ACTION OF A CHICAGO JUDGE.

Whether the strictures of the Chicago American upon the character of Judge Haney of that city justified that official in visiting punishment upon the American's editors depends on circumstances.

Yet it very seldom happens that necessity exists for the exposure of a crooked judge. He may be always depended upon to save the press any trouble. He always exposes himself. His rulings, his opinions, his actions never fail to betray his moral obliquity.

DAYLIGHT AHEAD.

The copper circular of James Lewis & Sons, Liverpool, says:

Copper is in an exceptional position. While Europe is being reduced to a state ranging almost to "famine," large stocks, chiefly refined copper, are believed to be held by the Amalgamated Copper company in the United States.

There is much comforting information in the above. Had the Amalgamated people allowed the copper market to be smashed, the business and labor interests of this community would have been seriously affected.

BUTTE'S MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

Very few residents of this city are informed as to the extent and importance of its manufacturing interests. Both commercially and industrially Butte is progressing at a pace which its oldest citizens are not aware of.

Next to Butte's mining and commercial advancement may be mentioned the growth of its manufacturing interests, which are much larger than is generally understood.

THE HELENA PRIZE FIGHT.

The capital of the great state of Montana was the scene of a vicious and gory prizefight last night between two eminent pugilists whose reputation and muscle have placed them above the reach of the law.

STOP-OVER PRIVILEGES.

A few days ago in these columns a statement was made on the authority of a well-known citizen that some of the railroads were discriminating against Montana by refusing to give home-seeking tourists en route to the coast the stop-over privileges accorded in Washington and Oregon.

CARTOONING THE PRESIDENT.

In a recent issue of London Punch appeared a cartoon representing President Roosevelt as a rough rider and drawn in the best style of Artist Partridge, the famous illustrator.

In recent months the power of caricature has been unable to reach the occupant of the president's chair. There was a time when by clever exaggeration the characteristics of Theodore Roosevelt might be robbed of every touch of dignity and made the basis of ludicrous suggestions.

The cartoon in Puck illustrates the power of the president's personality. He has become a heroic figure in the world. His dashing, confident pose supplies just the needed touch of enthusiasm to inspire an artist, and he has besides this the dignity of the most commanding position in the list of the earth's rulers.

THE FIGHT.

The Ruhlin-Jeffries contest at San Francisco last evening will not be a subject over which that part of the public interested in such affairs will mince words. From what can be learned by a perusal of the dispatches the earmarks of a fake are distinct and evident.

It is not likely that Ruhlin will be handed with gloves by his former admirers. His record has not been so good that he had a chance to win from Jeffries. It was believed, however, that he would present a game opposition to the champion and earn his division of the gate receipts by taking his share of the ring's hardships. His performance was a disappointment and battles for the championship will be given critical inspection hereafter.

Some time ago a congressional junketing trip to the Philippines was organized and the government was prevailed upon to provide free transportation. Now the vessel which took the congressmen away is laid up in some distant Eastern port for repairs and the breakdown has caused the members of the party to fret and fume not a little.

In the United States are 1,706,293 illiterates of voting age. The great majority of these are found in the so-called black belt, in the states which composed the Southern confederacy. It is to remedy the pitiable condition of the black race, within whose membership the greatest proportion of illiterates is found, that Booker T. Washington is devoting his life.

From Lewiston comes the news that Milton Howell will hang December 13 for the murder of Thomas Rosling. This crime is one which has claimed the attention of officers of Fergus county for an extended period.

Under the provisions of Senate Bill 45, regarding the appointment of milk and meat inspectors, there are a few necessary qualifications which are rare in Butte. The mayor will probably exercise his appointing power as soon as he can find a suitable candidate.

Montana's oil fields bid fair to turn out as well as those of any state in the Union. Montana men operating in other states have fared well in their oil ventures also. Many sections in which oil booms began have seen dazzling prospects dwindle to a dismal collection of holes in the ground.

A Great Falls man received a letter containing a threat to blow him and his place of business into kingdom come unless money was deposited forthwith at a place and time designated.

A number of splendid business houses are nearing completion in Butte. Not in the history of the city has a single year seen such activity in the construction of business blocks and dwellings as has the season now closing.

Those who advocate a ship railway across the Isthmus of Panama are impelled to this view by the fact that the canal project has hung fire for over a century and the prospects for real results are not yet in sight.

Funny Mr. Dunne got off wrong when he put in the mouth of his imitable Dooley the remark concerning Booker Washington at the famed White House dinner: "Ye're not the first of the name that's ate here," said the president.

The crowning glory of Scotland is the thrift of its people, and another startling proof has been received showing that the national attribute improves with age. The city of Glasgow backed its money against the exposition wheel of fortune and made a net profit of $100,000.

Reports from Greater New York indicate that outside the immediate family of the Tammany tiger, there is no mourning over the sad finish of the city's spotted plague. If all New York's citizens voted as they talk after election, Low's election would have been unanimous.

HELD UP BY TWO INDIANS

"Talk about holdups," said Cornelius Bray today. "I have been in the west since 1862 and was never 'stuck up' but once, and on that occasion two Indians did the work."

"It occurred between Missoula and Hamilton in 1865, but at that time there was no Hamilton, with the exception of Bill Hamilton, keeper of a low doggery, who was responsible for the job."

"We traveled in almost any old way at that time—on foot, horseback or team. I had a few pack animals and was on my way to Deer Lodge from a point near Hamilton."

"Bill Hamilton's doggery was between Hamilton and Missoula, and it was quite a place for Indians to buy whisky. On my way to Deer Lodge I stopped at the doggery and found there several men I knew."

Two Indians Present.

"There were also two Indians present. I had a little gold dust and as one or two of the white men were 'broke' I drew out my sack and loaned them some of it. The Indians saw the dust, and so did the keeper of the doggery."

"After remaining at the place a short time I moved on up the trail, but had not gone far before I noticed that two men were trailing me."

"I did not know whether they were Indians or white men, but I supposed that whoever they were their intentions were friendly. They were traveling faster than I was and soon caught up."

"Then I saw they were Nez Perces Indians, but still I did not mistrust them. I was not armed with anything that would shoot and I do not suppose it would have benefited me even if I had a gun, as the Indians marched up at either side of me and demanded my dust."

"Simultaneously with the demand each Indian pulled a revolver and covered me, one of the guns being a derringer and the other a Colt's repeater."

"Of course I had no alternative but to dig up, and I dug, emptying the contents of my sack into their hands."

"After robbing me the Indians started back in the direction whence they came, and when I last saw them they were sitting on the ground making a division of the spoils."

"I knew that Bill Hamilton had put them up to it, so when I arrived at Deer Lodge I told Attorney McGuirk about it. He was an old friend of mine and was mad."

Authorities Are Notified.

"McGuirk notified the United States authorities at Helena and in a short time we had the satisfaction of seeing Bill Hamilton in the clutches of the law on a charge of selling whisky to Indians."

Mr. Bray is now a resident of Butte and is an old-timer in Montana, having crossed the plains from Minnesota in 1862.

For seven years in the 70's he was sheriff of Beaverhead county and in his official capacity took a hand in the protection of settlers of the Big Hole basin at the time of the Nez Perces war.

HE JUST COULDN'T WAIT.

Tom Kailey Asks to Be Sentenced at Once and Is Accommodated.

"I done gone say to youah, judge, dat I don't wan' no delay in ma sentence. Youah can let me go now jes as wel las in de mawnin, judge, an' I 'sist on yo' gibbin' di chile a decision now."

Tim Karley, an abbreviated specimen of the African race, was so certain of being acquitted in Judge Boyle's court that he wouldn't wait for sentence until this morning and insisted on getting a decision off hand.

"All right, Tim," smiled back the court. "It will be three months in the county jail, if you want to know right away."

"Tank youah, judge," murmured Tim, in a dazed way, as he tried a dignified step toward the cell rooms where he had been held on a charge of having been supported by a woman.

Guy Ellis was up on the same charge and was fined $50. William Jones was given 30 days in the county jail and Nellie Johnson was fined $10 for not keeping off the streets.

ORDERED TO GO AHEAD.

Contractors Having in Charge Work in Aluminum Street Secure Advice.

City Attorney Lamb has given advice to the contractors to whom was awarded the contract for improving Aluminum, between Montana and Washington streets, to go ahead with the work of grading and to remove any obstructions placed by property owners or persons.

The contractors are Winters, Parsons & Boomer. They found when getting ready for work that two 20-foot fences had been erected by W. H. Patterson and G. W. Story, who claims all right and title to the Single Tax Lode claim, which covers the ground heretofore used for street purposes.

The city attorney contends that the street has been used as such by the city for the last 25 years and insists upon the right of possession.

Patterson and Story claim that no deeds were ever given and that while they are willing to give the city 50 feet for street purposes they are opposed to giving the 80 feet claimed by the city.

The matter will be taken into the courts on an injunction suit to be brought by the property owners to restrain the city and the contractors from entering upon the premises.

PLEA FOR MERCY FAILS.

Frisco Nell Tries to Induce Judge Boyle to Fine Her Lightly.

"B'gosh, th' ole judge be good natured dis mornin'," observed "Frisco Nell, when informed that her fine would be $20, double the amount she was accused of stealing from Herman Mackey, yesterday afternoon."

The well-known police court habitue was in a jovial mood and tried repeatedly her wiles on the court, but without success.

"Come on now, judge. Come on; let me down easy, won't you. I've been fined dis 'mont an' you ought ter have pity on dis poor critter. Give us somethin' light."

Nell blinked at the judge in her most charming fashion, but there wasn't anything attractive about her features, or capable of softening the sentence.

"COON HOLLOW" A SUCCESS.

Company Will Close Its Engagement at the Family Theater Tonight.

"Coon Hollow," which has been playing to crowded houses at the Family theater the latter part of this week, will close its engagement tonight. The engagement has been a most successful one in every respect.

The play is way above the average, and the various parts are taken by men and women who understand their business. Many of the scenes are thrilling in the extreme, and interest in the play does not lag for a moment from start to finish.

Clark's Post-Graduate Course. William Clark, youngest son of United States Senator Clark, a graduate of Yale law school, and a practicing lawyer of Butte, has just returned from Europe with his bride, who was Miss Mabel Foster of Butte, Mont.

Young Clark was passing the Fifth avenue hotel yesterday when an old acquaintance who had not heard of his marriage rushed up to him and said familiarly:

"Hello, Willie, where've you been for a year or so?" Clark, without pausing to any great extent, replied: "I've been taking a post-graduate course in partnership and organization."—New York Times.

To Annul Deed. David M. Billingsly has begun a suit in the district court against Kate L. Cobban to annul a deed to a lot at 34 East Mercury street, which deed, the plaintiff alleges, he executed when he was too ill to realize what he was doing.

Billingsly also brought suit against W. F. Cobban to recover $1800, which he claims is due him on account of labor performed.

BANQUET FOR DOBSON. White Friars Club of London Give Spread in Author's Honor. (By Associated Press.) New York, Nov. 16.—According to a London correspondent, a dinner was given by the White Friars club last evening in honor of Austin Dobson, on the occasion of his retirement from the civil service in order to devote the remainder of his life to literature.

This dinner shares with the banquet to Sir John Tenniel June, first honors among the literary love feasts of the year. It was held unpretentiously in a Fleet street hotel, "in the very heart," as Edwin Gosse remarked, "of Johnson land."

Clement K. Shorter presided. Andrew Lang was kept home by illness, but sent a charming set of verses. Mr. Dobson, in a moderate speech, after much toasting, also dropped into impromptu verse, reading a ballad of the woes and joys of "The Man Who Cannot Speak."

He esteemed literature, he said, for the friends it made him, but praise was like blue china—difficult to live up to.
