

MONTANA RANCHES WILL SUPPLY BUTTE MARKETS WITH PRODUCE

According to the leading produce and commission merchants of Butte the local market, as regards early fruits and vegetables, is good.

Said Mr. Ryan of the firm of Ryan, Tomlin & Co.: "At present the local market is receiving a plentiful supply of stock from Montana ranches."

"The increase of local ranch production is making itself felt."

"The time is sure to come when the ranches of Central and Northern Montana will control the supply and demand of the Butte and Helena markets."

"The market is very firm, especially potatoes."

Higher Prices Looked For.

"Higher prices are looked for before late California vegetables come in."

"Most of the cabbages used in Butte are shipped from California, while Washington, Oregon and the Bitter Root valley furnish the supply of apples."

"The best apples that come to the local market are from Washington."

"Most of those from the Bitter Root valley are a fall variety of apples, but it is to be hoped that the ranchers in that section will begin raising the winter variety."

"Winter apples are always the best."

"Strawberries and cherries will not make their appearance before the latter part of this month, while melons will not be tasted in Butte before the first of June."

Good Reports.

"We receive daily reports from all parts of the West as well as Montana and have nothing but good reports from all districts."

"It is a little early yet to predict the probable status of the hay and grain output, as the late snow and rainfall is sure to affect it."

"Eggs are retailing for from 20 to 25 cents per dozen."

"The retail grocers are trying to encourage the local ranch owners to interest themselves in the establishment of chicken and poultry farms."

"They say that most of the eggs and chickens consumed in Butte are shipped from Nebraska and that scarcely 3 per cent of the local supply is furnished by local ranches."

"There is no good reason why poultry farms near Butte should not pay well and if the efforts of the local produce and commission men count for anything, the ranchers in Montana will in the near future furnish the market with eggs and chickens."

HAY DIGGER SUES

PLACER CLAIM PANS OUT POORLY AS A HAY RANCH.

SAND AND DIRT FLOWS OVER IT

James Noonan Sues Dennis Porter and T. Clowes Miles for a Thousand Dollars' Damages—Given Restraining Order.

Suit for $1,000 and costs and an injunction was brought in the district court today by James Noonan against Dennis Porter and T. Clowes Miles. Noonan alleges that the defendants have damaged his hay land in Price's canyon a thousand dollars worth with debris from a placer claim and threaten to do him irreparable damage unless enjoined by the courts.

Judge Clancy has issued a temporary restraining order to Noonan commanding the defendants to desist from washing sand and gravel down upon the plaintiff's land, and the restraining order and a bond for $500 furnished by the plaintiff to indemnify the defendants from damage by the order have been filed in the court.

Noonan alleges that he owns one-half of the Sheephead placer claim in Price's gulch and works it as a hay ranch, he and Jacob Eppler having located the property in 1895, and that he raises large quantities of hay on part of the land and intends to use the claim for that purpose indefinitely.

Hay Is Full of Sand.

"He adds that on March 20, 1902, the defendants located a placer claim adjoining the Sheephead claim and have since installed a plant for washing and sluicing gravel on the claim, and that the operation of the plant has resulted in large quantities of earth, stone, sand and gravel having been washed down upon the Sheephead claim and upon the hay land to its injury in the sum of $1,000."

Noonan says that unless a permanent injunction against Porter and Miles is granted him he will be put to the necessity of bringing a multiplicity of suits and will be damaged irreparably.

The restraining order issued by Judge Clancy was set for a hearing on April 19 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

JURORS IMPANELED

SPECIAL VENIRE RETURNED IN JUDGE M'CLERNAN'S COURT.

NEEDED IN SHADWELL CASE

About Sixty Men Served and Brought Into Court—Five Attachments Issued for Delinquents—Excuses Offered.

Judge McClernan impaneled a special jury in his court this morning. A venire was returned which had called for 125 jurors. About 60 or 65 jurors had been served with summonses and they were all in court except five or six.

After the names had been called and the men sworn to answer to their qualifications as jurors in the Shadwell murder trial, the court read the grounds of exemption from service as jurors, and listened to the excuses of those who wished to avoid serving on the panel.

The first man who addressed the court was Joseph Gallick, and he was 72 years old.

"Can't hold you, I guess, Mr. Gallick. You may go," the court said.

John Green said he was not on the assessment roll. George Speaker pleaded that he was not a citizen. W. H. Reiber declared that he had no property. All were excused.

Joseph C. Campeau said he had been summoned under the name of Frank Campeau. He had appeared, but he did not think he was the right man. The court agreed with him.

Mr. Brown Was All Right.

"What's the matter with you, Mr. Brown?" the court inquired, when a robust gentleman presented himself at the desk of the court.

"Nothing at all," said Mr. Brown. "You can't say? Well, then, you had better go and take a seat," the court responded.

Frank George was a little late. He was an Italian of the dark, fat kind who wear their hair shaved close and whispers in an oily way. He waved his arms and said:

"No finds da placeah. No can geta da court soon."

"No?" said the court. "Well, do you want to be excused?"

"Yes; pleaseah da court. No speaka da English," said the man.

"No, it doesn't please the court. But run along, run along," said the judge, and George departed.

John Meiter had a sick wife at home and was needed to take care of the children. He was excused.

Morris Hartnet, a saloon man, said he was needed at his business place, but the court could not be persuaded.

Pat Harris was afraid he would lose his work and was let off.

"I would like to get off," Joseph Barnett said.

"I dare say," said the court. "Is that your only excuse?"

Mr. Barnett wagged his head and the judge told him to have a seat and look pleased.

Attachments were issued for William Schultz, Charles Troegar, James Alerton, Sam Binder and H. Goldwater.

ERKAS INQUEST IS ON TODAY

Coroner Johnson is holding an inquest this afternoon on the body of Andrew Erkas, the miner who was found dead in his cabin in Meaderville Wednesday afternoon.

It is likely that the verdict will be to the effect that Erkas came to his death by suicide.

WILLIAMS' BODY SENT HOME

The remains of William Williams, the miner who was killed Wednesday in the Farrel Shaft No. 2, was shipped this afternoon to Fullerton, Nebraska, where the widow of the dead man lives.

Mr. A. J. Stewart, representing the Fardel Copper Co., will accompany the remains to Fullerton.

YOUNG WINWOOD RECKLESS

At the inquest held last night at Richards' undertaking establishment on the body of Lorenz Winwood, the little boy killed Wednesday at the Granite street railroad crossing, the jury decided that young Winwood came to his death while trying to board a moving train.

Eddie McLeod and Robert Kearney testified that they were with Lorenz Winwood a few minutes before he was killed, and that he ran over to the other side of the track when he saw the train approaching so that he could "hop" it without being seen by his mother.

L. R. Hensler, a near neighbor of the Winwood family, testified that the dead boy had been repeatedly warned by his mother not to play on the railroad tracks and was sometimes chastised for disobeying.

Certain of the train crew testified that the proper signal was given on approaching the crossing and that the train was moving at a slow rate of speed. The boys, they said, were not seen near the track.

SLIGHT BUILDING ACTIVITY

It is a matter of note that there are comparatively no new buildings being erected in Butte this spring and that, while last year there were several either in the course of erection or in contemplation, there seems to be no desire to build costly business or residence buildings in the near future.

The slackness in the building line cannot be attributed to business depression, but rather because of the increased cost of building operations.

Many of the unions have made demands which must be settled by May 1, and people with money to invest are naturally a little cautious about beginning any work that may be tied up for an indefinite period.

Whatever may be the real reason the fact remains that there is an unusual depression in the building line in the city.

PLANS FOR HALL OF RECORDS

Competitive plans for a county hall of records will be called for from local architects by the county commissioners within a few days.

The commissioners are considering a plan to build such a hall on the vacant lot west of the court house, and yesterday it was decided by them to call for plans.

Chairman Clark of the commissioners has thought favorably of such a hall for some time, and the call for specifications will be a step toward securing it.

A little time ago the commissioners considered the plan of using the sinking fund of the county for that purpose if the law allowed it, but County Attorney Breen rendered an opinion to the effect that the fund was not available, and that proposition was dropped.

The court has come to be too small to accommodate all the offices of the county and still provide room for the rapidly-accumulating records, hence the need of a hall of records.

After receiving the plans to be asked for, the commissioners will estimate the cost of the proposed structure, and in the fall the matter of issuing bonds to cover the cost of building it will be submitted to the voters of the county.

If the hall is built, it is the intention of the commissioners to put all the county offices in the new building, as well as vaults for records, and hold the court house for the three district courts and the county attorney's office, remodeling it to whatever extent is necessary.

COST BILL IN RIDDELL CASE

In the suit of J. A. Riddell vs. George L. Ramsey and Charles Sutter a bill of costs has been filed in the district court. It aggregates $387.70. Of the total sum $500 is for witness fees.

The suit was tried a few days ago and resulted in a verdict of $8,200 in favor of the plaintiff.

OPIUM HABIT MAKES THIEVES

James Stanley, a confirmed victim of the morphine habit, who admits that he purloins articles of small value without knowing of it afterwards, pleaded guilty to the charge of petit larceny in police court this morning and Judge Boyle sentenced him to sixty days in the county jail.

"They will give you all the morphine you want over there," said Judge Boyle, "and when you get out you may be cured of the petty theft habit."

Stanley had to be given a shot of morphine by Jailer Levy early this morning. "I rather pity those fellows," said the erstwhile "Dr. Sol," "for they certainly do have to have their dope. The next ones I get here I will shoot it into them with our new stomach pump. That will come under the head of 'pumpology' I suppose."

Dope fiends have been giving the police considerable trouble of late. Articles of small value are being taken from houses and stores almost daily.

The other day a flange rubber door mat was taken from a house. The name of the owner was worked in the rubber which was found in the possession of one of the county wards at the poor farm who is a slave to the opium habit.

MURDERER DEMPSEY IS SAFE IN FAR-OFF SOUTH AFRICA

Peter Dempsey, the wife murderer, who escaped from the county jail in this city last spring while waiting for the supreme court to pass upon his appeal from the decision of the district court adjudging him guilty of murder in the first degree and sentencing him to be hanged, has been heard from. He is in South Africa.

Information as to his whereabouts reached his attorney, Thomas A. Morrin, a few days ago, but whether it was conveyed in a letter from the fugitive or came in some other manner Mr. Morrin refuses to say.

After Dempsey escaped from the jail," says Mr. Morrin today, "he struck out towards Walkerville, skirted that town and took to the hills."

"Continuing his journey he dropped into the Lowlands, got some food at a cabin and passed on, going in the direction of Helena."

"He did not strike Helena, however, but was not far from it. From that district his course north was as direct as it could be until the Canadian Pacific railroad was reached."

"He beat his way to St. Johns, N. B., where he shipped on a vessel bound for South Africa, and I suppose he is in that part of the world."

Shortly after Dempsey disappeared a report to the effect that he had been seen in the Lowlands reached the city, and although deputy sheriffs secured that part of the state, no much positive information could be gleaned from anyone there.

Dempsey murdered his wife two years ago and expressed a desire to be hanged for it, but after a jury in Judge Clancy's court had decided to accommodate him he changed his mind and essayed the role of a lunatic.

Then another jury pronounced him sane. By that time Dempsey's desire to live was strong and he concluded to cheat the hangman if possible.

With two or three other prisoners he concocted a scheme to overpower the jailer, a new man at the business, and one Sunday morning the scheme was put into effect.

Getting the jailer to open the jail door, they dashed a handful of pepper into his eyes, gave him a few blows on the head, took the keys, unlocked the front door and ran out of the building, followed by Gus Schrickengost, a post-office robber, and another prisoner.

Schrickengost and the other man were captured a few days later, but Dempsey escaped.

Dempsey took some of the jail keys with him, but in the report from him he says nothing about them.

The first services will be held Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. There will also be services Sunday morning and Sunday afternoon. Monday evening at 8 o'clock Miss Booth will deliver an address on the subject "The Red Knights of the Cross."

WILL SURVEY YANKEE BOY

John Hubert has brought suit in the district court against Charles Geyman, in which he asks the court to grant him an underground inspection, examination and survey of the Yankee Boy mine, which Geyman is working.
