The house was prettily decorated with pink and white carnations and asparagus vines. The Stevens quartet was present and gave a few delightful songs. Many gifts were made the youthful hostess, also good wishes for many returns of the day.

An out-of-town event of interest to many friends in Butte was the marriage of Miss Alice Belle Murta and Dr. Coral Ray Armentrout. The marriage took place in Keokuk, Iowa, July 20, and was one of the social affairs of that city.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murta of this city and granddaughter of Col. J. A. Vial. She was born in Helena, but passed most of her life here, where she has many friends.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Dr. J. C. Armentrout, one of the leading physicians, and is associated in medicine with Dr. Ruth of the College of Physicians in Keokuk. It is the intention of Dr. and Mrs. Armentrout to visit the parents of Mrs. Armentrout within a few weeks.

Many handsome presents were received by the happy couple.

Alfred Hamerican and Miss Lena Nelson of Walkerville were quietly married at the parsonage in South Butte M. E. church. Rev. J. W. Tait performed the ceremony.

Wedding cards are out announcing the coming wedding of Miss Beth Sheba Stormes to Edwin Lyman Ensign. The

Let me go where'er I will, I hear a sky-born music still; It sounds from all things old, It sounds from all things young, From all that's fair, from all that's foul, Peals out a cheerful song. It is not only in the rose, It is not only in the bird, Not only where the rainbow glows, Nor in the song of woman heard, But in the darkest, meanest things, There always, always something sings. 'Tis not in the high stars alone, Nor in the cups of budding flowers, Nor in the redbreast's mellow tone, Nor in the bow that smiles in showers, But in the mud and scum of things, There always, always something sings. —Emerson.

A delightful Garden party and dance was that given by Miss Patti Armstrong with Miss Ethel Eisenberg as honor guest Tuesday night at the Gardens.

Those who attended the affair were: The Misses Patti Armstrong, Leah Harney, Olive McDougall, Ethel Eisenberg, May Hanley, May Mahoney, Stella Steve, Clara Chase, May Dugan, Pearl Kennedy, May McMillan, Della Oppenheimer, Frances Carroll, Tina Largey, Frances Nuckolls, Olive Hall, Rena Amos, Julia Dawson, Jennie Gindrup, May Green, Erma Charles, Maud Willis, Lillian Sheehy, Grace Noyes, Mabel Peterson, Alice Nichols, Frances Nichols, Agnes Hughes, Bessie Hammer, Emma Gerner, Viola Cook, Elsie Fiebel, Etta Furmerton, Grace Campbell, Mabel Merriman, Anna Holberg, Nell Fair, Kit Fair, Ethel Berry, Elma Erickson, Sadie Jonas and Erma Eisenberg; Alexander Schloesser, Herbert Hughes, Ben Hammond, Lena Early, Creighton, Largey, Joe Early, Dan Hanley, Mildred Curtis, Jack Gibbons Thomas, Calvin James, Arthur Sampson, Henry Trevelyan, Fred McAuburn, Roy Hofer, Tom Whalon, John Curtis, Jack Christy, Fred Hammer, Will Hammer, Will Greene, Lawrence Alexander, Ed Hyland, Boyd Heimerding, David B. Blumstein, Fred Hinkle, Julius Jonas, Ira Peters, Frank Mullins, Irvin Payne, Howard Kelly, Arthur Sampson and Lou Mills.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining the youthful guests by Mrs. J. A. Long, Mrs. Eisenberg and Miss Conley. Early in the evening the girls went out to the Gardens and took lunch and later the young men joined them at supper. The evening was ended in the pavilion, where dancing was enjoyed by many of the guests.

One of the surprise parties of the week was that given Miss Marguerite Skelly Monday night. Several small friends gathered at a neighbor's with an abundance of good things in the baskets, then descended upon the to-be hostess. Those present were:

The Misses Julia Hickerson, Nora Barker, Ina Erickson, Esther Carpenter, Julia Barry, Cora Monahan, Florence Monahan, Edna Monahan, Edith Haggerty, Mary Deah, Mabel Haggerty, Lillian Martin, Julia and Hazel Costello, Cary, with Lester Sylvester, Jim McNulty, Phil O'Brien, Harry Seaman, Frank Martin, Clarence Martin, Ed Reeber, Frank Martin, Bert Reeber, Ed Monahan, Melvin Bach, Willie Young, Claude Cary, Billy O'Brien, Ray Young, John Barker.

One of the outings of the week was that of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Graves and a small coterie of friends as their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Clark, Mrs. McDonough of Chicago, sister of the hostess, and Mrs. Sybil Williams made up the party and the day was spent in the pines and canyon of the Maud S.

Mrs. Fred Holgrand and children of Helena and Mrs. Charles Sanders and children of Drummond are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Wortman in South Alabama street, and other relatives in this city.

Miss M. M. Wolfe, national organizer of the Florence Crittenton circle, has been a guest in the city during the past week. Miss Wolfe is a resident of Washington, D. C., and is touring the Western states in the interest of the organization.

The charity ball was a success. It was given under the auspices of the Clerks' Protective union and the list of patronesses was made up of many of the most influential women of the city. Beautifully gowned women, fine music and a large assemblage added to the brilliancy and charm of the evening. A sumptuous supper was served in the cafe, and the event was one of the most delightful of the season.

During the sessions of the Grand Temple of Bathbone Sisters this past week many outside guests were in the city. The entertainment given the outside delegates was entirely informal, but none the less pleasant. There are a number of lodges of the order in the city and each member constituted herself a committee of one to welcome the strangers.

This has been a week of every day delight to the children. Nearly every day hundreds of them were taken for outings, picnics and garden parties.

Their merry shouts were heard early in the morning as they drove toward the canyons and in the late evenings as they wended their way home again—tired, but still shouting and laughing. These days in the woods is the elixir of life to the small girl and boy. It would seem that the desire to make conditions brighter for all children seems to be running like a wave over the city. It is no longer left in the hands of individuals to bring moral sunshine into the lives of the little ones, but all kinds of organization as well as companies hasten to see that days among the trees and flowers and things are bestowed upon the children.

Next to the churches and schools, J. R. Wharton, representing the Street Railway system, has been found foremost in making possible to entertain the children amidst the finer things in nature. Low rates with admission to all pleasures and sights of the Gardens have been graciously given by him and most gratefully enjoyed by not only the children, but the mothers also, with an occasional father to break the feminine monotony.

The picnics given by the various churches during the week included one by the Welsh, the First Presbyterian, the Walkerville Methodist, the St. Paul's M. E. church, south, and the Centerville M. E. church.

These were varied by days at the Gardens and in the mountains immediately surrounding the city. It is seldom that a pale skinned child is seen on the streets of this city. They are all burned a delightful brown and their eyes shine with the vitality and health found in plenty of out-of-doors play and freedom.

Card Party Markers.

New ideas in tally cards for the summer euchre players are usually gratefully accepted. For these little parties one wants something novel, and there are so many different styles of tally cards that are new to most people.

One of the newest of these is a little red pin-cushion, made in the shape of a heart; large white pins are used for the counters. Something on the same idea, and nice for souvenirs afterward, are tiny little scent bags. These little bags are very effective in orange and black, fastened to tallies with a bunch of orange ribbon.

Japanese fans with strings of glass beads hanging to them for counters are also very novel and pretty. For the woman who does not like to sew, but is quick with a brush or pen, there are unlimited possibilities. Among these, pieces of water-colored paper, cut and colored to represent pieces of watermelon, are effective. Holes are punched through the card, having ribbons with tiny black dolls, or any little trinket, according to the maker's taste.

Then there are cards upon which clippings from magazines may be pasted, and it is surprising what aid the advertising section lends for this purpose, for a few lines added in ink make the little pictures look like a pen and ink sketch.

Then the beech-bark tally is always a pleasant reminder of summer. If the bark proves unruly moisten and press with a hot iron and then cut it into hearts.

EFFICACY OF ROSES TO CURE SICK NERVES

In one of the communications to the Chicago Tribune, Marian Martineau dwells upon the efficacy of the scent of roses to cure weak nerves. She says:

"If you are inclined to scoff at the efficacy or scents, just stop a moment and consider. Have you never, in your early days, seen your grandmother sniff the camphor bottle? Have you never sniffed it yourself? Are the uses of smelling salts, hartshorn, and all the keen little odors of the salts bottle unknown to you? And have you not benefited by the using of them?"

"Now, working on the lines that scents are good for the body, nerve patients are doing a great deal for their patients, and wonderful cures are being wrought."

"And among these is a cure which the Viennese have for being 'out of sorts.' The woman who is out of sorts in Vienna, and who applies to this hospital, which is called by a term which in our language means a sanitarium, is conducted to a room, and there she disrobes, puts on a loose robe, and lies down upon a sweetly scented couch, on which there are dozens of sweet pillows and a scented coverlid. She is given a book to read, while the attendant hurries away with her clothing."

"In an hour everything is brought back to her sweet and fresh, and, as she dons her gown again, the patient smiles and sniffs gratefully. Her clothing has been sprayed with an essence of rose, and after the spraying, which was a thorough one, the clothing was aired and sprayed again. After this a pressing iron was run over the clothing, if necessary to restore it and take out the dampness. The patient goes forth deliciously scented, and the cure upon the spirits is said to be perfect."

Women who have weak nerves or who have received a shock of any kind should scent the hair and the skin with lavender water, and should sniff the perfume of lavender as much as possible.

In the summer time, when contagious diseases are abroad, the woman of delicate constitution cannot do better than to carry with her a smelling bottle of sweet odors. Said a well-known specialist concerning the smelling bottle:

"The smelling bottle is one of the most useful articles a woman ever carried. It is worth its weight in gold in the matter of reviving the spirits, and as for the prevention of contagious diseases, it is far beyond price."

"Do not think that the smelling bottle will cure a disease, but it will prevent it. At a certain summer resort, where scarlet fever broke out two years ago, all of the summer boarders were advised to carry about with them a bottle of lavender salts and to inhale from its depth frequently."

The theory was that the pungent odor of the lavender kept away the disease, and that no germs would approach within smelling distance of the lavender. Germs and insects of all kinds dislike strong odors, and there is no better way of keeping them at bay than by scattering perfumes about, scenting the clothing with them, inhaling them, and otherwise securing their presence.
