

WASHINGTON.

BLISS TERRIBLY EXCORIATED BY JUDGE WYLLIE.

His Conduct in the Spencer Case Severely Censured—The Heavy Fees in the Star Route Cases to be Investigated—Brewster to be Hauled Over the Coals—Unusually Conduct in Order to Get Advanced Pay—Ex-Senator Spencer not Guilty of Contempt.

Special Telegram to the Globe.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The severe overhauling of George Wyllie gave the government counsel in the Spencer contempt case was particularly caustic. George Bliss is generally looked on as the coup de grace of all the star route prosecutions, principal and secondary. That a lawyer of such enormous talents as to be worth to the government $170 a day for every day in court, even when hired by the year, should have tried to get a witness on a civil instead of a criminal subpoena addressed to the marshal who was known to have no power, and served by an alleged deputy marshal who had no jurisdiction, cannot fail to increase the contempt in which the department of justice is already held, and hasten the day of wrath for Benj. Harris Brewster. Why Bliss is in the case, nobody, or rather the very few people who know will not tell. It was understood he was originally employed because he was a friend of the prospective president, and he was employed to interest Mr. Arthur in the cases, and induce him to give administration support to the prosecution. No one interested in the prosecution has for a long time had any confidence in Bliss' straightforwardness or good faith. Mr. Merrick and Mr. Ker, his assistants, have undoubtedly disliked and distrusted him. Bliss' entire silence regarding the most prominent defendant in the first star route trial is not the only incident that has caused remark to be made about his tender feelings for the defense. Judge Wyllie to-day spoke sharply of Bliss occupying a room near Spencer from June 15 to July 10, 1882, and failing to call him to the witness stand, though June 20 was the time Spencer was summoned to appear, and then on July 12 procuring an attachment for Spencer on the ground that he was in contempt because he had not then been called as a witness and had not in the city. That Merrick and Ker have done their best for the government is not questioned, but Bliss is credited with much of the unreasonable delay of which no one has complained more than Ker, whose per diem, by the way, is much smaller than that of his associates. Before going home a day or two ago Mr. Ker called upon some of his personal friends to say good bye, and to tell them he probably would not see them again for some time as he intended to return to his home to resume his practice of law in his own office. The manner of his going and the emphasis he put upon his declaration that he did not expect to return to Washington, have convinced some of his friends that he has severed his connection with the government cases against the star route men. With Ker retired in disgust, the Kellogg trial postponed because Walsh was not on hand just as Spencer was not on hand, and with Bliss sternly rebuked by Judge Wyllie, the government is pretty thoroughly discredited. Bliss' action in regard to Walsh and Spencer are so much alike as to constitute a very striking coincidence.

HEAVY FEES. Just before the end of the last session of congress Senator Van Wyck obtained a report from the treasury of the payments to special government counsel in the star route cases, as well as other cases. Already he has got the senate to adopt a resolution asking for similar information for periods before and since the period covered by the report already made. This information will probably produce no effect in the senate beyond a philippic by Senator Van Wyck against the attorney general, but the Democratic house will undoubtedly have an investigation of the department of justice, and this information will be useful to start on. Mr. Brewster is so thoroughly discredited not alone by the expensive and futile star route prosecutions, that the commonest principles of political prudence and self-interest would demand that the president should get a new attorney general. But Mr. Arthur has a very high idea of the amount of dead weight that he can carry, and the president who retained in his cabinet the worst gubernatorial candidate on record is not likely to ask for the resignation of the unique Brewster.

UNSEEMLY RASTER. Although the house is still waiting for committees to be appointed and the senate delays nothing more important than a tedious discussion of its rules, there is no lack of energy on the part of the legislative and executive branches of the government, whose money is to be paid out. The joint resolution authorizing the payment of employes at the capitol to-day instead of at the end of the month, apparently assumes that those unfortunate haven't a cent with which to buy Christmas presents or even a Christmas dinner, and that being the case the payment was, of course, a matter of vast moment. When the resolution had been signed by Messrs. Edmunds and Carlisle, the president had gone to New York to eat the father's dinner. For a moment it was supposed that the children of the capitol employes would awake Tuesday morning to empty stockings, and possibly go to bed Tuesday night with empty stomachs, but the officials were equal to the crisis in the nation's affairs and proved that the government at Washington still lives. The joint resolution was sent by a special messenger to New York by the 4:40 train yesterday afternoon for the president's signature. Mr. Arthur received the resolution of his hotel in New York at 11 o'clock last night and signed it immediately, telegraphing back it was all right. Assistant clerk of the house Towles was at the White house at 9 o'clock this morning when the telegram was received. He immediately notified the disbursing clerks of the house and all the employes were paid off to-day. A post-office has been established at Leaman, Sutton county, Ill., Levi M. Donald P. M.

AN APPOINTMENT. [Western Associated Press.] WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The president has virtually decided to appoint Chief Engineer Chas. H. Loring, United States navy, as chief of the bureau of steam en-

AMUSEMENTS.

The only attraction at the Grand last week consisted of the Stoddard lecture engagement, which occupied the first three evenings of the week, the dates for the latter part of the week not having been filled. The entertainment presented by Prof. Stoddard proved exceedingly interesting and attractive, besides furnishing a very considerable fund of delightful and useful information. They were only fairly attended, and in view of this it is perhaps as well that the remainder of the week was without attractions, for if a high order of entertainment fails to draw big houses, what hope is there for the average run of travelling combinations? COMING STREETS. Mestayer's Tourist Specialty company will play the first Christmas engagement given at our new and elegant Grand Opera house. They open to-morrow night for a period of three nights and a gala matinee Christmas day at 2 p. m. This will be an excellent opportunity for all the children and their parents to attend a holiday matinee at the usual matinee prices. This company must not be confounded with the Mestayer's Tourist company that visited our city early in the season. The play is somewhat similar, but the scenery is larger and much finer. They have two porters and two conductors. Mr. Alf McDowell, a young actor hailing from Baltimore, takes the character of "Ero" and is well liked by Mestayer himself during his visit here last season. During a recent engagement in New York city, Mr. Mestayer was in a box and applauded McDowell's meritorious acting very heartily, and expressed himself loudly in praise of the successor to his character after the entertainment. The other members of the company are all first-class and up in their individual parts. They certainly deserve liberal patronage, and large houses are looked for. Seats can be secured at the box office any time during the day, Monday, after 9 o'clock. THE SILVER KING. Commencing a week from to-morrow night J. H. Haverly's company will open a week's engagement at the Grand Opera house in the successful melodrama, "The Silver King." The story of the drama is interesting and it is therefore given in full, as follows: "The Silver King" is an English melodrama, written by Messrs. Jones and Herman, and originally produced at the Princess theater, London, in November 1882, where it is still on the boards. Mr. W. H. Wood, manager of the Grand Opera house, secured the rights to the play, and produced it at his theater, New York city, where it had a run of over 100 nights last season. The company that will produce it here is highly spoken of, and has been playing the piece in the larger eastern cities with great success. The authors of the play found their theme in the following lines from Tennessee: I hold it truth with him who sings To one clear chord in divers tones, That men may rise on stepping stones, Of their dead selves to higher things. These lines are highly suggestive of the despair, the hope, the triumphs of a lifetime; of a strong moral struggle ending in the victory over man's ignoble self. How far the authors have succeeded in conveying a character into words, and how they have done so, the reader will find in the following synopsis of the drama: "The certain rises on Wilfred Denver, the hero of the play, who, impoverished by losses on the turf, is seeking to drown his despair in drink. He is taunted in his misery by Geoffrey Ware, a former suitor of his wife, and goaded to madness by Ware's sneers, he threatens to kill him. Rushing after him he reaches Ware's chambers late at night and finds them occupied by a gang of burglars, headed by a swart cracksmen, Captain Skinner, who uses his social position to obtain points for criminal enterprise. Denver is seized and chloroformed, and soon after Ware enters, and in the struggle that ensues Skinner shoots him with Denver's pistol. After the burglars have left, Denver slowly recovers consciousness, and gradually as the effects of drink and chloroform wear off, he recalls the purpose of his being there. Gropping for his hat he stumbles over Ware's lifeless body, and the terrible conviction is forced upon him that in his drunken frenzy he has fulfilled his threat. Concealing his revolver, he rushes away, feeling himself a murderer and a fugitive. In the second act he returns to his wife and makes a confession of his supposed crime, when she assists him to a disguise and he departs for a Northern seaport. Before he can obtain much better results at home, he hears musical science is at its lowest level in Italy, and the great singers are not Italians. The managers of the Chicago theatres have decided to form a Managers' union for the purpose of sustaining prices, claiming that they have been harassed by traveling combinations, after playing at the south side theatre at regular prices, going to north and west sides and performing at reduced prices. In Leadville, Col., a troupe playing the Black Diamond made offensive allusions to the Irish in the course of the piece. A number of people in the audience went out and bought eggs and rotten vegetables and pelted the actors till they brought the play to an abrupt conclusion. The combination disbanded next day. A Boston critic, who evidently got left somehow, opens up on the English actor, Irving, as follows: He is the first actor that ever collected two dollars and a half out of me, but that thought is softened by the fact that I was not the only fool caught. At fifty cents for a front seat, and ten cents admission, Mr. Irving would be a good investment, but tricks of stage business, maintained pronunciation—may be barbarous pronunciation—backward, uncount and incomprehensible mannerisms do not constitute a star, and are no more the attributes of genius than dyspepsia. DEATH OF MARIO. Signor Mario, the world renowned tenor, died in Rome, Italy, Dec. 10, aged seventy-five years. Of the sad funeral obsequies of this once brilliant singer, a writer of the Clipper speaks as follows: Two singers in the Constant sailed down the Tiber to plain dead coffin, using the very tools which Mario had used three days before. At 11 o'clock, an hour late, the little funeral cortege entered the church of San Rocco, Draperies in color, singing and silver candlesticks, which make the mise en scene of great ostentatiousness so impressive, were wanting. A few lighted tapers, a few flowers, a few friends—these were all. One of the few wreaths laid upon his bier bore the inscription, "To Mario, from the Queen of England." The whole procession would have disgraced the boards of a third-rate provincial theater in Rome. [It was a so-called. After the ceremony there was a long delay before the arrival of the hearse that was to carry the body to the cemetery, and the friends of the dead singer gradually vanished. When the hearse arrived in the church was empty. It was a sad end for such a brilliant star. The last act of Mario's life was played to empty benches. Lots in London. LONDON, Dec. 22.—Lotta appeared at the Opera Comique to-night in "Musette," and although the house was crowded, and the actress had many friends in the audience, the play was not to the public taste, and Lotta achieved only a partial success. An unruly gallery interfered greatly with the progress of the performance, but Lotta pluckily played to the end and was frequently applauded for her vivacity and spirit. and an eminent tenor, will embellish the splendid programme to be presented by the society. "Moths" will open in Boston the week after New Years. "The Rajah" was revived at the Madison Square theater last week. Irving's engagement in Boston has proven the event of the season. "The Alpine Rose" will be the next attraction at the Madison Square theater. "The Squire" was brought out in Chicago last week by Daly's second company. "May Blossoms" is the fragrant title of a play to be brought out in New York next March. Cincinnati theaters have been playing to bad business. The alleged reason is cold weather. Duff's opera company in "Heart and Hand," is having a big run in Philadelphia. "The Beggar Student" was brought out at the Bijou, Boston, last week, and it made a hit. "The Glass of Fashion" will be followed at the Fifth Avenue theater, New York, by Mrs. Langtry. "His Fix" was played at Haverly's theatre, Chicago, last week, and it proved a dire failure. Elie Eliser has commenced suit against Brooks & Dickson, claiming $50,000, for breach of contract. Mme. Gabrielle Boema has been engaged for the sixteen concerts of Mr. Thomas' winter tour. Marie Prescott's play, "Cyka," at Hooley's theater, Chicago, was only a partial success financially. The play "Siberia," and the new "Black Crook," are having delightful St. Louis audiences during the past week. Gossip says that Mme. Nordica has paid Col. Louise Davenport, who is the leading support of W. E. Sheridan, at the Star theater, New York, is said to be the rising young star of the day. Marian Booth is to contest her father's will, by which she was disinherited. Junius Brutus Booth left all of his property to his widow, Agnes Booth. The reported engagement of Geraldine Ulmar to a Boston South-end gentleman, is denied this week by the journal that first gave it publicity. Patti's engagement in Philadelphia proved a great financial success, but outside of the cast and Gerster the troupe is said to be made up of "hams." A writer in the Dramatic Times says that Sarah Jewett is nothing but a wardrobe actress, and that she has no draught. This is rough on Sarah to say the least. Geo. C. Miln, the ex preacher tragedian, began his second engagement in Chicago last week. There is said to be noted a marked improvement in his acting. An inebriated individual in the gallery of the Academy of Music, Chicago, Dec. 12, set up a cry of "Fire!" resulting in a panic, though luckily without disastrous results. He was promptly arrested. The United States district court adjourned yesterday to the first Thursday in January. Prof. Evans held one of his pleasant dancing matinees at Sherman hall last evening. Mary Goulet was granted a divorce from Peter Goulet at the special term of court yesterday. During the past two weeks over 450,000 outgoing letters have passed through the St. Paul postoffice. S. R. Ainslie, of Ellendale, superintendent of the Yellowstone division of the Northern Pacific, is in St. Paul. The Sioux City land office, burned out in the Drake block, has obtained rooms on the corner of Fifth and Rosabel street. The two year redemption term on property sold for taxes on a great many streets, will expire on the 20th of January. The Northern Pacific road took out twenty-one soldiers for Mandan and the St. Paul & Manitoba took out twenty for Devils Lake. Col. Lanborn, land commissioner of the Northern Pacific, has received a very fine sample of coal from the Simms mines, near Mandan. Minneapolis has a new Electric Light company with Geo. A. Pillsbury, Otis A. Pray, Wm. H. Beach and James O. Beach as its directors. A verdict of $600 in favor of plaintiff was rendered in the United States circuit court yesterday, in the case of E. J. Schriber against the Huber Manufacturing company. The streets were thoroughly lively yesterday with the bearers of Christmas bundles getting ready to make hearts glad with the great merry day of the civilized world. Vice President Oakes, of the Northern Pacific, left for the east last night in his special car. He will go directly through to New York. The Marquis de Montes accompanies him. P. J. Sanford, formerly general eastern freight agent of the Rock Island road, and well known in St. Paul, has been appointed general eastern freight agent of the New York, West Shore & Buffalo. Wm. The divorce case of Daniel B. Vermilye vs. Mary C. Vermilye came up at the special term of court held by Judge Brill yesterday, on an order to show cause, and was argued by Mr. E. D. O'Brien for the plaintiff, and Flaudren for the defendant. Judge Wilkin, engaged the past week in hearing the Mississippi and Runa River Room company vs. Prince & Houston suit, adjourned yesterday afternoon to the 26th inst. or over Christmas. The hearing will probably consume the balance left of next week. Some charitably disposed young men were arrested on Friday evening talking with the city caterers about getting up a big dinner for the poor children of the city at market hall on New Year's day. We hope they will make their charitable intentions part out into successful accomplishment. In keeping with the doctrine of dealing out summary justice on the spot it might save both life and property in this city if Mayor O'Brien would issue orders to his police force, if they caught a person lighting the match of incendiarism, which is getting a little too prevalent for the public peace and safety, to shoot them on the spot. The postoffice officials and employes are experiencing great embarrassment with regard to the difficulty of determining the destination of letters addressed "W. T." the same initials forming the abbreviations of both Washington and Wyoming territories. All persons having communications with points in either territory should be explicit to write out the address in full. The case of the city against Dr. Higbie, charged with having neglected to report a case of scarlet fever to the board of health, on trial in the municipal court last Friday, was decided in favor of the defendant and the cause was dismissed. A citizen of a curious turn of mind in passing down on the north side of Third street, from Wabashaw to Robert streets, about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, started to count the number of ladies he met who carried bundles, presumably filled with Christmas presents. Before reaching Robert street he counted ninety-seven, and at this point they came so thick that he became bewildered. County Attorney Egan swore out a complaint yesterday against Ellen Kelly for infanticide, she having recovered from her illness at the city hospital, and she was arrested by Sheriff O'Gorman and placed in the county jail. The case will be remembered as that of the infant killing at Mrs. Patterson's boarding house, corner of Eighth and Robert streets. Her case will be taken up among others by the grand jury, which convenes Jan. 8. The three professional house breakers, locked up for the general safety at the City hall on Friday night, and who were let loose yesterday morning there being no charge against them, are now unsuspected of the Thursday morning's incendiarism. Small bits of candles and matches were found in their clothes, which of itself would seem to hold them accountable until they proved their whereabouts at the hour of the commission of the crime. The expeditious manner in which Mr. Solomon Bergman has managed the affairs of the Settler Bros' business, since he was appointed assignee, is likely to straighten out matters in an expeditious manner, and bring things to a focus. Tomorrow morning both stores will be open, as will be seen by an advertisement in another column which will explain the whole matter, and the assignee will sell all the goods as fast as possible. Now is the time to strike in if you want good goods at a small price. The assignee will sell them all off as fast as possible, and at low prices as he can get. They have all got to go. A WEDDING SPOILED BY THE NON-APPEARANCE OF THE GROOM, WHO SKIPS OUT AT THE ELEVENTH HOUR. There was to have been a wedding ceremony up on Bedford street yesterday morning, but like the good man in the proverb the feast was spread and the guests were bidden but as the main guy failed to make his appearance and at the eleventh hour the wedding was declared off. The expectant bride resides near the plow works, and she is young and pretty and of a highly respectable family. The bridegroom resides on Mendota street, and he, too, boasts of first-class connections, albeit he has the reputation among the boys of being a gay and giddy member. For the sake of convenience it was decided that the ceremony should take place at the residence of a lady friend of the bride, whose home is on Bedford street. The courtship had been conducted with the usual romance and ardor, and up to the hour set for the ceremony all seemed to go as merry as a marriage bell. At the appointed hour the bride appeared blushing and pretty, and the guests were assembled to witness and bless the nuptial and a long, weary and fluttering suspense ensued. An hour passed away, and then elapsed into two or three, when some one suggested that something must be the matter with the groom. Then a messenger was sent out to bring him in, but the answer came that he could not be found. This was more than the bride could stand, and she retired from the room in tears, and the guests dispersed. At last accounts the groom was still missing. NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY. An Enthusiastic Meeting at Delmonico's at Which stirring Speeches were Made by the Master, Heads of the Country—New Goes for Massachusetts. New York, Dec. 21.—Two hundred and fifty members of the New England Society, New York, partook of their annual dinner this evening, at Delmonico's. Manville W. Cooper, president of the society, occupied the chair. At his right sat Wm. M. Everts and on the left Gen. Grant. Among others at the table were George William Curtis, Mayors Low, of Brooklyn, and Edson of New York, Henry Ward Beecher, Chanancy M. Depew, Commodore Upham, and the representatives of the sister societies. Also ex-Judge Horace Russell, Surgeon Rollins, Chief Justice Noah Davis, ex-Judge Arnoux, John H. Starin, Judges Fancher and Hawes, and Russell Sage. After a brief address of welcome by President Cooper he stated that owing to the absence of President Arthur and Gov. Cleveland, the toast in their honor would not be responded to. Local calls were made for Gen. Grant, who finally rose, and said good humoredly, he had only accepted the invitation on condition that he would not be called upon to speak, and excused himself in his usual graceful manner. The first regular toast, "Forefather's day," was responded to by Mr. Everts. After an introductory announcement, in which the speaker mentioned he had intended to launch out into a bitter invective against the Mormon religion and advocated its suppression by the strong arm of the law. As an institution it had for its object the enslavement of women and the subjection of the enfranchise to the ecclesiastical hierarchy, which in a land of liberty and freedom like America, no man could afford to look upon with indifference. It must yield to the power of the government. He closed with some remarks on the temperance question and pointed out the influence of New England and the doctrines and teachings of which the forefathers have had in accomplishing reforms in both these cases. George William Curtis, responded to the toast of "New England principles and New England pluck." He pointed out the results of these two for ever engraving in our bosoms, which since the founding of the nation, it had produced in shaping the conduct of the government. In replying to the toast of the "New England clergy," Henry Ward Beecher gave some amusing incidents of his earlier days, when he listened to the discussions by his father and other New England clergymen of the orthodox school, upon the various doctrinal points, and he assured his hearers, that the statement that "a minister's son is the devil's grandson" is not true in his case, for his ancestors have been clergymen for generations. Gen. Porter, Mayor Low, Mayor Edson and Chanancy M. Depew, also spoke.
