

FALLS 70 FEET FROM EAST FREIGHT

Yet Northern Pacific Engineer Lives to Tell the Tale.

IS NOT BADLY HURT

Train Is Going at a Very Fast Clip When He Drops Off.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN. Livingston, July 18.—Engineer Jack Smith is recovering from a severe shock to his nerves, sustained Monday, when he escaped a horrible death by a miracle.

Smith fell from his engine while it was making 30 miles an hour and rolled down a 70-foot embankment.

Marvelous to relate he escaped with only a few bruises.

Helped out up the grades by another locomotive, Smith was pulling a heavy train from Billings about midnight Monday.

Near Elton one of his boxes got hot and he climbed down the steps of his engine to turn water into the warm journal.

Lost His Balance. The train was going at a fast clip and the heavy locomotive swayed fearfully. Grown careless from years of practice, Smith did not keep a hold. He lost his balance and fell off.

The train went on without a hand at the throttle for a mile or more, as the fireman was employed elsewhere.

Smith's absence was not discovered for several minutes.

Thought Him Dead. The fireman, returning to the cab, and finding Smith gone, immediately stopped the train and backed up. The crew kept a sharp lookout from the rear engine, expecting to find Smith's mangled remains on the track.

They ran slowly back to the point where the fireman had left the cab, but saw nothing. Knowing then that the accident must have happened further up the grade, they retraced it.

Heard Him Groan. Not far from Elton, in a great fill-in, they heard groans. Descending the cliff they found Smith lying at the bottom, unconscious. He had fallen more than 70 feet.

The engineer was brought to Livingston where it was found that he had only been slightly bruised.

DONOVAN A BENEDICT NOW

Montana's Attorney General Weds Miss Adelaide Spencer.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN. Great Falls, July 18.—Word has been received here that Miss Adelaide Spencer of Great Falls and Attorney-General James A. Donovan of Montana were married yesterday at Aurora, Ill.

Miss Spencer is a daughter of David Spencer, a local merchant. She left here for Chicago a year ago, to train her voice. She has a magnificent contralto and has been offered a trial in grand opera.

The bride has known Attorney-General Donovan for a number of years.

The Seen and Unseen. The dog of an infidel being offered the usual choice of the Koran or the sword, forthwith chose the Koran.

"Then you see the error of your way?" exclaimed the pious Moslem.

"When it's either the Koran or my finish," replied the other.—Detroit Free Press.

BONES OF MONSTER MASTODON EXHUMED

PRINCETON SCIENTISTS AND STUDENTS MAKE A GREAT FIND NEAR BIG TIMBER.

STOOD EIGHTEEN FEET HIGH

Had Fallen to Musty Hunters of the Prehistoric Age, as the Flesh Had Been Chopped From Bones.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN. Big Timber, July 18.—Princeton scientists and students at work on Fish creek, in the northern end of this county, have exhumed the bones of a mastodon.

This is the first skeleton of the sort ever found in Montana and the paleontologists say it is the first to be found so far south.

Prof. Marcus Farr of Princeton is at the head of the expedition. They came here primarily to hunt zoological specimens, believing that the bones of many prehistoric animals might lie in the strata about this section. But a mastodon was beyond their highest hopes.

He Roamed Montana. Prof. Farr says the discovery will prove of great interest to the scientific world. It shows that mastodons once roamed this section. And not so long ago, either, as the animal's bones indicate that he lived somewhere about the eighth or ninth century.

The animal was a formidable beast. He must have stood about 18 feet at the shoulders, much larger than the elephant of today. He had tusks, but no trunk. His feet were probably 38 inches in diameter and any living thing on which he trod was crushed like an egg.

Good Hunting. There is little doubt that the Indians once hunted these great beasts. The one found had been killed for food, for upon its bones here and there are the marks of a rude weapon, showing that his meat was chopped off.

Admiration for the doughty hunters who had nothing more effective than bows and arrows and spears springs involuntarily into the breast of him who gazes on the remains of a mastodon.

Many was the dusky-skinned nimrod who was torn to shreds by these great beasts and many were the brave deeds done and the cruel deaths bravely met in the wild mountains of Montana.

NEW ELECTRIC LAMP

Filaments Are Placed in Tubes Instead of in Bulbs.

A brand-new pattern of electric lamp is just now being put on the market. The filaments, instead of being in ordinary bulbs, are enclosed in a short straight tube about nine inches long; the filament has a small curl in the middle to allow for expansion.

These tubes are mounted end to end in a metallic casing, which serves as a reflector, and also carries the leads and sockets into which the lamps fit. There is thus produced a single line of light, which is very suitable for certain forms of illumination, such as shop window lighting, lighting by reflection from the ceiling, decorative illumination and the like.

The lamps are made for all ordinary voltages, and of the same candle power and efficiencies as ordinary lamps; they are run in parallel for voltages up to 120, but for voltages above 200 the lamps are run in pairs, the two lamps of each pair being in series. The system has been tried on several occasions recently with very satisfactory results.—New York Commercial.

LITTLE THINGS OF USE TO DETECTIVES

COLOR OF AN EYEBROW OR THE TURN OF A NOSE GIVE THEM A CLEW.

THIEVES ARE OFTEN CLEVER

But They Meet With Men of Brains in the Detective Service and Have to Hustle Hard to Escape.

New York, July 18.—"I can easily spot a pickpocket in a crowd," said one of New York's detectives, who had been attached to the detective bureau at police headquarters for the last 15 years, in conversation with a reporter the other day. "It is not necessary that I know my man by sight first before I can spot him.

Clever Disguises. "A thief, as a rule, you know, has a habit of glancing frequently over his shoulder in a furtive manner to see that he is not being watched, and it is by that habit that a thief has often betrayed his occupation to me.

"Frequently I have had to track and identify men whom I had never seen, my only means of identification being a photograph taken years ago. This is usually very difficult to accomplish, however, as it is easy for the criminal radically to change his appearance.

"It is possible for a man to pose as a sailor, a farmer, a Bowery tough or a pastor, within 24 hours. Many criminals make a specialty of disguises, and I can assure you they can alter their appearance to a remarkable degree.

"Disguises, however, no matter how cleverly got up, do not always conceal a man's identity. There are, for instance, the color and expression of the eyes. These cannot possibly be altered, and they have been one of the most frequent aids in identifying fugitive criminals.

"Another identification mark, although not an infallible one, but one, nevertheless, by which I have on several occasions detected a criminal when other means failed me are the cheek bones. Like the color of the eyes, they cannot be changed.

"Descriptions as to the weight and circumference of a 'wanted' man frequently prove faulty and, therefore, unreliable as aids to detection. This is especially so where a man has evaded the detectives for any great length of time, for it is possible that during his evasion the criminal may have lost a good deal of his weight and corpulence, while, on the other hand, a spare man may have gained in avoirdupois and bulk.

In such cases, however, I have in one or two instances established the identity of the man I was after by his ears. As a rule, the worst criminals have oddly shaped ears, and no matter how cleverly they may disguise themselves they can seldom succeed in concealing their tell-tale earmarks from the detective who has already made their acquaintance.

"The eyebrows also afford another means of personal identity, because they are invariably distinctive and characteristic to the trained detective. About three years ago I captured one of our cleverest crooks, a man who has served many terms in Sing Sing, by the peculiar slant of his eyebrows. At the time I arrested him he was wearing a wig and flowing black false beard. The disguise might easily have deceived the casual observer, but to me there was one thing lacking to make it complete; he had forgotten to alter his eyebrows, and they almost gave me the cue to his identity.

"Clever criminals, after making perhaps a rich haul somewhere, will pay liberally for effective disguises. A few facial artists in New York City could tell you of the handsome prices they are frequently paid for make-ups."

GOES TO SHED HIS SKIN

J. H. Price, Who Puzzles Doctors, Returns to His Philadelphia Home.

J. H. Price, the Philadelphia man, formerly a resident of Butte, who has attracted attention in the medical world and furnished a subject for columns of newspaper stories, was in the city today.

Mr. Price is noted as the man who annually sheds his skin, a phenomenon unheard of in medical circles.

It is about time for him to have his annual separation from his cuticle, which is due July 24, and he returned home today to be ready for the strange event.

He has shed his cuticle at public exhibitions in this city on several occasions and pieces of his skin have been exhibited here more than once.

When asked why he did not allow the shedding operation to take place here again he said it was necessary for him to return home today.

TWO INDIANS WHO ARE REALLY RICH

"FISH GUT" AND "DOG RUMP" PRESENT CHECKS FOR NEAT SUMS AT MALTA BANK.

HAVE LAUGH ON LOUNGERS

To Amusement of Everyone, Indians Write a Good Hand on Paper and Go on Their Way Rejoicing.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN. Malta, July 18.—For the first time in the history of this section, a full-blooded Indian has drawn a check on a national bank.

Fish Gut and Dog Rump, two Blackfeet, today entered a Malta institution and drew checks for neat sums, accruing to them as the result of horse sales.

To the surprise of everyone, both Indians wrote a fair hand. They seemed ashamed of their names, however, and would have preferred to assume some other titles.

But as the checks were made out in their Indian names, they could get the money no other way.

Raise Good Horses. The Indians are partners and have a good business, as their horses are generally in demand, despite the fact that they are raised on the range and run almost wild. It is commonly reported that Fish Gut is worth $10,000 and Dog Rump is said to be not far behind.

The two rode up to the Malta bank today on their scraggy ponies, which they did not hitch, but allowed to stand at the door. Then, while a crowd gathered to see the fun, they entered the bank with a grave demeanor and presented their checks.

No Great Penman. Fish Gut stuck his tongue in his cheek when he signed his name, but made a fair signature notwithstanding. It took Dog Rump 10 minutes to master the seven letters of his name, but it was quite legible and rather ornate when finished.

Then they put their money in their leather pouches and went on their way rejoicing, with the laugh on the crowd most of whom do not possess 1 per cent of the wealth of these doughty aborigines.

This would mean ruin to San Francisco. With Marshall, Zearfoss, Houtz and Weaver off the list the Frisco team would look as slim as the living skeleton in swimming.

The team has been crippled of late, owing to a number of players going to Portland to move their belongings to Salt Lake.
