

AS USUAL in Butte a week of quiet has followed the gaiety of last week and no large affairs at all are to be chronicled. The luncheon given Thursday by Mrs. T. M. Hodgens was the daintiest function of the week. The Hughes-Rodgers wedding was an elaborate affair, largely attended. For some reason the attendance at the horse race track fell off the first of the week but Thursday and Friday society turned out in full force and will probably do so today and Monday, the last day.

Taken as a whole the women of Butte have lent heavily on the races for the majority are plungers and there is only one with a bank account to show but as she is without doubt the most popular and fascinating woman in Butte society her friends rejoice. She is ahead over $500 altogether.

From now on society will devote time to golf and entertainments at the Golf House, than which there is no more delightful place to entertain in Butte. The members are not at all chary of their privileges and unhesitatingly hand it over to other society clubs. The much-discussed function of the Silver Bow club has not yet materialized and it is said now that it will not take place until Thanksgiving time.

There are several swell weddings to be solemnized this fall and society is looking forward to them with eagerness. The various dancing clubs are getting ready for the fall and winter campaign, many of them having announced the date for the annual election of officers. For next week, however, no large affairs have been announced. There are many visitors here, however, who will undoubtedly be entertained next week although invitations are not yet out.

While it was strictly informal and the attendance at the wedding of Miss Julia Isabelle Hughes to David W. Rodgers was confined to relatives and most intimate friends it was one of the daintiest, prettiest weddings of the summer, and there have been many. The home, 647 Utah avenue, by the aid of flowers, smilax and ferns had been transformed into a fairyland.

The first parlor was all in sweet peas, white and pink and the young couple stood in the bow window under a graceful canopy of blossoms and vines with potted plants and cutflowers in dainty profusion around them. The room where the magnificent wedding gifts were displayed was also in sweet peas, pink and white the color tones.

The dining room was the most elaborately decorated of all the apartments. The bride's table was especially pretty; the center piece was set on a mirror lake, fringed with ferns, a cut glass epergne holding a spreading cluster of white and pink carnations, the other decorations in sweet peas. The other table was all in the latter flowers, combined with smilax and ferns. From the chandelier over the two tables bands of white and pink satin ribbons ran to the outer corners of the tables, falling to the floor in a shower bow.

The bride is a petite demi blonde, blue eyes and dark brown hair. She never looked more beautiful than she did in her picturesque gown of white chiffon over white taffeta, a creation more-over which was evolved by the skillful fingers of her mother. The gown was made en traine with moosequaire sleeves and high bodice, the trimming of the soft, fluffy chiffon in ruffles outlined by a heading of the same. She wore bride roses in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers.

Her sister, Bessie Hughes, was bridesmaid and was gowned in a robe of pink silk dotted mull, en traine, high bodice and sleeves with an undersleeve of the same from the elbow sleeve. She wore pink roses in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of carnations of the same color.

Little Bessie Dowling, a cousin of the bride was ring bearer. She wore a dainty little white chiffon gown, white slippers, in fact all in white. The best man was R. Yeiser.

Pathe De Siere performed the ceremony, the words of advice being particularly impressive. Soon after the ceremony the dainty refreshments were served in the dining room. The general reception was attended by so many that it was impossible to keep a list, as the bridegroom had invited many verbally, as had the bride. People were coming and going until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers took the eastern train for a tour of the state, stopping first at Hamilton, in the Bitter Root. Upon their return they will occupy the Hughes residence until Mrs. Hughes returns from her eastern trip.

A feature of the evening was the singing of the Silver Bow Glee club, of which gilt, handsomely mounted, Mabel Warden, Josie Harrington; beautiful gray picture hat, Mr. and Mrs. Sheeran; coffee set, pot, cups and saucers, Mr. and Mrs. Schwefel; silver baking dish, Mrs. Elizabeth Moore, grandmother of the bride; silver spoons in case, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Raff; cut glass fruit dish, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Sundahl; picture of choir boys, Walter and Lorette Dowling, little cousins of the bride; cut glass celery dish, Mrs. Robert E. Taylor; chop plate, Mr. and Mrs. J. Argall, Mattie Mahoney; a novel sugar bowl in silver, with spoons attached, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davis; plates, cups and saucers, Mrs. Morrill and sons; silver gravy boat, Dr. and Mrs. Ignatius Donnelly; silver soup tureen, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Peets; silver butter knife in case, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Rhind; silver butter dish, W. H. Daymude; after the flowers used in decorating, taken from different points of view. These were fastened on a parchment card, folded. On the inner leaf was a quotation, each one different.

On one was: "If music be the food of love, play on; give me excess of it. Dainty yellow satin ribbons fastened each name card and on each was the inscription, "Mrs. Hodgens, August, 1901." The color scheme being brown and yellow the tones were carried all through the luncheon.

The invited guests of Mrs. Hodgens were: Misses Ruth Leggat, Bacorn, MacGinniss, Grover, Shores, Frances Thornton, Lloyd, Eleanor Horgan, Thirlaway, Theo, Elsa and Leila Russell, Viola Horgan, Alice Lowry, Adah Roberts, Belle Le Beau, Margaret Blackiston, Rumley, Edith Blackford, Jeanne Sullivan, Mae Sullivan, Mary Walker, Daisy Dawson, Madames Perry Gilliland, Nelson.

For Mesdames Carroll and Leggart. This afternoon the spacious home of Mrs. T. M. Hodgens is the scene of another luncheon, this time for the elder ladies, which promises to be as delightful an affair as the Thursday luncheon. The guests of honor are Madame Carroll and Mrs. Ruth Leggart.

The color and decorative scheme is entirely Japanese and most artistic results have been achieved. The electric lights are shaded by brilliant Japanese lanterns. The flowers used are asters in all shades, following the kaleidoscopic colorings of the lanterns.

The tables are in the dining room instead of the veranda. The decorations are exquisite and the name cards are gems of water colors, gay little Yum Yums and Pitty Slings in all the brilliancy of their native garb and coloring. The Japanese color tones are being carried throughout the menu.

The invited guests were: Madame Carroll, Mrs. Ruth Leggart, Mesdames Reid, Shropshire, John Foster, Irons, Bacorn, Margaret Cunningham, M. C. Troutman, J. R. Russell, MacGinniss, Emerson, Sharp, F. W. Blackford.

Brilliant Wedding. It is said that the marriage of Miss Mary Stackpole to Charles Youlden on next Tuesday evening will be a brilliant affair. It will be solemnized in St. John's Episcopal church of Deer Lodge. Miss Stackpole is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Stackpole and a universal favorite. Mr. Youlden is the manager and senior partner of the Youlden Grocery company, 318 and 320 North Main street, this city.

A Society Event. While it is intended to make the amateur production of "Iolanthe" the best musical effort ever produced in Butte, it will also be a brilliant society event. Many of the leading society women have consented to act as patrons and they will add eclat to the occasion. A novelty will be the young lady ushers, society buds acting in that capacity.

Enough of the leading singers of Butte have consented to sing, not only the solo roles but on the choruses to assure of the opera being magnificently rendered. Mrs. Jack Thomas will play the role of Phillis, Jack Thomas will sing Strephon, Howard Jones will enact Tolliver, Mr. Coupe will have a prominent role, probably Lord High Chancellor, while a fine contralto, who is not well known here has partially consented to enact the role of the Fairy Queen. The role of Iolanthe will also be in good hands. M. Howard

MRS. D. W. RODGERS, NEE HUGHES.

Mr. Rodgers is a member. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mrs. M. E. Hughes and has hosts of friends in Butte. Mr. Rodgers is the paymaster of the Boston & Montana company and is deservedly well liked, both by his business associates and society friends.

The presents were simply magnificent. A chest of silver, a tea set of many pieces was from his business associates. On it was a card which read: "To our friend and associate, Mr. David W. Rodgers, on the occasion of his marriage to Miss Julia Isabelle Hughes.

We, the undersigned, desire to tender our heartiest congratulations and sincerely hope that the small token of our esteem accompanying this may be a reminder to them in the years to come of those friends who wish them nothing but the fullest measure of happiness and prosperity. It was signed by Mr. and Mrs. John Gillie, Mr. and Mrs. James Couzens, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Van Valen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Spurrer, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Ed C. Vigson, Miss Ida M. Farron, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Genzberger, Messrs. Neis H. Bohdal, I. L. Reiche, Roubush, John F. Reilly, Wade H. Steele, L. O. Henderson, Cole H. Campbell.

Next to this was a set of plates, in the exquisite Colport ware, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. F. Edward Wynne; royal bon plates, Miss Edna Casserly; from the Solo Club, J. J. Pennington, A. N. Williams, D. Phillips and J. E. Farrell, a magnificent cut glass bowl; a lovely salad dish, with the painting "Beauty's Mirror" copied on it, Patrick Moore; drawn work center piece, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Thomas; set of Limoges plates in Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Cassidy; clock in dinner coffees, Mr. and Mrs. John McMurray; handsome almond dish selected by herself, Baby Montana McMurray; spoons in case, Mr. and Mrs. James King; silver gold lined card receiver, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Grefy; bread plate, Mrs. E. B. Clark; silver pudding dish, R. D. Yeiser; pickle dish and fork, Mrs. M. Gordon; silver gold lined berry dish and spoon, Mrs. M. E. Smith and Joseph La Falle; chocolate set, Misses Lizzie Frazier and Emma Haden; cut glass bon bon dish, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Fitzgerald; a quaint tea pot, in shape of an idol, so ugly it is fascinating, Eugene Pense; salad set, Mrs. A. Harry, Miss Bert Cody; china set, Mr. and Mrs. T. Dowling; picture of children, Harry R. Stevens; rug, Mr. Bieland; cut glass water carafe and tumblers, H. Meyers; breakfast and bread dishes, Mrs. Belle Roome; sugar and creamer in cut glass, Joseph O'Mara; rocker, "warranted to hold two," H. W. Learning, Lewis Kneir.

Carter Luncheon.

Mrs. H. K. Carter gave a dainty luncheon on Wednesday afternoon, the guest of honor being her aunt, Mrs. Theo. Wagner, of Helena, who is her guest for a few days. It was quite informal. The table was prettily decorated in American Beauty roses and smilax, a single perfect rose being laid at each cover. The name cards were handsome, black and white etchings. The menu was perfect, consisting of eight courses.

In attendance were: Mrs. James Sullivan, Mrs. Noyes, Mrs. Lavelle, Mrs. Hal Christian, Mrs. P. L. Laurence, Mrs. J. E. Anderson, Miss Kitto, Miss Nona Wright, Miss Knight, Miss Kitty Anderson, Miss Laurence, Miss Johnstone, Miss McAndrews, Mrs. Hammer, Mrs. Kitto, Mrs. Butler.

Hodgens Dainty Luncheon.

About the daintiest, prettiest affair of the week was the luncheon given on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. T. M. Hodgens at her home, corner of Excelsior and Broadway. The spacious verandas were all inclosed with canvas and potted palms, evergreens and cut flowers made it a most tempting retreat. The guest of honor was Miss Ruth Leggat.

The guests were seated at two tables, each of which bore in the center a large basket of the dear old-fashioned "Black-eyed Susans" or "Brown Betties." The handles were covered with the blossoms and the baskets were filled with them. The name cards were most unique and appropriate, water color representations Met With the Rodenbecks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rodenbeck moved into their new home out near the School of Mines a few days ago and their housewarming was given last Sunday evening, the Stein club being their guests. The house is very handsome and charmingly furnished. The mantels are of Montana wood and marble, unique and pretty. As it was a complimentary to the club, decorations were allowable. The first parlor was in glowing reds, and green, china asters and ferns; the second parlor was in yellow and green, nasturtiums and ferns; the library was in pink and green, carnations and smilax; the dining room was in lavender and green, pansies, ruto and asparagus fern. In each room the mantels were banked with the blossoms, cut glass vases filled with the flowers being gracefully disposed above the fire places and on the piano.

In the dining room the cut flowers were all in steins, wreathed with evergreens. In the center of the long tables, several being placed end to end, was an immense stein filled with some sort of composition resembling beer. In fact the froth on top was so realistic one longed to blow it off. From each side of the big stein trailed steins, gradually growing smaller until they were just baby steins. In between, also graduated, was a mound of moss starred with the lavender pansies, outlined with the asparagus.

The host and hostess were thoroughly surprised by the gift brought by the club to the housewarming, a handsome Morris chair in leather, a fine addition to the library, matching other chairs exactly as intended. Several handsome pieces of cut glass, many bouquets and smaller gifts were presented.

The first of the evening was devoted as usual to singing, zither, horn and piano playing by club members and to conversation in the tongue of the Fatherland. Then at 11 o'clock a sumptuous repast was served, not the usual Dutch lunch, but that with many additions, chicken salad, turkey sandwiches and other American dainties. After the lunch the club drank the health of the host and hostess standing, leaving for home after 2 o'clock.

In addition to the club members Mr. and Mrs. Rodenbeck had as guests: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Newmann, Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Reiff. The regular club members were every one present as follows: Gerdtrude Schmidt, Carl Berger, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bergstein, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Steiner, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mueller, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Bettner, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Heimann, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Myer, Prof. and Mrs. Koehner, Mr. and Mrs. John Rodenbeck, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Beck, Carl Schmidt, Miss Jennie Stein, Miss Mueller, Miss Lucille Bitner, Carl Beck, Max Eitel, Harry Berger, Jack Roderig, Miss Metta Schmidt and Miss Anna Stuyen.

Miss Francois Wedded.

Butte people will be surprised to learn that Miss Euphrasia E. Francois, the pretty French teacher and also teacher took passage on the steamer Majestic for Victoria and other northern ports, and will be at home to their friends at Firmere, their country home, after September 1.

Mrs. Theodore Mayer Entertains.

Having been many times invited to serve as a substitute in the M. M. club of card players Mrs. Theodore Mayer last Monday entertained the club at her pretty home, it being a "complimentary." The rooms were all prettily decorated in sweet peas, the parlors where they played in pale pinks, the dining room in red, the hall in red also.

The first prize, one of the new open work silver bon-bon trays, was won by Mrs. N. Rawlins, a guest; the second prize, a handsome work basket handsomely equipped, went to Mrs. H. K. Emmons; the consolation prize, a pretty Royal Bon vase, was appropriated by Miss Marjorie Burnham, another guest. The game played was progressive whist; the club has decided to play bridge whist, establishing a limit of course, for the remainder of this series of games. It was also decided by vote to postpone the grand evening function to which the husbands and sweethearts are to be invited until either Thanksgiving evening or night.

When the games were finished the hostess served a very elaborate luncheon of a number of courses, not at the tables as is usual with the club, but in the charmingly decorated dining room.

These present were—Guests: Mrs. N. Rawlins, Miss Marjorie Burnham, Mrs. A. H. Whitcheer, Mrs. Theodore Mayer, Mrs. Newton Rawlins, Miss Nagie and Miss Martin. All the club members were present as follows: Mrs. A. H. Mitchell, Mrs. R. J. Chase, Mrs. H. K. Emmons, Mrs. Robert Shoup, Mrs. Harry Schultz, Mrs. Park Peterson, Mrs. Jessie Lyle, Mrs. Eva Frey, Mrs. Julia Cummings, Mrs. L. P. Lewis, Mrs. R. V. Wald, Mrs. L. P. Lewis, Mrs. R. V. Wald, Mrs. Clara Copstick, Mrs. Kate Fritz, Mrs. Nona McLeaver, Mrs. Jack Sullivan, Mrs. Richard Colville, Mrs. Etta Crimmins, Mrs. Metta Voltz, Mrs. Lulu Peters, Mrs. Jennie Vollmer, Mrs. H. P. Owens, Mrs. Vryde Drummond and Mrs. Kinnison Atkins.

Get Glads Last Picnic.

It was with sorrowful hearts the members of the Get Glad crowd announced that they would have their last picnic last Sunday. The place decided on was Homestake, out near the Nine Mile canyon. An early start was made and it looked like a crowd of sooner, with the cooking paraphernalia placed here and there and everywhere, and everyone in the oldest clothes they could dig up. The feature of the day was of course eating. At noon a cold luncheon was enjoyed and at five o'clock a hearty dinner. The main course of the latter meal was sweet corn, roasted on the cob in the embers of the roaring camp fire, flanked by steaks, potatoes also roasted in the oven and dozens of spring chickens fried to a turn. And perhaps that meal was not accorded strict attention. All paid such good attention that the start for home was not made until long after the time set.

The day was devoted to ball playing, croquet, shuttlecock and battledore and other pastimes, all the more enjoyed because the participants realized that this was the last outing in a big crowd of the year.

In the crowd of merry-makers were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson, Dr. and Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Butler, Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, Mr. and Mrs. A. Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. James Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Don Reinhart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rooney, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Scanlon, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Shea, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Will Thompson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Pat Welsh, Misses Katie Sullivan, Nona Sullivan, Maudie Smith, Messrs. Will Hires, Jack Scanlon, Harry Anderson, Frank Cool, Ned Manning, Will Gavin.

Informal Card Party.

Although quite informal the card party given on Saturday evening by Mrs. Frederick P. Holbrook and Mrs. Joe V. Long was very pleasant for all the guests. It was given for Mrs. Bruce Kirkman, and was arranged so that the guests could choose their own game, crib, whist, euchre, any kind, no prizes being awarded but the fun of playing. After the people were tired of playing cards refreshments were served and social conversation enjoyed for some time.

In attendance were: Mesdames J. Bruce Kremer, Bruce Kirkman, Jack Neyses, Frederick P. Holbrook, Joe V. Long, W. W. Dixon, H. I. Wilson, T. J. Murray, James A. Murray, I. D. Freund, James J. Forbis, Barry Hamilton, Frank E. Shaw, J. K. Heslet, F. W. Cotter, Laurence Harris, A. C. Leggart, William Tuohy, Rockwood.

For Miss Kenton.

A number of friends of Miss Irene Kenton of Walkerville gave her a surprise at Columbia Gardens, on Sunday evening. Miss Kenton was invited by two of her girl friends to go out and the others met them there. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour and on the return to Butte a delicious supper was served at the Butte cafe. The occasion was Miss Kenton's 17th birthday. In the party were: Misses Campbell, May Sullivan, Irene Kenton, Dawn Mead, Jose Prosch, Clarice Temple, Maud Renisch, Laura Sisler, Messrs. Will Templeman, Frank Prosch, Bruce Sisler, Ralph Colton, Harry Walker, Lance Darrell, Joe Sullivan, Mrs. Ellwood, Mrs. Kenton.

For Mrs. Thornton.

Mrs. J. C. Thornton has gone home after a last week filled with all varieties of social functions in her honor. The last affair of moment was the progressive euchre party given for her by Mrs. James A. Murray, at her home over the Murray bank. The decorations consisted mainly of sweet peas, the color tones white and lavender, diversified with graceful intermingling of the feathery white gynosphella. Mrs. F. P. Holbrook with her usual and much-to-be-envied luck won the first prize, a beautiful Colport cup and saucer of dead gold with graduated turquoise. The second prize, a water color head, went to Mrs. Frank E. Shaw. Mrs. T. J. Murray made the most successful lone hand plays and secured the daintily jeweled Colport vase. As guest Mrs. Thornton received

D. W. RODGERS.

Jones, Samy Mayer, and the only Bogan, will also participate. The roles have not yet been assigned but will be in a few days as the opera is to be given the last week of October.

Peaches and Cream Tonight.

Very often the members of Lincoln Relief Corps invited their friends in to have a good time with them, and they always have it too. This evening they will give their friends who attend their special in Fidelity hall ripe peaches and delicious cream to eat, with cake added. But before the feast they will have the pleasure of listening to a fine musical and literary programme given by people who appear frequently before Butte audiences. The programme in its entirety is as follows: Instrumental music...Prof. Hebausa Solo, "Holy City."...Miss Catherine Williams Recitation...Irene Grandpre Violin solo, "Stradella"...Flotow (Arr. by Blumenthal)...Miss Mary Alice Davies.

In the public schools has been married. While here she lived at 317 West Galena street, and had hosts of friends. The marriage took place in Seattle and the Post-Intelligencer of that city, in its society columns last Sunday, had the following article:

"One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place Wednesday morning at 1810 East Union street, where Miss Euphrasia Francois was made Mrs. Franklin Squires. The house was most tastefully decorated with flowers and plants. The bride was gowned in point d'esprit and white satin and carried bride roses. Accompanied by her two sisters, Miss Celine Francois and Miss Anna Francois as bridesmaids, and preceded by Miss Helen Squires and Miss Elvina Miller as flower girls, she advanced to the altar to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. Mr. Edward Francois and Mr. Frederick Francois acted as groomsmen. The bride is well and favorably known in educational circles, having had charge of the public schools of Republic, Wash., and more recently having been connected with the public schools of Butte, Mont. The groom is also well known and is a member of the Seattle bar. Mr. and Mrs. Squires
