

TRIO OF DIVORCE PETITIONS ARE UP

CLANCY HEARS TWO TALES OF DESERTION AND WOE, WHILE HARNEY CONSIDERS ONE.

Three mismatched people told their troubles in the district court today—two in Judge Clancy's division and one in Judge Harney's. In two cases the wives were plaintiffs and in the third the husband.

The case in Judge Harney's court was that of Bertha Mori against Rudolph Mori. It was a simple tale of desertion on the part of the defendant, who a few years ago visited Berne, Switzerland, and married the woman. He brought her to this city, and after about a year and a half levanted, leaving her to shift for herself. The present whereabouts of the husband are not known. A decree of divorce was granted.

In Judge Clancy's court Charles Hunley had a default entered against Clara Hunley, whom he is suing for a divorce. The couple, it is recalled, were married in Cameron, Mo., in 1898. Two years later, it is alleged, the woman deserted her spouse, and he has not heard from her since and does not know her whereabouts.

The other case heard by Judge Clancy was that of Catherine Cook against Forest Cook. This couple, according to the pleadings, were married at Denver, Colo., in November, 1899, and subsequently removed to this city, where, in May of 1901, Mrs. Cook asserts, she was deserted and compelled to live on the charity of friends. She is allowed to resume her maiden name, Catherine Griffith, and is given the custody of a minor child—a boy. The last heard of the husband he was in Denver.

VIEWS WONDERS.

P. railroad pulled out of the depot at 9:25 a. m. Nearly all of those who arrived from Helena last night were aboard, although there were some familiar faces missing. The journey to Anaconda was soon covered and the visitors were gladened by the sight of the smoking chimneys and other indications of activity in the Copper City. Upon the outskirts of town a committee, headed by Mayor Stephens of Anaconda, boarded the train and welcomed the visitors. It was about 10:30 when the train pulled up at the new works. Piloted by William Scallion, president of the Anaconda company; John Gilie and others, the visitors were taken through the great plant. In each of the departments of the concentrator and the smaller the party was met and taken in charge by the superintendent and shown in detail the workings of the intricate machinery that reduces the ore and then separates its ingredients, allowing the useless metals to go to waste and saving the ones of value.

After inspecting the plant the visitors boarded a special trolley train and was whirled into the city for the entertainment provided for the inner man. An elaborate luncheon was served in the Montana hotel at 1 o'clock.

During the luncheon the visitors met many of the prominent citizens of Anaconda. There were a number of speeches by the guests and those who entertained them.

The special is scheduled to pull out for Butte at 4 o'clock, giving all plenty of time to procure dinner.

POISON CASE IS THROWN OUT

Breen Thinks Mrs. Minnie Grady and Mrs. Emma Proulx Went on a Tear and Then Became Ashamed and Tried to Place the Blame for Their Condition Upon Each Other.

Because County Attorney Breen became convinced that Mrs. Minnie Grady and Mrs. Emma Proulx went out on a time and got drunk and disorderly together and then became ashamed of themselves and tried to place the blame on each other, the famous so-called poisoning case which tore up the town last summer, and which had been lying in a comatose state for months, was thrown out of court and closed for all time by Judge McClerman this afternoon.

County Attorney Breen took the extraordinary course of asking the court for leave not to file an information in the case, notwithstanding that ex-Justice of the Peace Arnold last summer bound Mrs. Grady over to answer to the district court on a charge of poisoning and robbing Mrs. Proulx. Judge McClerman discharged Mrs. Grady with the following words:

"The court believes that upon his official oath Mr. Breen would be capable of determining the facts in the case. The case is dismissed."

The request for leave not to file the information recites that a charge was filed against Mrs. Grady April 6, 1902, charging her with poisoning or attempting to poison Mrs. Proulx and with robbing the latter.

It adds that in connection with the charge and the arrest of Mrs. Grady, numerous reports were circulated charging Mrs. Grady with poisoning her husband and son for the insurance upon their lives. A great deal of publicity was given the reports and the county attorney was handed a great deal of gratuitous advice as to how he should proceed in the matter. Requests were made also that the bodies of the husband and son should be exhumed for analysis.

Mr. Breen investigated the matter thoroughly and consulted with the physicians who attended Grady and the boy, and the latter consulted with the insurance company representatives. As a result, Mr. Breen says, he became convinced that the charges in this connection were groundless.

"He recites that he went to Mrs. Proulx's home and talked with her, and that in one instance she told him a falsehood to his own knowledge. Her child, caught the scarlet fever, and the house was quarantined for a long time.

During that period, Mr. Breen said, he was frequently and repeatedly censured through the public prints by the chief of police because he did not file an information or proceed with the preliminary examination of the case. At the preliminary, the request states, Mr. Proulx's private counsel tried to run things, and the county attorney resisted them.

The evidence at the preliminary showed, Mr. Breen said in the request, that the women went out for a ride and took a bottle of whisky with them, and that they drank most of the liquor on the way and had one "hot whisky" at a saloon on the road. It showed that the women disagreed on the road, and that Mrs. Proulx was found unconscious there later.

Her condition might have been caused by poison, Dr. Kenick, who attended her, testified, the request said, but it also might have been caused otherwise. Dr. Kenick testified further, the pleading declares, that Mrs. G. Proulx said to Mrs. Grady, when they were together, "I will send you to the penitentiary for this, and I don't care how long it takes or how much it costs."

The testimony showed that Mrs. Proulx became numb and cold on the trip; that she got down on the ground to walk and increase her circulation, and that Mrs. Grady refused to increase the pace at which she drove. The horse also showed that it had been driven hard. There was also evidence to the effect that Mrs. Proulx wanted Mrs. Grady to drive to a man on the road so that she might get him to "rub her legs" and increase the circulation that way.

Mr. Breen then recites that he investigated the case thoroughly and came to the conclusion that Mrs. Grady and Mrs. Proulx went "out for a time together; that they became drunk and disorderly on the road; that each one was individually ashamed of it and desired to place the responsibility on the other; and he concluded that Mrs. Proulx instituted the action in order to vindicate herself."

He said that Arnold took another view of the case and bound Mrs. Grady over accordingly. He himself did not think that the county of Silver Bow should pay for Mrs. Proulx's vindication, or that a jury would be justified in bringing in a verdict of guilty against Mrs. Grady on either charge against her.

Recently he had received a note from Attorney Parr, representing Mrs. Proulx, saying that the latter would insist upon the prosecution of Mrs. Grady. In view of all the facts and the transcript of the testimony at the preliminary, which was filed with the request, Mr. Breen asked permission not to file the information.

WHAT YOU CAN BUY IN BUTTE MARKETS

As far away as Butte is from the rest of the world, it can boast one of the finest markets in the United States. Fresh fruits and vegetables are to be had in abundance and at very reasonable prices.

This spring the housewives are offered better opportunities than usual to secure something toothsome for the table at very little expense. Prices are comparatively low and the supply of green stuffs is very large.

Quite a bit of "garden truck" has been grown in and around Butte. Lettuce, onions, celery and radishes of a superior grade are grown at Columbia Gardens. As compared with last year, the market this spring is an immense improvement.

There was some apprehension that the formation of the farmers' union would force the price of green goods skyward, but as yet there are no indications of any material change in values. The Chinese gardeners of Missoula have been warned by the farmers' union not to try to sell their goods to the Butte markets, and a great deal of good material will be sidetracked from this city if the Chinese gardeners are not permitted to sell their produce here. The prices of the most common fruits and vegetables are very reasonable indeed just now.

Potatoes bring $1 a pound, Hubbard squashes, 3 to 5 cents a pound; cabbage, $2.50; celery, 5 to 10 cents the bunch; carrots, beets and rutabagas, 11 cents. The above are winter vegetables.

In the fresh green goods, cauliflower is from 8 to 10 cents a pound, lettuce is 20 to 30 cents a bunch, hot-house cucumbers are from 20 to 25 cents each, tomatoes are 25 cents a pound, green onions and radishes, 5 cents a bunch; spinach is 8 1/2 cents; chicory, 25 cents a pound; mint, 5 cents a bunch; carrots, turnips and beets are 5 cents a bunch. Parsley is sold at 2 1/2 cents a bunch, and Brussels sprouts at 21 cents a pound.

A fine line of fruit is offered for sale, most of it coming from California and Florida, though some of the apples and things of that sort are grown in Western Montana. Tangerines bring 25 cents a dozen, apples, 90 cents to $2.25 a box; grape fruits, 10 to 15 cents each; fresh pineapples, 40 to 50 cents each; naval oranges, 25 cents the dozen; bananas, 20 to 30 cents a dozen. Malaga imported grapes are 5 cents a pound, and blood oranges from 20 to 25 cents a dozen.

New York, March 7.—D. Leroy Dresser and Charles Reiss, doing business as commission merchants as Dresser & Co., 15 Wall street, made an assignment today for the benefit of creditors to Charles McKenzie. Mr. Dresser was, until a few days ago, president of the Trust Company of the Republic.
