

WOMEN DISCOVER WHAT IS LACKING

POLITICAL PANACEA FOR TROUBLES IN TREASURE STATE IS FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

WHEN WOMEN VOTE ALL WILL BE JUST LOVELY

The Professional Boodler Would Not Look to the Women Constituents for Tools With Which to Carry Out His Ends—Apropos of the Coming Suffrage Convention in This City.

Speaking of the state suffrage convention, to be held in this city next Wednesday and Thursday, Miss Laura A. Gregg, who will attend from Helena, has this to say in a letter:

"There will be quite a large delegation from Helena at the convention, and I am delighted to know that Butte is preparing to entertain all the delegates so hospitably. The program, as prepared by the committee—Mrs. James Sanders of Helena, Miss Elizabeth Peoples of Lewistown and Miss M. E. O'Neill of your city—is one of the best offered a state convention in the West."

Mrs. Green Majors, president of the Butte club, in an interview this morning said:

"There is not a doubt in my mind but the enfranchisement of the women in Montana would go a long way toward lifting the state out of the corrupt methods now in vogue here. Why, look at the condition now confronting the voters—the hand of every man seems turned against every other man, and it looks as though the campaign was to be one of personal revilement rather than one based on principles and the rights of the people. Down in Colorado, since the women of that state have been granted the ballot, precinct meetings are held in the homes of the citizens instead of in back rooms of saloons and down dark alleys."

What We Need in Montana.

"This is what is needed in Montana. It seems as though enough men (?) are purchasable so that the powers that be can form all sorts of machines, leaving out the honest man who casts his vote for right and justice. The 'purchaser' of men would look elsewhere than to the mother of the home, when desiring a tool with which to work out his own ends. Yes, we need women to vote in this state, that they may give moral courage to the men, to offset the boodle element now so strong and that sits as a bird of prey waiting to devour the honor and manhood of our state."

The program will be completed today and ready for publication tomorrow. Hon. J. D. Flenner of Boise, Idaho, will attend the convention as a guest of the Butte Suffrage club, and will deliver an address on the subject of "The Idaho Woman in Politics." This will be of interest, in view of the fact that Idaho has woman suffrage in that state. Several of the leading politicians of the city will also appear before the convention and deliver short addresses.

DUKE OF KAKIYAK IN POLICE COURT

SPANISH NOBLEMAN ENTERTAINED BY JUDGE BOYLE, WHO DOES HONORS HANDSOMELY.

HIS GRACE HAD BEEN TO A BANQUET, IT SEEMED

For He Was in a Beastly State of Intoxication—Will Be Lodged at the City's Expense for Some Time to Come—The Merry Grist Judge Boyle Turns Out Each Day From His Mill.

Had the Duke of Kakiyak been attending the King of England's coronation instead of the police court, he could not have been more polite than he was this morning when Judge Boyle called his case.

The fact of the case is the duke was too polite for his own good. His extreme courtesy caused him to bow low to the court and his jag did the rest; the duke pitched forward and landed squarely on his pate before the bar of justice describing a complicated geometrical figure, while the spectators fairly howled.

It took Judge Boyle fully five minutes to recover his composure and the duke five more. Then Sol Levy hustled the duke off to a cell until he could sober up sufficiently to tell the court how it all happened and the grinding of the police grist mill went merrily on.

The Duke of Kakiyak is a well-known character in local police and saloon circles. It is said—the duke himself says so—that he is descended from the blood royal of Portugal, but however this may be, the duke doesn't fail to get drunk just like the bummiest of the bum.

Billposters in Court.

Thomas Lawson is a billposter and incidentally was a defendant in police court this morning. Lawson was arrested on the complaint of T. J. Harnois, who represents the Montana Billposting company. There has never been any great amount of brotherly love wasted between Lawson and the rival company, but matters reached a crisis yesterday when Harnois defaced some large posters that Lawson had put out for the management of Columbia Gardens. Not satisfied with this, Harnois went before Justice Arnold and had Lawson's money that the garden's management owed him, attached; then he had Lawson arrested on a warrant.

Lawson took 24 hours in which to plead. He took occasion, however, to tell Judge Boyle that Harnois was persecuting him with the intent to run him out of business.

He Swore Huge Oaths.

Jack Straw plead guilty to the charge of using vile language at the corner of Main and Park streets. He had been arrested by Policeman Cook, who told Judge Boyle that Straw insulted several ladies who were passing at the time.

"I will let you go with a $10 fine this time, Straw," said Judge Boyle, "but the next time you come up here on such a charge you might as well place the syllable 'de' before your name, for I will destroy Straw's liberty for a long period."

Straw paid the fine and went out wondering what Boyle meant.

After Martin Burg had been fined for making loud noises and Charley Walker had been acquitted for vagrancy, court adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock when the daily matinee will be held.

GRICE SPOILS HIS GAME BY CRITICIZING BOYLE

Attorney for Lane Might Have Won Point Had He Not Accused Judge of Unfair Methods.

Judge Boyle has set the case of E. J. Lane, charged with having assaulted 14-year-old Mabel Casey, for September 18. The court decided on that date after hearing a heated argument between Assistant County Attorney Yancey, for the prosecution, and Attorney John R. Grice, for the defense.

As stated in yesterday's Inter Mountain, Mr. Yancey asked for a continuance of the case which precipitated a pyrotechnic display of oratory from Mr. Grice. The latter objected to a continuance.

Judge Boyle would probably have given more attention to the argument of the defense had not Attorney Grice insulted the court by insinuating he was conspiring to send Lane to the penitentiary. It was then the judge promptly interrupted Grice and set the case for the 18th.

HAMILTON IS TO HAVE BETTER TRAIN SERVICE

Bitter Root Valley Town Will at Last Secure the Attention of the Northern Pacific.

Prominent officials of the Northern Pacific railroad are considering the matter of a better train service for the city of Hamilton. Recently the matter was brought to their attention, and it is believed that before long the pretty city of the Bitter Root will have such railroad accommodations as its importance as a shipping point deserves.

Heretofore the demands for increased railroad facilities from other sections of the country have been so great that Hamilton's claims in that regard could not be met. Authoritative information is obtainable to the effect that at last Bitter Root towns turn has come and that the railroad company will act soon.

HERE IS A CHANCE TO SECURE A FRAU

GIRL ON BANKS OF THE WABASH FAR AWAY WANTS TO MARRY MAN FROM MONTANA.

OFFERS TO COME ON IF THE DEAL CAN BE MADE

She Wants to Be Somebody's Darling and Is Willing to Come on and Try Her Luck, If Money for Ticket Is Forwarded to an Address Which Is in the Hands of Inter Mountain.

From a little town in Indiana comes a strange missive to the Inter Mountain and one that ought to be of consuming interest to the young marriageable men of Montana.

It is the plaint of a love-lorn maiden from the banks of the Wabash, who has grown weary of the sycamores and the candle lights immortalized in the song. Perhaps this being hay-time, the scent of new mown hay, too, has something to do with the mood which prompts the maid to offer her heart and hand to one of the young gallants of the Treasure State.

To show that the lady means business, she submits the information that, in October, there will be an excursion from Chicago to Butte, round trip for $30, good for 20 days. Perhaps, like Mark Twain's request for the 75-cent bible, she would just as soon have the 75 cents or the $30; but this is unkind to the lady from the Wabash, whose letter overflows with poetic sentiment and shows that she is a creature possessed of a soul, a mind and a large, juicy and well developed gall.

She Is Worthy but Lonely.

In her request for the publication of the letter, she heralds herself as a "really worthy but lonely woman," and cautiously asks that her town and maiden name be concealed from the sensation loving public. She continues with the same caution to relate that she is "anxious to find a worthy husband and has been advised to do this by a lady who found a noble man in your state." It is to be hoped that her correspondent is not one Jess Lester who occasionally finds a man more or less noble.

There is either considerable sincerity in the letter or an admirable quality of buncoism. It does not appear, for instance, that the fact that the excursion ticket from Chicago which is for a return trip and is good for 30 days, is a vital point in the bargain. Perhaps the lady thinks that 20 days would be as long as anybody could live with her, or perhaps she thinks that 20 days would be as long as she could abide with a "gallant young man from Montana in the golden month anywhere he may designate."

She Means Business.

"This is in real earnest, and means business," says the maiden fair. "No advertising in the slightest," says she. "If the lady is willing to travel over the mountains and through the valleys, gentlemen of Montana, you should give her a responsive greeting."

"With much love" is her conclusion, which shows that she has love to spare. It is hereby distributed in the fullness of its lucidness to the readers of the Inter Mountain in compliance with the request of the lady from Indiana.

"I know that there are many fakes abroad in the land," she continues, "but a man in real earnest will always pay cash fare." If there is any reflection to be cast upon the purport of the letter, it falls right in this paragraph. Miss Indiana seems to have experience in the ethics of newspaper proposals. She knows a lamentable familiarity with the sincerity of those who put up the cash in advance.

She Is a Lady.

She opens up her universal proposal with the statement that she has heard that "Montana has more marrying men than any state in the union," and adds that "in the grand state of Indiana not a stone's throw from the Wabash lives a lady—mind you Mr. Editor, I say a lady," she adds in a parenthesis, but does not submit any affidavits, "Good, kind and true." There is a suggestion that she meant kind, sound and gentle. "This lady is well-born, has been well reared and very finely educated and thinks congenial companionship greater than all" (this unfortunately shows more experience). She is "good looking and appreciative. Is neither young nor old, but in that happy medium (good Lord deliver us) you know the age," she says. Yes, we know the age and for the success of the lady's marital ambition, we shall refrain from further criticism.

She Knows How to Work.

"Knows every and all kind of work, can and will make a happy home for some lonely and waiting heart," are the concluding words. There is a postscript: "Will tell you all when you write."

Now this is where she makes the fatal mistake. If she tells too much it may take away the glamor from the housework and the appreciation and the happy medium and the rest of it.

It's a wise woman, however, that knows just how much to tell, so, go it, young lady from the Wabash. We leave you to the young gallants from Montana and to your own salvation or destruction.

For reasons that are apparent, both the name and residence of the "medium-aged" lady are withheld. They are on file in the desk of the sporting editor and may be secured from him by the gallants when they arrive.

PLUMBERS AND ENGINEERS LIKELY TO HAVE TROUBLE

Men of the Hot Lead Claim Certain One of the Fly-wheel Craft Robbed Them of a Good Job.

Trouble is still brewing between the local unions of plumbers and stationary engineers and unless representatives of the two unions get together and adjust their differences, some warm times may be expected.

The trouble started when some pipes in the engine room of the Olympia Brewery needed repairing and the regular engineer did the necessary repair work. The plumbers claimed the work should have been done by one of their craft and the plumbers' union fined the offending engineer. The stationary engineers, however, stood by their member and the matter came to an issue.

It is likely that a temporary flag of truce will be raised and that the trouble will come to an amicable settlement.

SETTLE LIVINGSTON MATTER

Believed Machinists' Strike Will Be Compromised Within Two Days.

Vice President Thomas L. Wilson of the Machinists' International union is in Livingston, and it is believed that the strike among the machinists of the Northern Pacific shops will be settled within 48 hours. Today Mr. Wilson will confer with Superintendent of Motive Power Mitchell, who arrived here on the early morning train from the West.

The situation remains practically the same. Fifteen of the men have been working since Saturday, but the majority refuse to return to work. Vice President Wilson states that the strikers acted hastily in going out without first submitting their grievance to higher authority, and that they all should have returned to work as directed by the international officers pending an adjustment of their trouble.

PRINTING TRADE CONVENTION

Election of Officers Closes Meeting of Allied Bodies in Pittsburg.

With the election of officers and the selection of Atlantic City as the next place of meeting, the convention of the printing trades, which have been in session during the week, ended yesterday. The Typothetae elected Edward Stern of Philadelphia, vice president. The electors elected George H. Benedict of Chicago, president, and the photo-engravers chose Benjamin Wilson, Jr., of New York, as president.

The Typothetae voted for the proposed new contract with the pressmen, by which all disputes will be referred to a joint committee of arbitration. This committee also will have full power to enforce the acceptance of their decision.
