THREE NORTHERN PACIFIC TRAINS

DELAYED BY DEEP DAKOTA SNOWS
ARRIVE IN BUTTE THIS MORNING

Three of the eight westbound passenger trains that have been tied up in North Dakota on account of a heavy fall of snow in that section arrived in Butte this morning, and after a short stay proceeded on their way to Portland. Five of the eight were to have been run by way of this city, but two were merged into the other three at Livingston.

On account of the storm and consequent interruption of traffic there will be no eastbound train on that line either tonight or tomorrow night, as there is no equipment at the west end of the line from which to make them up. The trains that passed through Butte this morning will have to go to Portland before an eastbound train can be made up.

Twenty Feet of Snow.

The country in which the storm occurred had all sorts of trains during the blockade. There were passenger trains from the East and West; freight trains from the West and East and work trains from both ends bucking at the snow, which in many of the cuts had drifted to a depth of from 15 to 20 feet. It was plenty deep enough in the open country for purposes of delay, there being from two to three feet on the level.

By Saturday night trains on this line of road will be running with their old-time regularity. The train that runs to Billings and then goes south over the Burlington has not been interfered with by the storm. It has been leaving Butte every day.

Great Northern Snow Plows.

The Great Northern line is still closed in North Dakota, but advices from that point of blockade to the Butte office this morning were very encouraging for an early opening. According to the report the first train in several days will probably pass through the bad spot tonight. Heavy engines armed with mammoth plows have been throwing snow in all directions since the latter part of last week, and will continue the work until the track is again clear.

HAMILTON WINS INCIDENT IS CLOSED

SUIT AGAINST JOHN CAMBERS RESULTS IN HIS FAVOR.

GETS JUDGMENT FOR $12,500

Hamilton Had Lease on Mine—Cambers Enjoined Him and Stopped Operations—End of a Ten Day Suit.

A jury in Judge Harney's court last night awarded a verdict for $12,500 to John J. Hamilton in his suit against John J. Cambers. Hamilton sued for damages and asked the court to subject an appeal bond in another case between him and Cambers to the execution to satisfy the claim for damages.

The appeal bond was for $12,500, and the jury gave Hamilton all he asked for. The trial had been in progress for 10 days past.

The suit grew out of a lease which Hamilton once had on a mine owned by Cambers and which Cambers interfered with to the alleged damage of Hamilton.

Cambers Enjoined Hamilton.

Hamilton leased the mine and worked it. In his complaint he said that 22 days before the lease expired Cambers tied the work up with an injunction suit and kept it tied up until the lease expired. He added that he had just found rich ore at the time he was shut off from operating the property.

Therefore, he declared, Cambers prevented him from talking out of the mine in the 22 days when it should have been his to operate ore of the value of $18,464 and damaged him in that amount. That was not the only damage he suffered. It cost him $1,700 to employ lawyers to fight the injunction suit brought by Cambers and the damage suit brought by himself, and that raised the damages to over $20,000.

Claimed Lease Was Forfeit.

However, in the matter of recovery, the law limited him to the bonds which Cambers had put up in the other suit, which aggregated $12,500. Cambers lost the other suit in the supreme court, although he had claimed that the lease was forfeit because Hamilton had not prosecuted work in the mine under it in due time.

It is understood that Cambers has sold the mine to the Washoe Copper company for $25,000. His bondsmen are A. J. Davis and G. W. Andrews. They are secured by a cash deposit in bank of $10,000, it is said.

Hamilton yesterday brought another suit against Cambers in the district court to recover the sum of $459, claiming that in this suit Cambers admitted taking ore worth that sum from the dump at the mine after taking possession of it. Hamilton claims the ore was his.

CLEM CAMPANA'S WILL FILED

Mrs. Pellegrina Campana has filed the will of her late brother-in-law, Clement Campana, in the district court for probate, and has asked the court to grant her letters testamentary with the will annexed. The will names Mrs. Campana as executrix, and leaves her several thousand dollars' worth of property. Campana, who was a member of the firm of Campana brothers, doing business on West Broadway, made his will the day he died, March 12. It was witnessed by Jacob Schiller and Attorney John N. Kirk. The firm of Campana brothers was formed of Clement and Constante Campana and Barry Dolsadelli.

The will bequeaths Mrs. Pellegrina Campana $4,500 which is on deposit in a Butte bank and a third interest in the Campana liquor and grocery business. To his three brothers, Frank and John, who reside in Switzerland, and Celeste, whose whereabouts are unknown, he leaves $10 each.

To his brother Constante he bequeaths all his real estate in Switzerland and some mortgages and notes. Judge Wines is Mrs. Campana's attorney.

POLICE COMMITTEE DROPS INVESTIGATION.

EVERYBODY IS EXONERATED

Employment Agent Cronin Is to Have an Assistant—Patrolman Thomas Moore's Resignation Is Accepted.

Alderman Dempsey presided at the meeting of the city council last night but his desk was covered with floral offerings sent in by his admiring friends for the reason that Alderman Siebenler got there first and appropriated the collection of American beauties. Every one in the council room got a rose but the presiding officer.

The police committee of the council played the last bit of comedy in the farcical investigation of the Holmes case by adhering to the police end.

The committee reported that no officers were implicated and dumped the whole troublesome affair by throwing the blame on the newspaper publication, concluding with this remarkable statement:

"And it is therefore unanimously resolved by this committee, that the members of the police force are wholly exonerated from such charges."

Selected Polling Places.

The following polling places were selected by the council for the coming election:

First ward—21 East Quartz.

Second ward—North-east corner Granite and Montana.

Third ward—Mellie's carpenter shop, near northeast corner Broadway and Arizona.

Fourth ward—Sutton's opera house, West Broadway.

Fifth ward—330 East Park.

Sixth ward—North-west corner Galena street and Renshaw alley.

Seventh ward—1,268 East Second street.

Eighth ward—Miller block, 549 South Main street.

City Clerk Quarles stated that he had received the resignation as judges and clerks of election of John T. James, C. T. Lomas, C. E. White, P. L. Miller and A. T. Brown. The office of John Nance, republican, Second ward, was also declared vacant, he not having qualified. These were appointed in place of those resigned: Stone Erickson, republican, Seventh ward; I. Strasburger, republican, Fourth ward; John E. Paddy, republican, Second ward; David T. Reese, republican, Third ward; William Terovambault, republican, Fifth ward.

It was stated that the contract for printing expires on April 6. The city clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for the city printing for one year, the bids to be in April 2. This does not include the publication of ordinances.

Women Not Eligible.

Employment Agent Cronin reported that his office was getting along as well as could be expected under the circumstances and asked that an assistant be given him as the competition of the other employment offices made such an addition necessary. There was some discussion over whether a woman or a man should be employed and the city attorney ruled that under the law the city could not appoint a woman.

Alderman Duggan's motion to instruct the city attorney to draft an amendment to the ordinance providing for male assistants was carried by a vote of 8 to 3.

The resignation of Patrolman Thomas Moore was accepted. Moore will go south and resume railroading instead of fighting the divorce case brought by his wife.

J. R. Creighton sent in the following communication which was referred to the judiciary committee:

Creighton Makes a Protest.

J. R. Creighton made a protest against the leasing of premises on South Wyoming street to tenderloin women, and the matter was referred to the judiciary committee.

The city engineer reported that in the preparatory work to be done on East Park street which is to be paved this year, it will be necessary to construct a storm sewer at the intersection of Park and Covert streets to consist of a 30-inch sewer pipe and to cost $11 per running foot exclusive of the cost of excavating. The engineer was instructed to go ahead with the work.

The paving and sprinkling committee recommended the purchase of two 600-gallon sprinklers from the Beebe Grain company to cost $440 each and to be equipped with brakes at an additional cost of $20 each. The aldermen didn't know what the other sprinklers had cost and the matter went over until the former price could be ascertained.

Following the reading of the usual reports of the committee the council adjourned.

BLIZARD IN COURT

HE DECLINED TO BLOW IN HIS OWN BEHALF.

MOTION FOR A DISMISSAL

Justice Libby Overruled It and Announced That a Decision on the Preliminary Would Be Rendered Later On.

Benjamin B. Blizard blew into Justice Libby's court at Meaderville yesterday afternoon and heard three persons tell the justice about his alleged connection with the attempted transfer of bogus money drafts to the possession of the State Savings bank. Blizard did not say whether the stories of his doings were true or false, but after the three persons had finished their tales the justice announced that he would render a decision later on.

The witnesses for the state were Alexander Walker, Jerry Murphy and Frank W. Holmes.

The hearing was simply a preliminary to the real issue, the coming of which depends entirely upon the decision of the justice.

How It Was Done.

March 8 an acquaintance of Blizard presented a draft at the State Savings bank and asked if the man who had indorsed it was all right financially.

The draft bore the names of H. D. Smith of 99 Fulton street, Boston, and James Cummings of this city, the latter being the endorsee. If Cummings had been pronounced O. K. it was the intention of Blizard's acquaintance to ask for the cash on the draft in behalf of Blizard and turn it over to Blizard at 2 p. m. of the same day.

The cashier informed the caller that a similar draft bearing the same names had been previously accepted by the bank, sent to Boston and returned dishonored.

Blizard was arrested and the police department wired Boston for information concerning him and asking whether he had a right to draw on Smith. The Boston authorities replied that he had no such authority.

Alexander Walker, a broker, formerly a member of the Gamber-Walker company, testified that he had met Blizard about two weeks ago, the person who introduced them representing him as a broker from the East.

Blizard, he said, told him he was not well acquainted in Butte and would like to negotiate a draft at once. The witness said he had interviewed a few persons on the proposition and reported progress to Blizard. He had taken the draft with him, but returned it to Blizard and told him to call again the following morning and he would see what could be done.

He Was Punctual.

"He came around at the appointed time," said the witness, "and I took the draft to the State Savings bank with the intention of first inquiring about the financial standing of James Cummings, whose name was endorsed on the draft, and then asking for the money on the paper in case Cummings was pronounced good. I did not get the money, as the bank officials referred me to another draft of the same brand that had been sent to Boston and returned dishonored."

"I was asked what interest I had in the draft and I replied none. I was then asked where Blizard was and I replied that I was to meet him at H. L. Maury's office at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. One of the officials then told me I would be doing the bank a favor if I did not meet him until after the appointed time."

Detective Murphy detailed the circumstances of Blizard's arrest and the finding of two bogus drafts on the prisoner's person.

Frank W. Holmes, cashier at the State Savings bank, testified to the engagement played by Blizard with the institution.

Attorney Forestell, who represented the defendant, declined to introduce any testimony for Blizard and asked the justice to dismiss the charge. The justice overruled the motion to dismiss, adding that he would render a decision as soon as the stenographic testimony had been reduced to writing and verified by those who had given it.

BONDS FOR NELL AND JESSIE

In the cases of grand larceny, in which two women grafters, "Frisco Nell" and Jessie Woods, a colored woman, are the defendants, and which are in Judge McClellan's court, bail of $500 for each defendant was fixed by the court this morning.

The bail was fixed at the request of Assistant County Attorney Yancey. Whether it will be furnished by the women or not is not known, but the attorneys wished to give them the chance.

The colored woman is accused of stealing $250 and the white woman of steal-

George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, has added a steamship bureau to the equipment of the passenger service of the road. He has engaged Captains Lewis Ingwersen and F. A. G. Schultze to superintend the bureau, and one of their duties will be to meet all incoming trans-Atlantic and the principal coastwise steamships to assist passengers who wish to leave the city via the Vanderbilt system. Captain Ingwersen will have charge of the American, Cunard, White Star, Atlantic Transport, Wilson, Anchor and Allam-State lines, and Captain Schultze has been assigned to the North-German, Lloyd, Hamburg-American, French, Rotterdam, Red Star and Thingvalle lines.

They will meet all incoming steamships, and will be prepared to furnish railway tickets, parlor and sleeping car accommodations and to assist passengers with their baggage and check it to points on the line of the railroad, after it has been passed by the customs inspectors. They will also furnish passengers with cabs operated by the railroad company, and furnish time tables and general information to passengers. The two men have also been directed to assist passengers who come to this city with a view of going abroad, and such passengers will be met at the Grand Central station on incoming trains and conducted to the steamship. Their baggage will be attended to, and steamship tickets can be procured in advance by communicating with Mr. Daniels, New York Commercial-Advertiser.
