SALVATION ARMY

AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS MAY JOIN THEM AGAIN.

PATCH UP THEIR DIFFERENCES

Two Great Powers for Good Among the Lowly May Unite Their Scattered Forces for a Grand Campaign Against Evil—But the Volunteers Want Their Own Way.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, June 3.—Brig. Gen. Edward Fielding, vice president of the Volunteers of America, when seen in regard to the report that negotiations are being carried on looking to a reconciliation between Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army and his son Ballington, who is at the head of the Volunteers of America, said:

"The information that comes from Cleveland is all news to me. I have heard absolutely nothing about it before. It may be possible that a reconciliation is about to be brought about between Ballington Booth and his father. That would be an entirely personal matter and it could happen without my knowledge."

"But in such a matter as the consolidation of the American Volunteers and the Salvation Army, I should certainly know. There is no such thing as one man power in this organization and Ballington Booth, though president, has no more to say than any other member."

"Aside from being a distinctively American institution, the Volunteers believe in a good many things that the Salvation Army does not. A reconciliation between Ballington Booth and William Booth would not mean that the Volunteers would go out of existence."

Commander Booth Tucker of the Salvation Army, when seen was reticent about discussing the negotiations for reconciliation. He would neither affirm nor deny the probability of a reconciliation taking place, but the drift of his remarks indicated that he was familiar with the efforts to patch up the difficulties between the two organizations. He expressed the emphatic opinion that the interests of the Volunteers and the Salvation Army would be furthered by the consolidation of the two.

SUNDAY GOLFERS GO TO JAIL

Yonkers Blue Laws Enforced to the Consternation of the High Grade Sports.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, June 2.—The police of Yonkers, N. Y., have arrested Benjamin Adams, member of the board of education of that place, on the charge of playing golf on Sunday.

The Sunday blue law crusade began several weeks ago and has been pushed by one side and opposed by another with fierce energy. It was originally started to stop Sunday base ball playing. A petition to the police commissioners signed by Yonkers clergymen calling for strict enforcement of the Sunday laws were recently presented.

The commissioners ordered the police to enforce the laws impartially, declaring that golf playing on Sunday was as much a crime as base ball. Fearing trouble, the members of the golf club, posted lookouts about their grounds, but as no efforts were made by the police to interfere with them, they supposed that they would be exempt from arrest.

The signing of the petition by the ministers provoked a storm of indignation in many congregations. Many church members prominent in the affairs of the city, served notice on their pastors that they would sever their connection with the churches unless ministers withdrew their signatures.

CANADIAN BOUNDARY DISPUTE

Both Countries Want It Settled, But Neither Makes a Move to End the Trouble.

Washington, June 2.—No proposal has been made to the state department by the British government toward reassembling the joint high commission to settle disputes between Canada and the United States.

Sir Wilfred Laurier, the Canadian premier, has frequently alluded to an early meeting of the commission. Canadians are particularly anxious for the meeting, and this country is equally willing that it should reassemble.

Children in China.

A babe is washed on the third day after birth, usually with hot water. A new-born babe is sometimes rubbed over with raw eggs and not bathed until three months old. A woman 47 years old stated that she had not been washed since she was a baby. On the thirteenth day the heads are shaved. This, with the wealthy, is a time of elaborate ceremonies and feasting, while the poorer class copy it as far as their means will allow. For a boy there is a birthday feast every ten years. To protect the child from evil spirits a baby is sometimes clothed like a priest and decked out with innumerable charms. One queer fancy is to attach a bit of lamp-wick to the clothing. As boys are most desirable to their parents, they are supposed to be most under the eye of evil spirits, and a baby boy is clothed in girl's clothes and given a girl's name, to deceive those spirits. Often they are treated with harsh words and blows to assist in that deception. This is done in love, for the Chinese as a rule are very fond of their children, both boys and girls. Superstition, however, is the cause of much cruelty. The mother is told by a cruel fortune-teller that her child, usually a girl, is inhabited by a demon. Then it becomes the duty of the mother to beat, starve and even put the child outside the door. The faces are blackened, even hands cut off, to drive away the demon. The child is left to die outside the house, as the mother, believing in transmigration of souls, fears this demon child will be reborn to her.—Alice Hamilton Rich, in Leslie's Weekly.

Two newspapers of New York spend about $1,000,000 a year each for paper, the quantity being consumed being 21,875 tons. To furnish this, a village of 2,000 souls is employed year in and year out, and every day 10 acres of spruce trees are swept off to make paper.

"SAG HARBOR" WILL BE SEEN

FOR THREE NIGHTS IN BUTTE.

Miss Marian Abbott as Elizabeth Ann Turner in "Sag Harbor."

"James A. Herne's" admirable company of players will begin an engagement for three nights at the Grand opera house, Sunday night, June 3, presenting the latest work from the pen of the famous author Sag Harbor.

The cast here in every particular will be the same that has made the wide fame of the play in New York, Boston and Chicago. Mr. Herne's part being played by Mr. Woodward, who has played it for the past several months.

Marion Abbott will play Elizabeth Ann, the pretty spinster whose fears of the marriage state are the result of a too thorough acquaintance with the book of Genesis.

Frank Monros is Uncle Billy, the steam boat agent, and W. T. Hodge the irascible Freeman Whitmarsh. J. Wooster Dean as Frank Turner and Miss Elizabeth McNeill, a Butte girl are also seen to great advantage in their respective roles.

The rare merits of "Sag Harbor" as an American play of the best type have been so widely celebrated that it would be superfluous to tell of them here or enter at length into a description of the play. It is perhaps enough to say for the benefit of those who have not kept in touch with the career of this great American play, that it has the charming atmosphere of "Shore Acres" and perhaps an even more interesting series of character pictures. The play is bright with the sunny humor particular to Mr. Herne's dramatic work, and despite its vein of serious and pathetic feelings, proves a brilliant, effective comedy.

The main story involves the love of two brothers for an orphan girl, Martha Reese. This complication is developed to a dramatic climax in the third act when Captain Dan's timely intervention averts an imminent tragedy and turns the current of aroused passion into calmer channels.

GET OUT OF CHINA

RUSSIA AND AMERICA TO REMOVE ALL TROOPS.

NO DETAILS FOR GARRISON

Germany and the Other Powers Must Stay Alone, if at All—Uncle Sam and the Czar Will Act in Unison in Preserving the Integrity of the Celestial Empire.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, June 3.—Neither Russia nor the United States will detail troops to garrison the posts to be established by the powers between Taku and Peking. Russia's determination to refrain from maintaining troops upon the territory of a neighboring empire is another indication of her purpose to pursue to the end the policy which she originally adopted. The policy is absolutely in line with that of the United States, and in fact from what can be learned it is the intention of Russia to act with this government in future questions discussed in Peking. This attitude has given the administration much satisfaction.

The points between Taku and Peking which will be garrisoned by the powers, ostensibly to maintain a safe passage for the foreign ministers in the capital, have not been finally determined, though it seems to be understood that troops will be stationed at Yang Tsung and at one other point near Tien Tsin. The size of the garrisons also remain to be established.

From what is known, it is the purpose of Germany to distribute the brigade of 4,000 men now in Peking among the legations in Peking and the two posts which will be established.

Great Britain and France, the latter of which originally made the proposal for the garrison, will also have troops in the garrisons. Whether the Japanese will be represented in the forces to stay in China is not known.

Uniforms of English Officers.

As to extravagance in the English army that is due to the fact that commanding officers do not do their duty, and general officers turn their blind eye to what goes on. It only wants a little honesty of purpose to put an end to it. But that is just the most difficult thing to obtain. The dress of officers is undoubtedly expensive, in some cases ridiculously so. There seems to be little doubt that, even for peace purposes, it would be possible to devise a less costly form of costume, while for work and war the future uniform will be khaki. Recent alterations are not to be commended from an economical or an athletic point of view. The red serge of the infantry officer is a constant source of expense; it is easily spoiled, and must be replaced; the blue serge, which is his working dress, is constructed after the fashion of the garment worn by the shock brigade. In it the British officer is the worst dressed man of his class in Europe. The old frock-coat was comfortable and looked well, and was, in the long run, far more economical. It was abolished and replaced by the patrol jacket, and the latter by the present hideous garb. Fortunately for its inventor, he had not the temerity to clothe the Guards' officers in it. Had he been so rash he would probably have been hanged in Trafalgar Square from the statue of his late Majesty George IV. A hundred years ago we had uniforms which were elegant and essential British, now we have replaced them by costumes which are bad copies of foreign models. The greatest source of expense with uniforms, however, is the constant and needless changes which are perpetually being made in it. To give one instance, a few years ago the infantry sword blade was changed; this was followed by a change in the pattern of the hilt. The expense was considerable and the infantry officer now walks about in peace time (for he will no longer use it in war) with a sword admirably adapted for use in the melee of a mediaeval tournament, but of no utility to a man who, in all probability, will never engage in a hand-to-hand encounter.

Teachers for the Transvaal.

E. B. Seargeant, a commissioner appointed by the provisional government of the Transvaal to inquire into the best system of dual languages to be adopted in the new British colonies, is in Montreal for the purpose of studying the system in vogue in that province. For some time the British government has been endeavoring to settle upon an educational system for the Orange River and Transvaal colonies, and has had agents actively at work gathering information. Two systems were proposed and both strongly advocated, one by which the English language should be made the only official language of the country and the other that both the English and Dutch languages be officially recognized. Mr. Seargeant has engaged the services of a number of Canadian school teachers, whose services are to be utilized in applying some of the elements appertaining to the systems in vogue in the provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick to the new educational system to be applied in the new colonies in South Africa.

A Ridiculous Candidacy.

Should the hopeful drift in the direction of democratic rehabilitation continue and the democracy be put back to fighting trim, Mr. Hanna's candidacy would be "ridiculous." Indeed—and nobody will know it sooner or better than himself, Hanna is waiting to see what the democratic party intends to do with its opportunities.—Albany Argus.

Foreigners' Rights Abroad.

(Washington Times.)
When the people of a country welcome foreign traders they are in duty bound to protect their lives and property, and if this is not done it is just that redress shall be made. But when the foreigner forces his way where he is not wanted, under the pretense of giving the people a religion that they do not want, it seems as if the case were different.
