MARY AND JOHN LOVING MUTUAL DIFFERENCE IN AGE IS NOT A BAR

Mary and John were lovers. Mary's mother says she is not quite 16 years old. John claims to be 29. His appearance indicates, however, that John is giving himself a little bit the best of it on the age proposition. Mary and John met at an appointed rendezvous, No. 530 East Park street, yesterday evening, and accompanied by two of their friends drove in a carriage to the home of Rev. J. E. Noffsinger, where John W. Magarell produced a marriage license which permitted him to wed Mary MacAuley, although the pretty little girl is scarcely out of short dresses. There was an irate mother at the MacAuley home, No. 899 East Broadway when she received a note from her little daughter to this effect: They're Married Now. Dear Mother: I have stood this as would have assaulted him but for the interference of Sergeant Dawson. Magarell took it coolly. In one hand he held his marriage certificate and in the other a memorial card showing that his first wife had died in Marshalltown, Iowa, in 1898. The marriage license was a pretty sort of an affair. Upon the page opposite the names of the contracting parties and the witnesses, Mrs. MacAuley read the following little verse, which, in her frame of mind, was inappropriate: "The guests who come with greeting gay, "To celebrate our wedding day, etc." Magarell said the girl had told him that she was 19 years old; that he had done the honorable thing in marrying her and intended to give her a good home. Ordered Bride Arrested. Mrs. MacAuley could not be induced to accept the situation despite the fact that long as I could. I am married and will be home tomorrow." Mrs. MacAuley lost no time in getting to police headquarters and represented that a married man with two children had secretly married her daughter. She wanted them both arrested. He was to go to the penitentiary and her daughter stated for the reform school. Investigation put an entirely different phase upon the situation. John turned out to be a good fellow and the pretty little bride completely captivated the officers who were detailed on the case. Accompanied by Mrs. MacAuley Sergeant Dawson proceeded to the Powell block, No. 536 East Park street. Mrs. MacAuley led the way to the house and found the couple in the room. They had just returned from the preacher's house. "Here they are," said Mrs. MacAuley. "Now you will both go to jail."

Sergeant Dawson after he had learned the facts in the case, advised her to take them home and bestow a parental blessing. The young couple were marched to the MacAuley home where the girl packed in a bundle her belongings. John tucked them under his arm and there was a retrograde movement toward police headquarters. Chief of Police Reynolds was at headquarters when the bridal party arrived and after a conference with the couple, and hearing the facts in the case, the chief told them to go home. "It is my impression that it is a ruin of common law," said the chief, "that a subsequent marriage is a bar to all legal proceedings." Magarell has lived in Butte three years. He is at present employed by a diamond drill company, and has a good reputation. He has some money and is interested in mining property in the Black Hills.

DEATH OF RICHARD HANCOCK

Death came at an early hour this morning to soothe the agony and suffering of Richard Hancock. Hancock was seriously injured in the Original mine Sunday by being struck with a heavy iron roller which was displaced in the shaft and broke through the cage in which Hancock and four other miners were ascending to the surface. Hancock's right leg was broken in several places and his foot was so badly crushed that amputation was necessary. The injured man, who was at St. James' hospital, suffered terribly. Early this morning his pain seemed to be alleviated, but he sank gradually until the end came about 5 o'clock this morning. Hancock leaves a wife and four children, living at No. 121 West Boardman street. He was a member of Butte lodge No. 1, A. O. U. W., the Stationery Engineers' union and the Butte Miners' union. An inquest will be held at Richard's undertaking rooms at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Arrangements have not yet been made for the funeral.

HALL CASE GOES OVER A TERM

John C. Hall, charged with embezzlement, will not be tried at this term of Judge McClernan's court. When the matter was called up today the county attorney presented an affidavit in which he stated that H. H. Buchanan, an important witness, was absent from Butte and could not be found. C. M. Parr, the defendant's counsel, opposed a continuance. Hall is the man who, it is alleged, while acting as bookkeeper for Swift & Co., handlers of meats, appropriated to his own use $215.24 of the company's money. It is alleged that the total amount of the defalcation was $3,089.65, but the information charged the defendant with the embezzlement of only $215.24. Buchanan, the missing witness, is traveling auditor for the company, and is the man that discovered the shortage. Hall has a wife and four small, pretty children, who were in court today. He came from Nebraska, where his record is good. His trouble here is attributed to the use of liquor.

BUTTE BRIEFS.

Sewell Davis returned yesterday from a week's trip to Salt Lake. Miss Annie Hosking leaves today for Deer Lodge to spend a few days with Mrs. William Hosking of that city. Rev. John Hosking left today for Granite, where he will deliver an address to the Odd Fellows Friday. Many friends of former Chief of Police Jack Laville were alarmed at a rumor that was extensively circulated on the streets today to the effect that he had died at Hunter's Hot Springs last night. It was learned that there is no truth in the story and that it was started by a harmless individual whose conception of humor is a trifle cloudy. The Pine Tree saloon located on East Park street, at the end of the car line, was reported held up again early this morning, but the police do not take much stock in the report. This afternoon Detective Murphy and Policeman Gillic went to the Pine Tree saloon to investigate the alleged holdup. George Leekly, formerly a well-known resident of Helena and now chief clerk in the office of the United States marshal in Nome, Alaska, is at the Butte hotel. Mr. Leekly is accompanied by his bride and they are on their wedding journey. They will leave for the south tonight. John Shea, who was yesterday afternoon convicted in police court of impersonating an officer, was fined $50 this morning by Judge Boyle. In addition to the fine the court delivered a first-class lecture. Shea is still in jail but his relatives are likely to pay his fine. Annie Lacey, who was arrested several days ago by Policeman Loughrin on the charge of having robbed Amos Lalong of $100 in crisp Canadian bills, yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $25 by Police Judge Boyle. The latter says that he accepted the plea and fine upon the recommendation of the chief of police and arresting officer.

Praise for Patti.

Last winter Mme. Patti was staying for a few days in an isolated village at the extreme end of Yorkshire. To kill the monotony of the place the prima donna went one night to a concert given in aid of a certain village institution. Not half of the performers turned up. Appreciating the difficulty, Mme. Patti incognito, of course—offered to oblige the audience with a song or two. Then she sang, in her own glorious way, three of her sweetest ballads. At the close the chairman approached and in solemn tones, thanked her. "Well, miss," he said, "you've done uncommon well. And although 'Arry Ock, the juggler, who thinks nowt of takin' 'old of 'ot pokers and a-swallowin' needles, couldn't turn up, yet you've pleased us very considerable, miss."

The Major's Bake-Off.

LAWYERS HAVE TILT

O'DONNELL AND LEBLANC CLASH BEFORE MCCLERNAN.

HAVE HAND IN HIRBOUR ESTATE

Leblanc Holds Whip Hand Over Iegal End of Controversy—Small Retainers Have Been His Lot—O'Donnell Wins Slight Advance.

Trouble has broken out between Mrs. S. E. Hirbour and D. J. Giard and the latter's attorney, M. E. Leblanc, and the district court has been called upon to take a hand in it.

Mrs. Hirbour is the widow of the late Stanislaus E. Hirbour, who sold the Rucus mine, and Mr. Giard is the administrator of the estate and the guardian of Stella H. and Arthur F. C. Hirbour, minor children of the dead man and the widow.

About two weeks ago Mr. Giard filed in the district court his resignation as such administrator and guardian and Mrs. Hirbour subsequently petitioned the court to be appointed administratrix. Why Mr. Giard desired to resign is not generally known.

This morning Charles O'Donnell, an attorney, asked Judge McClernan to accept the resignation of Mr. Giard, relieve Mr. Leblanc of the responsibilities of acting as his attorney and appoint Mrs. Hirbour administratrix of the estate and guardian of the two minor children. He also requested that he be assigned to the place of Mr. Leblanc, as it was the wish of the widow that he should look after the legal business of the estate.

Hard Work, Poor Pay.

Mr. Leblanc was present and as soon as Mr. O'Donnell had finished his talk he stepped to the front and withdrew the resignation of Mr. Giard. "I have been handling the estate nearly three years," said he, "and have received only $62 for my services, although I am to receive $1,500 for all of my work. The estate at present contains $112,000 and there has been a great deal of legal work in connection with it. Why, judge, the sum of money I have been offered will not pay my stenographer. I do not want to work for nothing—I want the respect of my fellow members of the bar. I therefore refuse to be discharged as the legal adviser of the administrator and guardian of the minor children."

Chancellor O'Donnell insisted upon his demand for the release of Mr. Giard and his attorney.

"What right has Mrs. Hirbour to discharge the administrator?" said the judge, addressing Mr. O'Donnell. "She cannot be appointed administratrix while Mr. Giard is holding the position and Mr. Giard is still holding it. I will therefore recognize Mr. Leblanc in this matter. If you wish to get Mr. Giard out you will have to go about it in some other way."

"Well, your honor," said Mr. O'Donnell, "I wish to be appointed associate counsel for Mr. Leblanc." "All right," replied the judge, "I will allow you to become associate counsel." "I object to the appointment of Mr. O'Donnell," said Mr. Leblanc. "The court will appoint him anyway," replied the judge.

Chancellor O'Donnell appeared to be satisfied with the place assigned him and will hereafter assist Mr. Leblanc in attending to business pertaining to the estate, but will have to take the small end of it, as the other side has the pole of the race.

HEARING ILLEGAL VOTE CASE

Justice Nelson is this afternoon hearing the last of the illegal registration cases that will be held before him.

The case Judge Nelson is wrestling with is that of John J. O'Brien, who was arrested under the name of J. H. Hurley, charged with illegally registering at the recent election. There are several witnesses and the county attorney is making an effort to secure a conviction.

O'Brien has been in the county jail, with others on a similar charge, since April 7. He has several times attempted to secure bail, but his efforts have been unsuccessful. It is believed that should he be convicted his term on the hill will be taken into consideration so that his sentence will not be as heavy as in the previous cases held by Judge Nelson. Dan Herrington and Jerry Black, who were convicted of illegal registration before Judge Nelson, each received a sentence of 30 days in jail.

Others Fined.

After the recital of facts in the case of A. B. Derville, Frank Pardee and Frankie May, a sort of a three-cornered disturbance of the peace in Judge Boyle's court yesterday, the woman was found not guilty. Pardee and Derville were fined $10 each. Thomas McGuire, Patrick Ryan, William Miller and George Garron, jointly accused in police court yesterday of disturbing the peace at 42 East Park street several days ago, were tried, McGuire was acquitted and the other defendants were fined $10 each.

In the matter of Thomas Keating, charged with fighting Judge Boyle, after hearing the evidence yesterday, withheld his decision.

AFGHANS IN BUTTE

by one of the Afghans with whom he had roomed, and whom he bullied and cheated until the natural racial prejudice of one mountain tribe against another had become intensified by bitter hatred into a strong desire for revenge.

Asked for Arrest.

Chief of Police Reynolds yesterday evening received a telegram from Sheriff Ed Cadine of Seattle, asking that Rasoul Kahn and Nassir Kahn be arrested. The Seattle sheriff said that he was satisfied the Afghans above named, whom he described, were in Butte.

It was known to the Butte police that five Afghans answering the description given in the telegram, had arrived in Butte 10 days ago and a search was made for them last night, but they were not located.

This morning the five men who were wanted presented themselves at headquarters for the purpose of declaring their innocence of and connection with the murder of Merrill.

Petti Kahn said that he and his five companions left Seattle March 3 last, and he exhibited a bill of lading of the shipment of their goods. He said that he could prove that he and his friends were in Spokane when the murder was committed.

To Make Tamales.

From Spokane they came to Kallispeil, Mont., and from the latter place to Butte, arriving here April 14.

Petti Kahn further said that he and his friends had come to Butte to stay, and that they expected to open a chicken tamale factory, and if the police wanted them at any time they could be found in the city.

The spokesman said that he was acquainted with Nassir and Basoula Kahn.

"You know," said Petti Kahn, in broken English, "that there are lots of Kahns in our country. (He gave the word "kahn" the same articulate sound as "can.") "In fact," continued the spokesman, "the section of Afghanistan from which we came, the yare all 'Kahns'. May be you call them 'Tin Cans' in this country."

Are Many Kahns.

Petti Kahn then went on to speak a number of given names of the Kahns of his acquaintance. Had he not been directed to stop by the chief he would have probably been naming them yet.

The 'Afghan after saying that he was acquainted with Rasoul and Nassir Kahn, said that he had seen the two Afghans in Seattle last February.

Four of the five Afghans who interviewed the chief of police this morning were "Kahns"—Petti, Ferosa, Acbud and Sibran Kahn. The fifth man gave his name, as near as could be understood as Budolla. The latter's skin is not quite so dark as his companions, and he said he was from another tribe.

After Chief Reynolds and Detective Murphy became satisfied that the men should not be held, other than for a source of information which might lead to the arrest of the guilty persons, the conversation with them drifted into sort of historical trend.

Fought in Afghanistan.

Petti Kahn proved an interesting personage. He said that he had traveled a great deal and his conversation bore out his statement.

The Afghan knew much of the history of his own and other countries. He said that he left Afghanistan shortly after the English-Afghanistan war, in which he took part.

He spoke in better terms of the English and spoke in a sympathetic tone of the struggle the Boers are making against their arch enemy, Petti Kahn referred to the Boers as the "Boharrers," with sort of a euphonious deflection upon the "rs."

With courteous willingness the Afghans consented to pose for the Inter-Mountain photographer. The accompanying picture was taken upon the stairs leading to the Butte hotel.

After the picture was taken the five men were invited to partake of a glass of liquid refreshment. They reluctantly accompanied the reporter to a saloon, but refused to drink anything. "We are all Mohammedans," said Petti Kahn, "and never drink liquor." They all took cigars and after a series of profuse bows they walked out.
