GROUNDS READY

ANACONDA GUN CLUB IN POSSESSION OF NEW QUARTERS.

HAVE PLENTY OF GOOD TRAPS

Five New Experts With Electric Pulls Added to the Layout of the Club—Horsemen Seek New Track.

(Special to Inter Mountain.)

Anaconda, April 18.—The new shooting grounds of the Anaconda Gun Club, in the center of race track west of the city will be in readiness for use the coming Sunday. Yesterday the club and trap houses were removed from the old location east of the city and placed in position on the new grounds.

In addition to the old traps used, there will be on the new grounds five new expert traps with electric pulls, which is an improvement long wanted. The old traps will be arranged in such a manner as to be used for shooting at unknown angles, according to the trap shooters' rules. Prior to this event of this kind have been pulled off from the regular traps, which is to some little disadvantage to shooters. The mango-trap used by the club for several years past is also in readiness for use on the new grounds.

There will be a small addition built to the club house, making it large enough to accommodate the regular weekly crowd.

When the state tournament is held next month, tents will be placed on the grounds for the use of the shooters.

Anaconda now has one of the largest gun clubs and as good grounds as there is in the state.

The fact that the gun club has secured the use of the race track for shooting purposes, has put the recently organized driving club to some little trouble in getting a place where they could make a new half mile track. Such a place has been selected at Mountain View park and work on the new course will commence shortly. It will be located on the piece of level ground lying east and north of the lake and adjacent to the pavilion. It will be circular in form.

Blanche Walsh Tonight.

(Special to Inter Mountain.)

Anaconda, April 18.—Blanche Walsh's magnificent production of the dramatic version of Paul Leicester Ford's great revolutionary novel, "Janice Meredith," will be presented in the city at the Margaret theater this evening. This is one of the most important theatrical attractions now touring the country. Every one interested in the stirring historical events of the revolutionary war should not fail to witness this remarkable play. It is a wonderfully graphic lesson in history as well as a most fascinating amusement. Miss Walsh's rendition of the title role is said to have added another triumph to her long list of artistic creations.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATION

Commences at the Courthouse Next Friday.

(Special to Inter Mountain.)

Anaconda, April 18.—One week from today Miss Mary A. McLaughlin, superintendent of county schools, will convene the regular April teachers' examination, which is to last over a period of two days.

The sessions will begin at 8 o'clock a. m. each day that they are in progress.

SPRINKLING CARTS

STREET COMMISSIONER IS KEEPING DUST DOWN.

NEW WAGONS BE HERE SOON

In Meantime He Is Getting Along With One Leased From Driving Park Association—Health Regulations.

(Special to Inter Mountain.)

Anaconda, April 18.—The furious dust storms that prevailed last week and which caused a few of Anaconda's citizens to break at least one of the ten commandments, have not been in evidence for several days.

Although the city does not own a street sprinkler, the new ones ordered recently not having arrived, the commissioner, George Brohn, has made arrangements for the temporary use of the wagon belonging to the Driving Park Association.

The vehicle has been in service for several days with the pleasing result that the dust of the main streets of the city has been kept well allayed.

The street commissioner, in conjunction with the board of health, is rigidly enforcing the regulations requiring citizens to clean up their premises.

So far the orders of the department have been complied with, and thus, no arrests have been necessary.

LOCAL BRIEFS

NOON IN OHIO.

Supreme Court Decides Against an Insurance Company.

(By Associated Press.)

Akron, O., April 18.—Noon comes at 11:27, legal standard time, in Akron, according to a decision just handed down by the supreme court.

Thomas Mier took out a fire insurance policy on his saloon at 11:30, standard time, five years ago, the policy being dated noon of that day.

At the very minute he was getting the policy the saloon caught fire and was burned. Ohio law makes standard time legal time, and the company refused to pay the $2,000 insurance on Mier's saloon.

The case was fought through to the supreme court, which has decided that "noon" meant the time the sun passed meridian at Akron, which is at 11:27, standard time. The court ordered the insurance company to pay.

WILL GET THEIR MONEY.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, April 18.—The $145,000 which yet remained in the treasury of the World's Columbian exposition, will probably be divided next month by the 20,000 shareholders. The last law suit against the company has been decided, and the board of directors has decided to distribute the money as soon as preliminary work can be accomplished.

The dividend, it is estimated, will amount to about 45 cents a share. Shares were sold for $10. About 20,000 shareholders held one share each.

The stockholders will get $225,000 as its dividends on the $5,000,000 bonds. The money has been tied up all these years by litigation.

New Automobile Record.

London, April 18.—Four hundred miles between London and Glasgow, in 28 hours without a stop, is the automobile record just made by E. F. Wedge, with a 16-horsepower machine. The trial was intended for an endurance test and no attempt at speed was made. Wedge expressed himself as well pleased with the result.

CABLE TO RESUME

FAMOUS MINE OF J. C. SAVERY TO BE WORKED.

HAS BEEN DOWN FOR YEARS.

Was at One Time a Good Producer as the State of Montana Ever Boasted of—J. T. Carroll at the Head.

(Special to Inter Mountain.)

Anaconda, April 18.—The report that the Cable mine is to be worked this summer has created considerable interest among those in the vicinity of Anaconda who are interested in mines and mining.

The Cable mine has been lying idle for a period of eight or nine years.

Previous to that time it was one of the most famous producers in the state of Montana and ore taken from it has been estimated as reaching into the hundreds of thousands if not the millions. Samples of ore, the like of which were never seen before, have been taken from the Cable, equalling if not surpassing, it is said, the richest ore ever taken from the famous Mayflower mine belonging to W. A. Clark.

Rumor has it that the Cable will be worked by J. T. Carroll, formerly a business man of this city and a partner of J. C. Savery.

A few days ago a party of experts in company with H. S. Showers of this city, formerly superintendent of the Cable, departed for the mine, it is supposed with the intention of laying out the season's work.

The renewal of operations at the Cable will be extremely encouraging to mining men who have interests in that locality and there is no doubt but that a great deal will be performed during the summer.

A REWARD FOR UATRIOTISM.

His German Grandfather Gives the Young American $12,000.

(Cincinnati Times-Star.)

"I bequeath to my grandson, Otto Schmah, the sum of $12,000 because he was brave and loyal to his country in the time of trouble." The above is a provision in the will of Max Schmah, a "millionaire sugar king" of Germany. Otto Schmah, the beneficiary who is mentioned in the will of his grandfather, resides with his parents in a modest home in Cincinnati. When President McKinley issued the declaration of war with Spain young Schmah was one of the first to respond to defend the Stars and Stripes. He enlisted as a volunteer and saw service in Cuba. Later he re-enlisted in the Thirty-first Ohio volunteer infantry and made the long voyage to the Philippine islands. He participated in numerous skirmishes with the Filipinos in the islands, and when his wealthy grand-father learned of the meritorious deeds of his grandson he was overwhelmed with joy.

To reward this brave grandson, whom he had never seen, for his loyalty to his country he immediately wrote a codicil to his will bequeathing him $12,000. The money is to be held in trust until the young man reaches the age of 30 years. As far as is known at present no other relatives in the United States are mentioned in the document. Max Schmah, who amassed the colossal fortune in the German empire, was a loyal citizen. He lived in a spacious and elegant mansion in Berlin and controlled great sugar plantations and sugar refineries in Germany. Although 88 years of age, he was active and hearty, and several months ago he went to London to transact business. While there he suddenly became ill and died. His remains were shipped to his native land and interred.

The news apprising the young man of his fortune came in a letter received from Germany several days ago. The bulk of the deceased's estate will go to his widow and children.

Fad of Saving Pennies.

(By Associated Press.)

Indianapolis, April 18.—German Boyce, a German grocer at Goshen, Ind., has made a fad of saving pennies for the last 20 years. The quantity became so great that Boyce had no safe place to keep them and he had deposited them in a bank. There were 19,769 pennies in the accumulation, and the bulk of copper was so heavy that he had to take it to the bank on a dray.

SPIONKOP DEFEAT

PUBLICATION OF OFFICIAL DISPATCHES RELATIVE TO IT.

BULLER'S DUTY TO INTERVENE

His Censure of General Warren Not Justified by Facts, Says Lord Roberts—It Is Bitter Controversy.

(By Associated Press.)

London, April 18.—All the official dispatches referring to the defeat sustained by the British troops under General Buller, at Spionkop, Natal, January 24, 1900, were made public today. Those hitherto unpublished merely emphasize how hopelessly muddled were the preparations for that engagement.

The controversy between General Buller and General Sir Charles Warren is proved to have been even more bitter than previously hinted at, while a news extract from one of Lord Roberts' dispatches brings additional censure on General Buller.

Lord Roberts declares that General Buller's endeavor to put the responsibility for the defeat on General Warren was not justifiable. Roberts holds that it was Buller's duty to intervene when he saw things were going wrong. This remark was caused by a dispatch from Roberts, in which he says:

"I saw no attempt on the part of Warren to either grapple with the situation or command his force himself. We lost our chance by Warren's slowness. He seems to me to be a man who can do well what he can do himself, but who cannot command."

"I will never employ him again on an independent command."

"I ought to have assumed command myself when I saw things were not going well. I blame myself now for not doing so."

Buller explains that he failed to supersede Warren because it might have discredited the latter with the troops, which was an especially serious matter, as, if Buller had been shot, Warren would have succeeded to the supreme command.

The question of the responsibility for the actual retreat from Spionkop is shrouded in a maze of dispatches proving that a mistake was made in sending a heliogram, and that there was a general desire to shirk the onus.

Beyond this washing of dirty linen nothing appears to have been accomplished by the publication of the dispatch.

HOIST BY HIS OWN PETARD.

Opie Read Tells of Danger of "Grapevine" Journalism.

(Saturday Evening Post.)

At a recent luncheon of newspaper men, Opie Read, who is now being urged to become an aldermanic candidate in Chicago, gave a talk on the dangers of politics and "grapevine journalism," and enforced the moral of his remarks by a chapter from his own experiences when a reporter on the Little Rock Gazette, printed in the capital city of Arkansas.

"News was particularly slow one day," said he. "There hadn't been a shooting or a hanging in our entire zone of influence for a week. Something had to be done, and the editor detailed me to 'get up something' that would read as if it might have happened. Nothing pleased me better than a grapevine stint, and I turned out a two-column story which described how a government agent got after the moonshiners up White river."

"The yarn detailed how a certain sawmill 'way up stream had been doing a big business in making black walnut coffins until the revenue men at Memphis, the main stopping point, had noticed that the town was flowing with 'moonshine.' They watched the docks closely, and one observant agent noticed that several coffins were being sent back up the river. Then a coffin which had just arrived was secretly opened and found to contain a tin lining full of illicit whiskey."

"Then, according to my story, the bright young revenue man followed one of the returning coffins up river and arrived in the neighborhood of the sawmill in question."

"He carried a stock of Bibles and took up his abode with the Rev. Bradley Bunch—I can recall the thrill of satisfaction I felt when that name popped into my head! Before this colporteur had stocked the little community with copies of the Scriptures, he managed to take several quiet strolls into the fields and woods."

"In the course of one of these rambles he came upon a secluded confield on a hillside. In one corner of the field was a tall crib, to which teams hauled their loads. Close study showed the stranger that, no matter how many loads of corn were dumped into this crib, the pile did not increase in height."

"Next he discovered a thin line of smoke coming out of the top of a big sycamore tree a few rods down the hillside."

"This settled the location of the moonshine 'still,' and the brilliant young revenue man had only to go and fetch a big posse of his associates in order to make a rich haul."

"Incidentally, he fell in love with the charming daughter of Rev. Bradley Bunch—of course!—and sacrificed love for duty."

"And there ended my 'grapevine' story. I got the first copy off the press and was showing it to the advance agent of a circus who had a pocketful of blank passes, when the office devil came down the back stairs on the jump."

"You'd better git shut of this place!" he cried. "Governor Rector's upstairs talkin' t' th' old man, an' he's madder'n a hornet. Says that Bradley Bunch's an old friend of his and one of the greatest preachers in all Arkansas. He's got his eye on aim an' is looking for the man that wrote that article!"

"I didn't wait to hear any more, for I had seen one newspaper man who had the marks of Governor Rector's cane all over his back.

"After that I was mighty careful how I indulged in the 'grapevine' habit—especially so long as old Governor Rector was able to get about Little Rock and swing his cane."

"How the name of Bradley Bunch ever came to me in writing that story I don't know, but he certainly was a preacher in the very locality in which my moonshine story was laid!"

"Probably I had read the name in the report of some ministerial conference and had later forgot its association with a living personality."

OLD-TIME POSIES IN FAVOR.

Gardenias, the Bon Silene Rose and Camellias Now Popular.

(Philadelphia North American.)

"Old fashioned flowers are again becoming popular, and at present the gardenia is society's favorite. It is grown mostly in New York. Soon it will be supplied from everywhere, and that will be the end."

"Rather pathetic is the history of some of the flowers," said the florist. "See this," and he held up a little red bud. "It is the Bon Silene, or Boston Bud rose. Its name will recall a host of pleasant memories to the minds of the older people."

"Thirty or forty years ago the Bon Silene was almost the only flower sent by the young men to their sweethearts. Brides and debutantes in those days invariably wore bouquets of this blossom. Yet it went entirely out of the market for ten years."

"Four years ago I conceived the idea of growing a house of these once favored flowers, and soon had the only supply in the country. I made them popular in Philadelphia for one season, selling bouquets to the society people for $25 each. I refused absolutely to sell more than one bouquet to any one person. I could do this because I had a temporary monopoly of the flower."

"The revival was so successful that other growers began to raise the flower, and that ended the fad. We are now selling them for 75 cents a dozen but they are again becoming popular with this new demand for old fashioned flowers."

"The Catherine Mermel is another rose that the old folks will fondly recall. Its popularity followed that of the Bon Silene. Then came the American Beauty, which still holds its own, because it is one of the few roses that can be forced throughout the year."

"The camellia is another flower that may be termed old fashioned. It looks much like the now favored gardenia. It was used a great deal along with the Bon Silene in brides' bouquets in the days when Buchanan was president."

"The camellia is now quite popular in Paris and London, sharing favor with the gardenia. Both are being used extensively by the fashionable modistes in ornamenting handsome gowns."

"Speaking of the American Beauty and its continued sale, I should mention that there is a rose called the Ulrich Brunner, which, in company with the Queen of Edgley, is becoming quite a formidable rival of the first named flower."

"The Ulrich Brunner is really handsomer than the American Beauty, being deeper in color and with better foliage. It blooms but once a year."

"Such old-time beauties as the bleeding heart, forsythia and that very early harbinger of spring, the pussy willow, all of which we remember as boys seeing in our mothers' porch-side gardens are now grown."

"Our people are beginning to get some of the ideas of those greatest of all flower lovers, the Japanese. We are selling a great many of the Japanese plum and Japanese cherry."
