her sister's residence in this city while laboring under mental aberration, brought on, it is supposed, by overwork in the Jefferson school, St. Paul, where she taught for the past four years. During the last term her health failed, and when the term expired she came to her sister's in Minneapolis to recruit her health. Her sister, Mrs. Twitchell, who resides on the corner of Ninth street and Fourth avenue southeast, was cautioned by the physician to keep a close watch over the sickly lady. She did so, but Tuesday evening Miss Dance managed to take sheet from the bed and going out to the barn fastened one end of it to a beam and the other around her neck and then jumped from the seat upon which she was standing. Her feet touched the floor, but she lifted them from the floor in order to shuffle off the mortal coil. Providentially, however, she failed to accomplish her design. Her nephew found her in the position described and instantly called his older brother to cut her down and carried her in an unconscious condition into the house. Her physician says she will recover from the shock and her friends are glad to hear it. She is twenty-five years old, of prepossessing appearance and of that type of physical beauty known as the blending of the blonde with the brunette. She is a thoroughly accomplished young lady and is a member of the Central Presbyterian church, St. Paul. It is to be hoped that she will soon recuperate from the effects of overwork in her arduous profession, and gain her mental equanimity during the vacation which she sadly needs.

M. Roeller.

THE MATCH-MAKING NAPOLEON.

Napoleon could be liberal for his own sake to those who could help him, always on the condition of their absolute subservience. But he appears to have been almost destitute of real generosity of soul; he took a positive pleasure in wounding sensitive natures, and he was given to indulging in outbursts of brutality which sometimes passed from rough language into actual violence. As for that match-making mania of his, there are two instances among many which are strikingly suggestive. One was his actually proposing, after the divorce from Josephine, that she should bestow her hand on the Prince of Wurtemberg, who, having come to Paris on political business, had been greatly taken by the fascinating Empress. Though the proposal was certainly made, it could scarcely have been serious; at all events, the Prince would have had reason to repent the match, for Napoleon was in love with Josephine to the last, and proved his capricious love by his irritable jealousy.

In the second instance to which we refer, a marriage was really brought off in a style that reminds us of the Eastern seraglio or the guard-room, and one of the victims was no less a person than Davoust. Napoleon suddenly announced to his brother-in-law, Gen. Leclerc, that he (Leclerc) was being appointed to the command of the St. Domingo expedition, and must sail immediately. Leclerc remonstrated against the hasty departure. A sacred tie bound him to France. He had a sister who would be left alone in the world.

"We must have her married directly to-morrow, for example."

"But I have no fortune to give her."

"Am I not here? To-morrow your sister shall be married. I don't know exactly to whom."

Shortly afterward, Davoust entered to inform Napoleon that he was about to be married.

"To Mlle. Leclerc! I find the match very suitable."

"No, General; with Mme—"

"To Mlle. Leclerc."

And Davoust was sent off to Mme. Campan in search of his future bride.—London Times.

ENGLISH HOTEL CLERKS.

I tried conclusions with a hotel clerk in a city in England, writes Nasby, but I shall never do it again. I went to bed at night with two candles on the mantel. It was bright moonlight, and, as I had read my regular chapter in the Revised Testament in the office, I had no occasion for light. I simply wanted to get into bed; therefore I didn't light the candle at all.

The next morning I found in my bill a charge for two candles, 2 shillings. I protested.

"I used no candles," I said.

"But they were there," was the cool reply. "Perhaps you used matches—it is all the same."

"But I didn't use matches, and, if I did, I had my own."

"We do everything for the comfort of the guests of the house. There were candles and matches for you."

He never blushed, but took the 2 shillings as coolly as possible, receipted the bill, and said, "Thank you," and hoped if I ever visited the place again I would call upon them.

It reminded me of the man who built a tavern in Indiana. A traveler stopped with him one night, and the next morning asked for his bill.

"Twelve hundred and fifty dollars," said the landlord, promptly.

"Twelve hundred and fifty dollars, for one day! It is outrageous."

"It is a little high," said the landlord, "but I'll tell you how it is. I opened this house exactly a year ago yesterday. I expected to make $1,000 the first year, and you are the first customer I've had. I ought to charge you a little more to cover insurance, but I like you and don't want to be hard on you; $1,250 will do."

I have noted much against the American hotel clerk and his diamond pin and cool insolence, but I shall never do it again. He is a babe compared with his English brother.

JOSH BILLINGS.

If you will sit down and wait, young man, at least one half of the good things of life will at some time eddy around near you, while the more you chase them the more they will break into a run.

All our nature's works are a part of a perfect whole on a plan. She makes no mistakes, creates no vacancy, and guesses at nothing.

Idea is what wins; but if a man hasn't got but one he is very apt to run that one into the ground, and take himself along with it.

Cunning is a weak imitator of wisdom, and is liable at any time to wobble into a fraud.

Happiness has no abiding place, but often is very near at hand, like the old woman's spectacles. After hunting for them he and I found them at last safe on her nose.

Gravity is bekoming to a fool at all times, but only to a wise man on state occasions.

Very menney seek knowledge, not so much for the truth as for the speculation that it is in.

Heroism is simple, and yet it is rare. Every one who dubs the best they can is a hero.

Buty is a dangerous gift. The vanity it inspires, and the base flattery it attracts its possessors, are not to be envied.

Charity makes no mistakes that she can be charged with.

There is great art in knowing how to give without creating an obligation.

As selfish and ill-bred as the mass of mankind are, I prefer to live with them rather than to go into solitude and try to live with myself.

Gratitude is a word that you will find in the dictionaries, but you will not find much of it anywhere else.

THE COLORADO DESERT.

Mr. Joseph F. James, who spent some four weeks in traveling over the Colorado desert, in California, gives us an unpromising account of it in an article communicated by him to the Popular Science Monthly.

The desert occupies almost the whole of the large county of San Diego. It is some 150 miles long and fifty miles wide, and the Southern Pacific railroad runs through its center. At about sixty miles from Los Angeles the railroad encounters a very heavy grade, 100 to 110 feet to the mile, and it continues for twenty-two miles. At the summit, known as San Geronimo pass, begins the descent into the desert, and every mile brings you to a more desolate country.

At Whitewater Station, twenty miles from the summit, the desert begins in earnest. First a few flowers enliven the scene. Large Gnothera, three or four inches in diameter, grow on small stalks five or six inches in height. Large plants of Albionia maritima, with clusters of brilliant purple flowers, spread over the ground. A little Gilia (G. temnoides), with white corolla and yellow center, adds its beauty to the scene; and the shrub, Larrea Mexicana, or "creosote plant," with yellow flowers and sticky leaves and branches, reminds you of the forests you have left behind.

During the seven miles to the next station, Seven Palms, the vegetation gradually thins out. Progressing beyond this the flowers disappear, and the Cacti predominate; and further on these are replaced by the stunted "grease wood." Finally, even the latter vanishes, and when Dos Palmas is reached we come to a country where there is absolutely nothing in the shape of vegetation. Every one knows how a well-kept field looks when it has been plowed and harrowed and cultivated until not a stick nor stone nor weed shows itself above ground. In order to form a picture of this part of the Colorado desert, imagine a field such as this extending for miles and miles, level as a floor, with no signs of life visible, and no indications of man's presence save the railroad track and the telegraph poles. Imagine the ground covered with an incrustation of alkali, which, when stepped on, breaks and lets one sink ankle-deep into soil as soft and fine as powder. Picture a gale of wind blowing over the waste, the air filled with fine particles of sand, the sun obscured, and no objects visible 100 feet away, and you will have formed a faint idea of the worst aspect of the desert. It is hard to imagine anything so fearful as the reality; and, unless one can see the ground, and feel the sand, and experience a heat of 129 degrees in the sun, we can have only a poor conception of the desert.

BUSINESS LAWS IN DAILY USE.

If a note is lost or stolen it does not release the maker; he must pay it if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proven.

Notes bear interest only when so stated.

Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of a special partnership.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

An agreement without consideration is void.

A note made on Sunday is void.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced.

A note by a minor is void.

A contract made with a lunatic is void.

A note obtained by fraud or from a person in a state of intoxication cannot be collected.

It is a fraud to conceal a fraud.

Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law.

The acts of one partner binds the rest.

"Value received" is usually written in a note, and should be, but it is not necessary. If not written it is presumed by the law or may be supplied by proof.

The maker of an "accommodation" bill or note (one for which he had received no consideration), having lent his name or credit for the benefit of the holder, is bound to all other parties, precisely as if there was a good consideration.

No consideration is sufficient in law if it is illegal in its nature.

Checks or drafts must be presented for payment without unreasonable delay.

An indorsee has a right of action against all whose names were on the bill when he received it.

If the letter containing a protest of non-payment be put into the postoffice, any miscarriage does not affect the party giving notice.

Notes of protest may be sent either to the place of business or residence of the party notified.

The holder of a note may give notice of protest either to all the previous indorsers, or only to one of them; in case of the latter, he must select the last indorser, and the last must give notice to the last before him, and so on. Each indorser must send notice the same day or the following day. Neither Sunday nor legal holiday is to be counted in reckoning the time in which notice is to be given.

If two or more persons as parties are jointly liable on the note or bill, due notice to one of them is sufficient.

An indorser may prevent his own liability to be sued by writing "without recourse" or similar words.

Part payment of debt which has passed the time of statutory limitation revives the whole debt, and the claim holds good for partial payment.

If when a debt is due the debtor is out of the State the limitation does not begin to run until he returns. If he afterward leaves the State the time forward counts the same as if he remained in the State.

THE WAY IT STRUCK HER.

When an old maid takes to making facetious remarks you can make up your mind that her cat is dead, or something has occurred to demoralize her aspirations.

Two of them were overheard talking the other day, and one remarked to the other:

"Don't you think Mr. Briggs must be a remarkably intellectual man? He has such a high forehead."

"Why, his forehead isn't anything compared to Mr. Dodd's!" said her companion, "for his runs right up over the crown of his head, swoops down the base of his brain, and so on over the back of his neck to his shirt collar."

"Seems to me," was the retort, "if what you say is true, it must be more back'd than for'd."

There is a story told of a fine old Cornish Squire who only drank brandy on two occasions—when he had goose for dinner, and when he had not.

The Christian Advocate mentions the case of an Irish girl who said she joined the Methodist church "on suspicion" for six months.

A BEGGAR was recently arrested in Milan for importuning pedestrians, and $10,000 were found sewed up in his coat lining.

CAMP meetings are only just being introduced among the Methodists of Australia.

A CALIFORNIA woman kept a secret twenty years, but she had a strong constitution.

IS THERE a word in the English language that contains all the vowels? There is, unquestionably.
