LITTLE PROBLEM CAUSES A MIXUP

HOW TOM O'RAFFITY AND MAX HANNEWALD DISAGREED ON DISTANCE TO BUTTE.

TWENTY MILES FOR TWO IS TEN MILES APIECE

At Least That Was the Way O'Raffity Figured It and When the Hollander Ventured a Contrary Opinion, the Son of Erin Proceeded to Climb His Frame and Do Him Up Right.

Judge Boyle was kept busy for a solid hour this morning in police court adjusting the troubles of the host of Sunday offenders. Sol Levy marched into court at the head of his cohort of prisoners as a captain would lead his company on the field of battle.

Then the fun began.

The first man up was Tom O'Raffity, a Corkonian with the unmistakable Irish mug. Tom was charged with being a vagrant of the tramp order and incidentally with having walloped Max Hannewald, a Dutchman, on the road between Anaconda and Butte.

"Tom," said Judge Boyle, "if your appearances count for anything you are certainly a vag and if poor Max's face can be taken as evidence you must have given him an awful beating. What have you to say?"

"Begorra, yer honor," replied Tom, moving nearer the bar of justice and scowling at Max, "it's not me that's a vag. That limberger cheese-eating Dutchman mout be a vag, but not me, bedad."

Birds of a Feather.

"Were you not found on the road with him, Tom?" asked the judge. "If Max is a vag, you must be one too for you were both engaged in the occupation of counting cross ties and 'birds of a feather flock together.'"

Tom was insulted on being placed in the same category with a "bloody Dutchman."

"An' faith, yer honor, om O'I to be placed in th' same class wid er Dutchman because O'I was found in his company? It's meself that's not proud of sich company. An' if yer honor please, O'I'll explain how it was OI come to be wid de cheese ater.

"Yer see, OI set out from Anaconda on me way to Butte an' whin a few moiles out OI comes on Max. He was comin' my way too. Whin we gits a ways out, we comes to a house an' OI axes the mon in the door how fur it was to Butte. Says he to me, says he: 'It's 20 moiles.' Then says I to Max: 'Come on Max, an' we'll walk it fer the distance is only 20 moiles an' that's only 10 moiles apiece.'"

He Just Had to Climb His Frame.

"Thin, yer honor, the bloomin' Dutchman laughs at me an' says a Irishman don't know how to calculate. Uv course OI jumps 'im thin an' bates him fer insinuat' that a son uv St. Patrick can't calculate as good as a bloated Dutchy."

When the laughter had subsided the court heard Max's side of the story, which was to the effect that Tom had beaten him unmercifully because he tried to explain that the distance would be 20 miles for both and not 10 apiece.

Max looked as though he had just emerged from a Kansas cyclone. Both eyes were blackened and his lips and cheeks were swollen.

Tom O'Raffity was sincere in his belief that Max deserved the beating he got, but that didn't help the case, for Judge Boyle annexed a fine of $30.

Then came a long list of drunks. Most of them pleaded guilty and were fined the regulation $5. Others took 24 hours in which to plead and were returned to jail to sober up.

DEVOTIONAL SERVICES IN ST. PATRICK'S KIRK

Forty-hour Series Begun and Priests of Neighboring Towns Gather to Aid in Preaching.

St. Patrick's church has begun its devotional services and at 5 o'clock this morning the first services of the day were held, to be continued each hour through the day.

The 40-hour devotional service will continue until tomorrow evening. It is an event of great significance to Catholics, as on this occasion consecrations are made and renewed and the bond of religion strengthened.

Priests from neighboring parishes are in attendance on the services and an immense congregation is constantly present. At 10 o'clock this morning Father Lightem of Anaconda will preach, and this evening Father O'Farrell of Townsend will officiate. At tomorrow morning's services Father Thompson of Boulder will speak and the closing service of the 40-hour devotion will be conducted in the evening by Father Atken of Philipsburg.

MEXICANS ROUT THE INDIANS

Marauders Attempting to Drive Off Cattle Are Badly Beaten.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Hermosillo, Mexican, Sept. 15.—The authorities here have received word of a desperate battle between a band of 30 Yaqui Indians and a party of Mexican farmers near Tomatal.

The Indians were on a foraging expedition and were attempting to drive off a lot of cattle when a number of farmers of the locality banded together and attacked them. Six Indians were killed and four captured. Two of the farmers were injured.

Hennessy's Millinery Opening Today Showing Fall and Winter's Choicest Pattern Hats

From Paris, London and New York This week we have on exhibition the loveliest assortment of Trimmed Hats ever shown. Our modiste, Mrs. Raleigh, having just returned from the millinery centers of Europe and America, where she personally selected these charming creations, is more in touch with the freaks of fashion and knows better than those who have stayed at home what the world's society leaders are wearing.

Stylish Hats for Little Our own workrooms, under the supervision of Mrs. Raleigh, have made up several very stylish hats, suggested by foreign productions, that we can sell at a most moderate figure. Hundreds of New York hats that look like Parisian styles at less than half the price. Come and see.
