

GUS J. STROMME IS ONE OF THE WINNERS

GUS J. STROMME,

Republican Nominee for the State Legislature From This County.

Gus J. Stromme, one of the republican nominees for the legislature, has lived in Butte for a number of years and is without doubt well qualified for the position to which he aspires. In his case it was clearly a case of the office seeking the man as he was in no sense a candidate before the nominating convention.

Mr. Stromme has never been a candidate for public office before. He has ever been a consistent republican and ready with tongue and pen to defend and advance the interests of the party of progress and prosperity.

DUEL IS SLATED FOR THIS BLOW

Paris, Oct. 31.—An altercation is reported to have just occurred in the lobby of the chamber of deputies between M. Dedion (nationalist) and Gerault Richard (socialist). M. Dedion forbade M. Richard to write about him and made a gesture as though he were about to strike. M. Richard is said to have retaliated by kicking M. Dedion.

DOM PAUL'S IDEA OF BOER TROUBLES

CONTINUATION OF MEMOIRS OF EX-PRESIDENT OF TRANSVAAL GIVEN TO PUBLIC.

CECIL RHODES COMES IN FOR A ROUND ROASTING

Krueger Blames the South African War on Him and Chamberlain and Says the Latter Sent Milner to the Cape to Stir Up Trouble and Give the British an Excuse to Take Up Arms.

London, Oct. 31.—It is understood the Krueger Memoirs, of which a first installment of extracts has already been published in the Times, give a narrative of the diplomatic aspects of the Boer war and advises the Boers as to the best policy to be pursued after Mr. Krueger's death.

A feature of the memoirs is a revelation of the jealousies which existed before the war between the inhabitants of the Transvaal and Orange Free State and the Cape Colony Boers, which prevented anything like a satisfactory mutual understanding.

Mr. Krueger takes pains to prove that he did the most to smooth these differences and prevent the war, but the Boers' inborn antipathy to foreign interference proved too strong for him.

He Has Faith in God.

Mr. Krueger closes his memoirs with these words: "I am convinced that God will not forsake his people even though it appears so, and I acquiesce in the will of the Lord, knowing he will not allow an afflicted people to perish. The Lord hath all hearts in his hand and he turneth them whithersoever he will."

This aspiration is a clew to the contents of the whole book, which is less a source of historical information throwing now or striking light upon the events dealt with, than a "human document" of psychological value, revealing the personal traits of the ex-president.

The memoirs are but a sketchy summary of past events with Mr. Krueger's personal comment thereon.

The installment of the memoirs published in the Times this morning contains some interesting light concerning Mr. Krueger's opinion of various men prominent in South African history. The ex-president was once invited to meet Sir Bartle Freere. He represents that he would be quite willing to do so, if he were told which Freere it was. He declared he knew four Freeres and explained this remark by describing different aspects of Sir Bartle Freere's character as presented by blue books etc., saying his characteristics were friendly, while others were inimical to Boer causes.

Calls Rhodes a Curse.

Mr. Krueger describes the Jesuitical Cecil Rhodes as the curse of South Africa. He says: "No matter how base or contemptible, he it lying, bribery or treachery, all and every means were welcome to him."

Lord Milner, he describes as a "typical autocrat, beyond endurance."

Mr. Krueger declares that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was undoubtedly the late Cecil Rhodes's accomplice in the Jameson raid and that Mr. Chamberlain appointed Lord Milner British high commissioner of South Africa with the direct intention of driving matters to extremes. "This tool of Mr. Chamberlain," says Mr. Krueger, "carried out his mission faithfully and turned South Africa into a wilderness."

British policy in general the former president of the Transvaal sums up in the following language: "Lies, treachery, intrigues and secret investigations against the governments of the republics; these have always been the distinguishing marks of English policies."

Says Cecil Did It.

Mr. Krueger declares the Transvaal national union was under Cecil Rhodes' paramount influence from its very inception, and describes it as having from the very outset used the demand for franchise as a cloak for designs against the republics. He describes how, after the Jameson raid, when the republic was practically defenseless, he became convinced of the necessity of preparing for war, and gradually accumulated war materials.

This was especially the case after the British parliamentary inquiry into the matter, which Mr. Krueger says, showed Mr. Chamberlain's complicity. Mr. Krueger contends that his institution of reforms in 1899 probably started Mr. Chamberlain and impelled Great Britain to hurry on the crisis for fear of losing a pretext for war.

Charges Serious Fraud.

The author of the memoirs asserts that the signatures to the petitions of British subjects in the Transvaal against the so-called grievances were obtained by the greatest fraud, and describes how the franchises are made the question at issue until, writes Mr. Krueger, "in spite of all concessions, all patience and the indulgence of the treacherous, war broke out."

Mr. Krueger said that enormous demands were then made upon his industry; all persons came to him for directions, advice or comfort. There was not a night during which he slept undisturbed and when the burghers grew discouraged, he himself went to the commandoes to restore the confidence of the combatants.

The former president writes that he looked upon the war as not so much of an event, but as rather a sign of the times.

VOLCANO IN INTERIOR OF SALVADOR ERUPTS

But for the Present, No Harm Results Beyond Scaring the Yellow-Skinned Natives Out of a Decade's Growth—Yankee Who Saw It All Tells of a Phenomenon of Everyday Occurrence.

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—M. Felipe Galicia, consul at San Francisco for Bolivia and Guatemala, has received from Guatemala the following cablegram regarding the eruption of the volcano of Santa Maria.

"It is true the volcano is in eruption, but without much damage."

A message from the superintendent of the Ocas railroad states the volcano has been in continuous eruption since October 24, and ashes to the depth of twelve inches have fallen at the terminus of the line. News from points further inland is anxiously awaited.

Officers of the Pacific mail steamer Colon which has arrived here states that when the vessel was lying in the port of Acajutla, Salvador, on the morning of October 16, there was a sudden and violent eruption of the volcano or Isalce twenty miles in the interior of Salvador, and great excitement was occasioned among the peon class.

From the city and Porto great clouds of black smoke were seen to shoot up to a great height from Isalce's peak, whence neither smoke nor fire had come for five or six months.

The natives, when they saw the eruption, anticipated earthquakes and tidal waves, but in a few hours the black cap on Isalce had drifted away and the volcano was again apparently quiet.

WITHOUT BLOODSHED THE REVOLUTION WILL CLOSE

Negotiations Are in Progress to Settle the Columbian Rumpus—Generals Are Sparring for Breath.

Without Bloodshed the Revolution Will Close

Panama, Colombia, Oct. 31.—There is reason to believe that the Colombian revolution will not end with little or no bloodshed. Confirmation from a reliable source has been received here that General Vargas-Santos, the military director of the revolutionists, has been negotiating a treaty of peace in Costa Rica with a representative of the Colombian government.

Last week Vargas-Santos sent a message to General Salazar asking leave to come here to confer with the governor personally today. General Vargas-Santos repeated this request and General Salazar replied by cable, telling him to come. Much is expected from the approaching conference between these men.

It is also a fact that last Tuesday the revolutionary General Herrera sent a communication to General Salazar insisting on a conference with the governor of Panama, and saying that from it he believed peace would result. This message was answered by Governor Salazar yesterday. He said he was ready to meet General Herrera.

General Herrera's desire for a peace conference is undoubtedly a result of the recent surrender at Rio Frio of General Uribe-Urbe, who was one of the most active of revolutionary leaders.

DISAPPEARING CARRIAGE TO GO WITH LARGE GUNS

Commission Appointed by Congress to See to Matter Decides That the Mode Will Do for Weapons.

Disappearing Carriage to Go with Large Guns

Washington, Oct. 31.—Secretary Root has approved the recommendation that the disappearing gun carriages be used in connection with guns of six inch calibre as well as with those of larger calibre. This marks the close of a contention lasting many months among the fortification officers of the war department. The carriage to be used is largely the design of General Crozier, the head of the department bureau. The adoption was announced by General Miles as head of the board of ordnance and fortification.

Congress at its last session, because of the differences, authorized the appointment of a special board to pass on the merits of the invention. That board recommended the use of the carriage in the discretion of the secretary of war for guns exceeding six inches in calibre, but suggested that the use of the carriage for guns of six inch calibre or smaller be suspended.

The suggestion recently has been again under consideration by the board of ordnance and fortifications and in the absence of General Miles the board has agreed to recommend that the line should be drawn below the six inch gun rather than above it; that the secretary has the same discretion with reference to it as he exercises to the guns of higher calibre and that the carriage should be used for guns of smaller bore than six inches.

While opening a box, J. C. Mount of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten-penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he says, "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterwards. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by Paxson & Rockefeller, Newbro Drug Co., Christie & Leys, and Newton Bros., Butte.
