OUT OF WORK AND DOWN ON HIS LUCK

THOMAS M'GOWAN SENDS BULLET INTO HIS BRAIN IN ROOM IN BALTIMORE BLOCK.

Despondent because he could not find work and half crazed by the incessant use of whisky, Thomas McGowan, a miner, sent a bullet crashing through his brain yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in his room in the Baltimore block.

According to the landlady's story McGowan had been out of work for several weeks and had grown blue. He had been an occupant of the Baltimore block for some time, and his room-mate was George McGahan, a bartender.

Yesterday morning McGowan complained to the chambermaid that he was feeling badly. The maid told the landlady and at the sick man's request she started to summon the ambulance from the Boston & Montana hospital.

Before the message could be sent McGowan left the building and was not seen again until late in the afternoon. Shortly before 5 o'clock he entered the room. At 5:30 o'clock a pistol shot was heard in McGowan's room and Officer Parlin was summoned. He entered the room with Chief Reynolds and Coroner Johnson, and the trio of officials found McGowan on the floor with a revolver at his side.

The deceased has a brother and sister in Butte. His mother is out of the city.

An inquest will be held this afternoon at Duggan's undertaking rooms.

IT WEIGHED ABOUT A POUND TO THE INCH

And the Luckless Novitiates Who Staggered Under It Thought It Was a Little Bit Heavier Than the Atlantic Cable Before They Crossed the Burning Sands. Here Are a Few of the Tricks the Shriners Cut Up Last Night.

MAYBE THE SHRINERS DID NOT OWN THE TOWN

Red fire, red robes and a red town was the result of the Shriners' visitation last night. Lurid visions, scarlet ideas and crimsoned records were the effects.

So, too, the results to the novitiates are not of the gossipy order. Bated breaths, brown tongues and unruly digestive organs are the only signs, but they are ample as evidence of what a time it was.

All Butte turned out to witness the sacrifice. Some of them forgot to turn in later, but no official record was kept of the absent-minded ones or their failure to beat the curfew to it. The town was turned over to the Shriners of Algeria temple, and for the time being the camels, the scimitars, the painted mules and the quaking, white-robed novices were held irresponsible for the peace and decorum of the city. There's a difference in the feeling this morning.

It was nearly 8 o'clock last night when the big bell in the city hall tower sounded an alarm of fire and Chief Sanger and his entire department came dashing through a frightened crowd of masked and hooded merry-makers among the Finlen hotel, where the new bunch of pilgrims were corralled and roped. The fire apparatus and the band and escort arrived at the same time, but even the hardened jokers of the densely formed ranks were not prepared for the mad dash down the hill and around the corner into the flying crowd of valiant fez men.

climb the walls of the two hotels and the adjacent buildings.

There was a big crowd attracted by the grotesque display, and by the time the novices were thumped into line and the parade had started back toward the hall of sacrifice the red fire reflected the delighted countenances of hundreds, who united in declaring the spectacle the greatest ever carried out in Butte.

A piper headed the procession, followed by the Boston & Montana band. Then came James Thompson and his horse pistol, followed by the flambeau detachment with fiery streams cutting the dense smoke. The scimitar used was on duty, and then came Frank Conley of Deer Lodge, followed by the ex-mayor of the Ohio river, Billy Gemmel, who led a tamed contingent of Crees through the streets.

The novices were attached to a big rope and guarded by heartless beings armed with studded clubs, who took insane delight in belaboring the unfortunates greatly to the edification of the crowd.

Conspicuous among the lambs being led to the slaughter was A. F. Bray. Just

MAD BATTLE ON ANN ARBOR GRIDIRON

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 27.—With each side determined to use to its utmost every ounce of skill and sinew within its possession, the eleven of the University of Michigan and the University of Minnesota line up against each other on Ferry field this afternoon to decide the western football championship.

Ann Arbor was crowded with an out-of-town contingent, loud and boisterous beyond precedent. Special trains from Minnesota brought 500 loyal rooters for the beely Gophers. Nearly the whole student body of the Ann Arbor institution was present. The streets were a confused pageant of ribbons, megaphones, chrysanthemums and flags. Dr. Williams, the Minnesota coach, was exceedingly British Man-of-War Destroys Five of Them, Just to Show the Natives That They Must Not Put Christians to Death.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. Victoria, B. C., Nov. 27.—According to advices received from Sydney by the steamer Aorangi, H. M. S. Sparrow has returned from a protracted cruise through the South Sea group. During the cruise the warship officers annexed Suwarrow and Ysabel Choiseul islands for Great Britain. At Malietta island five villages of the natives were shelled to punish the islanders for having killed a Fijian woman because she embraced Christianity. With a view to impressing the natives with the seriousness of the crime committed by them and of warning them against a recurrence of such acts, the Sparrow visited five places in the Island of Malietta, namely, Auki, Sio, Uras, Kwai and Port Diamond and at each place the villages were shelled and partially destroyed.

strenuous reformer, did not approve of the décollete fashion in which the society ladies of the metropolis appeared in public.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who is one of the most popular women in the "400," did not take kindly to the "balling out" that she sustained at the hands of the Kansas smasher and it is reported that a very heated argument ensued. But the little woman with her hatchet was not to be deterred and the ardor of the inquisitorial

It is said that she of the Hammer made her inroad on the horse show for the purpose of getting material for her new play, "The Kansas Smasher," and if the episode in question is made a part of that novel production New York's 400 is destined to break into the drama once more.
