Missoula, June 14.—The Garden city of the state is radiant in nature's adornment. Flowers abound. No home with the tiniest plot of ground but has the same rich in clover. There's none so poor but supports a blossom in dress or coat. One rose bush on East Front street has thousands of buds. Lawns are carpets, thick and soft. The days are not yet so warm that the foliage falls heavy under breathless heat and the nights are cool and clear. Society still keeps up an activity rare for the season, but then the season is rare, these June days. The court house grounds are again peopled with pleasure seekers. Monday evening the band gave a short concert there, the first of the season, which was a treat, indeed.
