

IN CLUBDOM

The West Side Shakespeare club met at the home of Miss Coffin on West Broadway Tuesday evening, when the members continued the reading of "The Tempest," taking the third act of that celebrated story and drama. As Trinculo says, "This is the tune of our catch, played by the picture of No-body." After this followed the usual discussion of current events and an interesting talk by Miss Ada Madden on "Club Work" that was greatly appreciated by her attentive listeners.

Next Wednesday evening the club will meet with Miss Crossman of Diamond street.

Butte Girls' Club.

The Butte Girls' club, whose doings are always watched with interest by club women generally, met with Miss Amy Cain of South Jackson street on Wednesday afternoon, when a business meeting was held and new members, Miss Eulalia Ferrell and Miss Georgia Walker, admitted.

The club will meet next Wednesday with Miss Eva Anderson at her home, No. 514 East Mercury street.

The Homer Club.

The Homer club enjoyed a very interesting afternoon Monday at the home of Mrs. Charles W. Clark. In the discussion of current topics the first mentioned was "Clubs and Club Houses," giving pointers on what had been done and was doing in other cities; on how the unfortunate czarism of Russia, who like the beautiful Josephine, the faithful wife of Napoleon, may have to suffer divorce; on Mascagni, the great Italian musician and some of his compositions; on Russian colonies in the United States and Alaska; and on these and other subjects were discussed.

Mrs. Hennessy read some very interesting extracts from a letter received from a personal friend, who is thoroughly con-of flirting, but whose head and heart are in the right place.

The Woman's Club.

The Woman's club held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon at the usual time and place. Many invited guests were present and a larger number than usual of the club's members, making an imposing crowd.

Under the charge of the art department the program started with the reading, by Mrs. T. J. Heine, of an excellent paper on "English Art."

Mrs. Green Major followed with a dissertation upon pottery from the earliest times to the present, and entertainingly displayed several pieces from her choice collection to point the moral and adorn the tale.

"A Trip Through the Studios of the East" was the subject of a bright talk by Mrs. G. E. Clark. After an intermission of a few minutes, Madame Charlotte de Golliere Davenport, a noted celebrity, famous in Europe for 40 years as an exponent of mental and physical science, entertained the large gathering with a talk that captivated every one within the sound of her voice.

Madame Davenport is truly a wonderful woman of vast experience and boundless knowledge. Doubtless few living persons are as well posted in the secrets of her art and the proper means of applying them for the betterment of mind and body as this noted Russian, a master of several languages and sciences as well as a deeply read physician.

In her eloquent address she dwelt on the influence of mind over body and the health of the body over the mind, and explained many things, of which the average listener had no conception. Madame Davenport showed how water should be drunk, how much, when and why. She noted the necessity for mothers to impart knowledge of the laws of life and health to their children and the necessity, too, for of the new club had passed off successfully from start to finish.

Judging by the remarks of the fair young guests, they will be watching for the next function with the hope that they may be amongst the favored few to receive invitations.

The club members attending the dance were Messrs. John Corrette, James Glover, Adolph Heilbronner, Garfield Perrier, Arthur Berry, Mac O'Brien, Guy Davison, Howard Kelly, Jack Wortman, Dan Hanley, Harry Tallant, Arthur Marks and Arthur Mueller.

Their guests were the Misses Bess Skyrme, Mamie Driscoll, Martha Fish, Grace Noyes, Erma Charles, Helen Tilton, Genevieve Davis, Kate Sullivan, Ethel Berry, Mollie Walker, Charlotte Russel and Laura Ginthrup.

The party was chaperoned by Mrs. J. R. Russel and Mrs. J. M. White.

versant with the affairs of the day and has studied Russia under its many phases.

Mrs. J. R. McCracken read a very able paper on the "People of Russia," written by Mrs. G. Tower, who, unfortunately, was too ill to be present.

Mrs. Hennessy's paper on "The Old Capital" interestingly narrated the historical points of interest in Moscow; described it as it appears today and gave predictions for the future.

"Moscow boasts of a long descent, for it was founded in the twelfth century and became the capital of Muscovy in the fourteenth." She told how it was three times ravaged by the Tartars, on the first occasion by Tamerlane, and on the last occasion, 300 years ago, under unutterable circumstances of horror, when the city was reduced to ashes and 100,000 perished by fire and sword.

It was given to the flames in 1812, when Napoleon thundered at its gate.

"Moscow may be called a city of domes, all are gilded or gaily painted, presenting a most enchanting scene. That Moscow has had a great, as well as tragic history is known to all." Those best acquainted with the Russian people predict that a still greater future is awaiting her.

"The Slavonic spirit of Russia is fast emancipating itself from Teutonic thralldom and the aspirations seems to be gathering force that Moscow, once the capital city, should be reinstated in its ancient place of honor."

Mrs. John Forbis took as the theme of her sketch "The Kremlin," an old fort in the heart of the city of Moscow, telling how it was enclosed by a strong wall of earth and wood in 1300, replaced by stone in 1367 and fortified by strong towers in 1462, and how Napoleon in 1812 tried unsuccessfully to blow up parts of the old fort. The Spass Klya (Savior's Gate) erected in 1491 and religious observances connected therewith were graphically described. Several other prominent points received attention and were well illustrated with stereoscopic views which told their story without words.

The Homer club will hold its next meeting on Monday with Mrs. Charles Clark, when the chief theme will be "Music and Musicians of Russia."

all women to understand themselves, stating that "health is the foundation of all happiness." One should build up vitality for the conditions of the times to its greater need in the future than in the past. At the close of her impressive remarks none could find words to properly express their appreciation of her kindness in favoring them with such a brilliant exposition of things of which many knew so little, and more wished to know so much.

The Atlas Club.

The Atlas club met Friday afternoon with Mrs. A. J. Daum of Meaderville. Mrs. Hopkins read an interesting paper on the "Death of Ferdinand," and Mrs. Peters took for the subject of her essay "Peace of Westphalia; Its Results and Its Provisions." Both readers were complimented on their excellent papers. Next week the club will have a social day with Mrs. W. W. Wishon on West Quartz street.

Saturday Nighters.

The Saturday Night club will meet this evening with Mrs. W. J. Christie in South Excelsior, who promises an interesting talk on Mission memories and jaunts in California.

Literary Feast Promised.

The literature department of the Woman's club meets Tuesday, October 27, at 2:30 in Elks' hall parlor. Program, papers by Mrs. W. H. Nichols and Anna Dane Kirkwood on the writings, life and characteristics of Mark Twain, magazine reviews by Marion E. Kellogg. Tea and favors will be served by the entertainment committee, Mrs. D. A. Dickson, Mrs. D. Reinhardt and Mrs. I. P. Panton.

Butte Boys.

The Butte Boys' club met Tuesday evening with Marshall Harnois. After discussing current events Ray Bishop played a solo on the piano and Marshall Harnois gave several recitations. The young men had a most enjoyable time and the club adjourned to meet next Thursday evening with Fred Sheffield, No. 617 West Galena street.

There were a number of interesting talks at the meeting of the Woman's club in Elks' hall yesterday afternoon and the session was both interesting and well attended. The meeting was under the auspices of the art department of the club and there were three papers read on the subject of art.

Mrs. T. J. Heine read on English art, Mrs. Green Majors talked upon the potteries from the days of the ancients to the present and Mrs. G. E. Clark chose for her topic, "A Trip Through the Studios in the East."

After intermission Madame Charlotte de Golliere Davenport was introduced and gave an entertaining and instructive talk on physical culture and mental training.

Current Topics Club.

The current topics department of the woman's club met Tuesday afternoon in Elks' hall, the members displaying considerable enthusiasm in the carrying out of the work assigned to them. In "Everybody's Magazine" was an article entitled, "The Woman Who Fails." This Mrs. J. D. Simons reviewed most intelligently. The article was written by the Van Yverts, members of which family have at different times filled positions as working girls, to properly appreciate the trials and tribulations of the classes, whose mode of existence or well-being, was under investigation.

The good work of Jane Adams in Chicago and her paper, as read before the Los Angeles clubs last spring, were discussed. Mrs. C. C. Rueger made a very interesting talk on "Misdemeanors of Nancy," an American girl, somewhat fond musician just returned from Leipzig.

Dennis Driscoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Driscoll of West Granite, fell from his pony on Wednesday last and broke his arm.

Mesdames Scanton, A. Davis of Bozeman, Bell, Scallon, Jr., A. Anderson, C. J. Ferrell, A. Hobart, Miss Bowen, Mrs. Stole and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Knight entertained at dinner, Thursday Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Barber, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harper, Mrs. K. Turberville, and Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Blackburn.

Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Blackburn entertained at dinner at the Finlen Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Barber, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Harper and Mrs. K. Turberville.

Afternoon tea seems to be quite the thing this season. During the past week Miss Thorton, Miss Horgan, Mrs. Huneke and others entertained a few friends over the teacups in an informal manner.

Professor Leamy entertained some of his young friends in the High school at dinner this week when wild duck, presented to him by Dr. Monahan of the Goldberg block, proved most toothsome.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirkpatrick of Connecticut, with their two sons and daughter, are coming to reside in Butte. They have taken the Vivian house on West Park street. Mr. Kirkpatrick is interested in mining.

Mrs. G. E. Moulthrop entertained a few friends at her home in North Alabama street Wednesday afternoon. The prize, a beautiful hand-painted plate, was won by Mrs. Weimesary. The players were Mrs. J. F. Weimesary, Mrs. D. Porter, Mrs. Wetzstein, Mrs. J. R. McCrackin, Mrs. G. M. Sinclair and Mrs. G. E. Moulthrop, near Columbia gardens.

Among the interesting social functions of the past week was the birthday party given by Mr. R. R. Louis at his home at the corner of Porphyry and Washington streets. Mrs. Louis had the parlors tastefully decorated with red roses and the rooms presented a pretty appearance. The employees of the Butte Butchering company presented Mr. Louis with a beautiful diamond ring.

Mrs. J. L. Carroll gives a 5 o'clock tea this afternoon complimentary to Mrs. Stole of Bozeman. Pink roses and graceful ferns decorated the dining table and other points of vantage and, as is often the case when congenial spirits meet to sip that seductive beverage, time just flies. This party, whose names follow, will indorse that remark:

Among the guests who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Nick Bielenberg of Deer Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. Brenner, Mr. and Mrs. Baemforth, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Binder, Mr. and Mrs. Hermann Diestel, Mr. Michael Sullivan, Mr. Thomas Money, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Hampel, Mr. and Mrs. John Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery Mr. and Mrs. D.
