OVERLAND BOYS TAKE THE TRAIL FOR HELENA

There was music in the very toot of the engine that pulled the special containing the Overland minstrels out of the B. A. & P. yards this afternoon.
 At 1:30 Montana's greatest aggregation of black-faced comedians shouted adieu to the crowd who came to see them off. The turn with their garlands of victory around them and another notch in their gun handles to mark the conquest of the gay capital.

The little girls trained by Mrs. Harry Symons for the Sunflower dance went along with the minstrels in a special car conductor shouted "All aboard!" and the Overlands were off overland for Helena.

Tonight Ming's opera house will be crowded with the beauty and chivalry of Montana's capital, who will assemble to see Charley Lane and his darlings do their stunt.

Tomorrow afternoon the troupe will return with their garlands of victory around them and another notch in their gun handles to mark the conquest of the gay capital.

C. W. Clark pays all expenses of the trip which are not met by the receipts of the engagement at Ming's. Mr. Clark is proud of the Overland minstrels and enthusiastic over the trip that began today.

SECRETARY SMITH HOME FROM DENVER MEETING

Returns as Officer of Enlarged Organization Prepared for Hard Work of National Character.

Clarence Smith, secretary and treasurer for the American Labor Union, has just returned from the convention, where he has been engaged during the last three weeks in the general meeting and the special meetings of the executive committee.

"We went away from Butte as the Western Labor Union," said Mr. Smith, "but we come back as the American Labor Union. Our jurisdiction now extends over the entire continent of North America, which will, of course, mean an enormous increase in our membership. Already I have received applications from Eastern labor unions, some from Massachusetts and some from Illinois."

"We had a busy session I assure you," he continued, "and I am glad to get back to Butte again. Mr. McDonald is still in Denver, where the executive committee is in session making arrangements for the change and outlining the policy for the increase of organization."

Secretary Smith is deluged with correspondence and the work of the organization which accumulated while he was away at the convention and will be one of the busiest men in Butte for a week or two.

He is pleased at the action of the convention in retaining the headquarters in Butte, and naturally complimented at the re-election of himself and President McDonald, both of whom have worked arduously and faithfully in the interests of the organization.

FATAL MEETING AVERTED, ELOPEMENT POSTPONED

Fred Roberts and His Possible Father-in-Law Are Kept Apart by Fearful Friends.

What promised to develop into a tragedy at No. 503 East Park street did not "pan out," this afternoon.

Minnie Davidson, the pretty 17-year-old daughter of C. H. Davidson planned to run away with and marry Fred Roberts, a young miner who works at the Mimie Healy mine. For some time past the two young people have been devoted lovers and it is understood Minnie told her friend Eva Donahoe that she intended to run away this afternoon and marry Roberts.

In some way the news reached the ears of Minnie's father, C. H. Davidson, 182 latter swore dire vengeance if the young man attempted to run away with his daughter. He secured a shot gun and for awhile things looked blue for Roberts who, up to 2 o'clock had not put in his appearance. Lewis Harrington, the next door neighbor of the Davidson family telephoned to Officer Barney McGillicie at the police station that trouble was brewing and the latter went to the scene. Roberts' friends warned him not to face the angry father, and trouble was averted.

Minnie declares that she and Fred will yet find a way to take up the marital burden.

WHEN MINERS' UNION DAY IS CELEBRATED PROPERLY

Comments on Common Mistake Regarding Celebration of Anniversary Day.

"There seems to be considerable misunderstanding regarding the number of the anniversary which we celebrated yesterday," said a member of the Miners' union today.

"Our union was organized the 13th day of June, 1878. That is 24 years ago. Now some of the papers and some of the speakers got mixed up, some calling yesterday the twenty-third anniversary, some the twenty-fourth and some the twenty-fifth."

"If the organization is 24 years old, there is no question about yesterday's being the twenty-fourth anniversary. That seems plain enough. Of course the day of organization was not an anniversary. We had our first anniversary at the end of the first year, our second at the end of the second year; so it shouldn't take much of a mathematician to determine that we had our twenty-fourth yesterday at the end of the twenty-fourth year of our existence."

"Nothing could give you a better idea of the length of time the union has been in existence than the fact that there were several young fellows in the parade yesterday who were not born when the union was founded."

"A father and son walked side by side in the parade yesterday. The father had been a member of the union before the son was born."

BILL YUTZ ALIVE, GUN MISSED FIRE

POLICEMAN TELLS OF DARK NIGHT WHEN HIGHWAYMEN PUT MUZZLE TO HIS BOSOM.

WEARS THE CARTRIDGE AS VALUED WATCH CHARM

Robbers Were Holding Up Man in Pleasant Alley When Patrolman Discovered Then and Attempted Their Capture—Blinded by Electric Light He Stumbled and Narrowly Escapes Murder.

"My pistol duel with the negro Irvin Allen, when he snapped his gun at me, reminds me of an encounter I had with a desperate man two years ago," said Policeman Bill Yutz this afternoon.

The policeman fingered a six-shooter cartridge which he wore on his watch chain. A closer examination of the cartridge showed that the hammer of the revolver had fallen on the cap, making a dent but had failed to fire it.

"I always prize this cartridge as a friend," continued the peace guardian, "for any other cartridge would have yielded to the persuasion of the sharp hammer and in that case I should not now be here to tell the story."

"Two years ago I was on the East Helena street beat, which is of course the hardest beat in the city to preserve order on. It was about 11 o'clock at night when some one came running to me out of Pleasant alley and told me that three men were standing in the darkness of the alley and that 'something was doing.'"

Caught in the Act.

"I hurried to the spot indicated and tipping to within a few feet of the group I saw that one man had another covered with a large gun while a third man was rifling the victim's pockets."

"What are you doing there?" I cried, and at the same time I covered the foot-pads with my revolver. At that instant the robber with the revolver aimed his gun in my direction, and without further ado I fired. But just as I did so the nearby electric light suddenly flickered up and blinded me.

"Before I could shoot again I stumbled and fell forward on my knee. The robber determined to kill me. He placed the muzzle of his gun, a large 44-calibre Colt's at my breast and pulled the trigger. There was a dead clicking sound and I knew that my life was saved. The gun had missed fire."

Barney Was There.

"By this time I had regained my footing and the highwayman had turned to run. I pursued him up Helena street which was crowded at the time. I yelled for everybody to get out of the way as I was about to shoot. There was a scattering but before I could bring the fleeing man down with a shot, Officer Barney McGillicie told him with a blow from a club."

"We took the gun from him and found six cartridges including the one that had been snapped at me. I kept it as a souvenir for as I said before I would have been a dead man had the cap of the cartridge exploded."

"The highwayman's name was Williams and he is now serving a 15-year sentence at Deer Lodge for the attempted highway robbery in which I caught him. The other robber escaped at the time but was captured later and he, too, is now serving a sentence."

"That was the closest call I ever had and I never want another like it."

WITH HIS LAST $2.

He Won $800 After Losing $1,100 on One Hand.

(Indianapolis Cor. New York Herald.)

A party of commercial travelers were dining at the Columbia club a few evenings ago, and after the meal one of them suggested that they while away an hour or two with a game of poker.

The suggestion was favored by all but one man, who said he had not played a game for 20 years, and that he never expected to touch another card. His earnestness was so marked that he was asked to explain.

He said that he had learned the game when a boy on a farm, and he finally succeeded in playing a better game than any of his associates, and so got the idea that he was a star player. His winnings were never large, but he was so impressed by their uniformity that he believed he was a born gambler.

"When I reached my majority," he continued, "I determined to go West and grow up with my country, and when I landed at Omaha I had $1,112 in my pocket. I struck out from there across the country on foot, and late in the evening I strolled into a public house in what was the beginning of a town."

"There was no one in but the proprietor, who was host and saloonkeeper, too, and after lounging around for a time we entered into conversation. He inquired as to my business, and I supposed my reticence excited his suspicion for he immediately asked if I were looking for a game."

"Believing I was an expert, I replied in the affirmative, and we went into a side room and began to play. It took just one hand to get conceit out of me."

"I dealt the cards myself, and stayed in on a pair of kings, drawing three cards and getting the other two kings. My host drew two cards, and I assumed that he had three, and all the chances, of course, against his getting fours."

"We began with small bets, but kept increasing this till I had $1,000 on the table and called him, I believed he had been bluffing, and threw down four kings with an air of triumph, but he had four aces and took the stake. I remained that night and my host refused to take anything for my meals and lodging and the next day I started back for Omaha."

"My $2 gradually dwindled away till I had but $2 left. A guileless looking fellow entered the hotel and took a seat near me. He finally asked me if I played. I shook my head sorrowfully, and then he asked if I would not like to learn the game. I thought I might as well risk my last $2, and we went to a room and began at a cent ante."

"I was lucky, and at my friend's suggestion the ante was increased, and when we quit that evening I had $75 of his money. The next morning we went at it again, and before night I had won $600 and two notes, which he had received for some agricultural implements. I cashed the notes for about $200, and then took a steamer for home.

 "When I got to St. Louis I picked up a paper and saw that my friend had done just what I was contemplating when he accosted me in the hotel a few evenings before at Omaha—blown out his brains with a revolver."

There Are Always Some Busy Ones.
 Those who have occasion to write the detective agency or call at their offices for information of any kind always receive the best of advice and long experience. Why is it that some people will stand to lose jewelry or valuables of different kinds and say nothing about it? Why they do this when they are in a position to get their valuable experience, we do not know.
