

TEARS AND SOBS MARK THE VISITS

PITIFUL SCENES ARE WITNESSED AT THE OFFICE OF THE CITY EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

LITTLE GIRL SEEKING WORK

Man in Charge Is Forced to Listen to Many Pathetic Hard-Luck Stories.

"Got any work for a little girl, mister?" The question was put in a childish treble, the voice apparently coming out of the atmosphere at no point in particular. The man who has charge of the city employment bureau laid down his pen and stepped to the window.

"Where are you anyway?" he asked.

"Here I am," answered the voice, and the top of an infantile head appeared above the window ledge.

Only 10 Years Old.

The clerk glanced downward and beheld a little girl about 10 years old, who clung desperately to the ledge and turned up a tear-stained face to the window.

"Why, you're pretty young to be looking for a job, ain't you?"

"I'm 10, goin' on 11, and I can sew some, and oh, mister, please give me a job. I have to get some work today!"

"Well, maybe I can fix you out with something, how would a job at dishwashing strike you?"

"Anything 'tall. I want to work right away."

"What's the hurry?" inquired the man at the window, with an indulgent smile.

The child's lips trembled, and she took a firmer hold on the window ledge to sustain her balance.

"That's the second little girl who has been in here today," said the clerk, as he turned from the window.

"The first one was a foreigner. She had about the most consistent run of hard luck of any one I have seen for a long time."

"She came out West with a sister, looking for work. It seems she was engaged to be married in the old country, when her father died suddenly, and there was nothing left."

Breaks the Engagement.

"The man she was to marry was disappointed to learn she would have no dowry, and called it off as soon as he could. Her mother married within a short time, and she was left alone in the world, with the exception of a sister who was already living in Montana."

"The sister wrote advising her to come to Butte, which she did. When she arrived in the city she was as near 'broke' as she well could be. Her sister was not to be found, and the kid was 'up against it' right."

"She was just about 6 years old and couldn't get work anywhere. Finally some one sent her around here and I secured her a place as dishwasher in a private house at board and $8 a month."

Comes in Crying.

"I didn't see her again until she came in here crying one day about a month later. It seems she forgot to feed the puppy one day and another time she had the misfortune to drop a glass dish and break it."

"So at the end of the month the woman discharged her and held out the $8 for damage done."

"There are too many of those hard-luck stories that it is hard to keep track of them. Usually we can fix the victim out with something, but now and then there is a case which is beyond us entirely."

LAST OF THE TRIBE EXPIRES

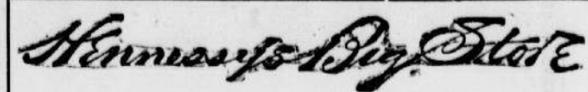

James Truax of the Watnongs Goes to His Reward.

New York, July 2.—James Truax, said to be the last of the tribe, a once numerous Indian tribe, is dead at the almshouse in Morristown, N. J., aged 96 years.

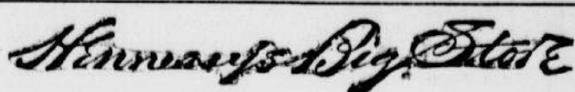

The vigor of his voice and the Indian warwhoop which he had learned as a youth remained to the last. It was this warwhoop which he made his presence known whenever he found occasion to visit Morristown. His whoop could be heard for a mile if the wind was favorable.

Shortly before he passed away he stood on the summit of Trawbridge mountain, where the almshouse is located, and let forth whoop after whoop, which was distinctly heard in Morris Plains, two and a quarter miles distant.

He was a scout in the union army during the civil war, and was highly thought of by General Meade, to whose personal staff he was attached.

MANY PERSONS WILL TRAVEL

Railroad Ticket Agents in Butte Busy Answering Questions.
The up-town office of the railroads have been busy places for two days attending to the wants of prospective travelers.

At one time today in one of the offices there were 15 persons in line waiting to talk with the man who hands out the tickets.

Not all wanted tickets, or at least not all of them made purchases. Many made inquiries about rates to mining points in Utah and Colorado and the West generally, while not a few want to know about the cost of travel to Alaska, and even to far away Australia.

"We have had more inquiries about tickets than we have sold tickets," said one ticket agent, "but if this keeps up there is bound to be quite an exodus from the city within the next few days."
