HE IS DYING FROM HURTS RECEIVED ON GRIDIRON

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
New York, Nov. 11.—Raymond McVeigh, 18 years of age, a member of the Cadillac football team, lies at the point of death at his home in Brooklyn from injuries received in a game November 3. When the game took place, there was a bruise over his right eye, but he did not complain.

Several days later he was found unconscious on the floor of his bedroom and grew rapidly worse. The doctors say his brain was injured and he will probably die.

DAN PATCH HAS AGAIN LOWERED THE RECORD

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 11.—Dan Patch paced a mile on a half-mile track here in 2:03 3/4, lowering the only world's record for pacers outstanding against him. The previous record to this was 2:03 3/4, held by Prince Alert.

Cobweb, the runner that paced Dan Patch, faltered on the turn, just before entering the stretch, and but for this Dan Patch would probably have made the mile in less than 2:03.

The time by quarters was: 30 1/2, 1:01, 2:12 1/4 and 2:03 3/4.

With the exception of a slight breeze blowing down the stretch the weather was ideal. The track was hard and fast.

CRESCUS FAILS IN HIS ATTEMPT TO LOWER IT

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—Cresceus yesterday afternoon failed in his attempt to break the world's trotting record of 2:08 for a mile on a half-mile track, making no better than 2:12 1/4. Conditions were unfavorable. Besides the fact that the wind was blowing hard and track not perfect, the stallion was slightly lame.

SIDE LIGHTS ON THE DAY'S SPORT NEWS

"Sporting Editor Inter Mountain: Please inform me about the fight between Jack Munroe and Peter Maher. I have a bet on the fight and am anxious to know." "SUBSCRIBER."

Jack Munroe fought Peter Maher in Philadelphia last Saturday night. Munroe landed a knock-out in the fourth round of what was scheduled to be a six-round bout.

There has been much discussion relative to the most dangerous blow in boxing. There is no most dangerous blow.

Each fighter is a method unto himself in that.

Bob Fitzsimmons uses a "hook," which has killed a man—Con Riordan.

It is delivered with a crooked and stiffened arm accompanied by a swing of the shoulder. The blow lands full on the point of the jaw and carries its impetus with it after the moment of impact.

This jolts the jaw-bone up against those of the skull, and was the same as that which put Jim Hall "out" for half an hour at New Orleans.

"Kid" Lavigne hastened the death of Andy Bowen with a straight uppercut under the chin, which threw back the head with a jolt sufficient to jar the nerve extending from the base of the brain to the spinal column.

Kilrain was near to death under the force of that severe body blow which John L. Sullivan found so effective.

Guydo, the French boxer who met Jeffries in Paris, is said to have spit blood after a blow in the stomach, from the effects of which, with other complications due to the injury, he died.

Those who witnessed the agonizing expression on the face of Jim Corbett at Carson when struck on the solar plexus by Fitzsimmons appreciated how near a strong and perfectly trained athlete may be to death as the result of a well delivered and powerful blow near the heart.

Jack Johnson is now clearly the champion of the colored heavyweights. His defeat of Sam McVey in a 20-round contest leaves him almost without a disputant in his particular class. Although he failed to put McVey out, he had the better of the fight after McVey had made a good early showing.

Johnson has a good string of victories to his credit. He has scored over George Gardner, and has demonstrated his ability to beat the colored men in his class. He is still regarded as the strongest opponent for Jeffries now on the boards. There is not a chance for the colored heavyweight, however. Jeffries will not fight him, and if Johnson gathers any more glory it will have to be over men other than the champion.

It is a crude fighter with a great amount of strength. George Gardner explained his failure to beat Johnson by saying that the colored man had too much weight for him. Johnson, according to Gardner, depends upon his size and strength to rush in and land a blow by main force and then clinch. He repeats these tactics time after time, not giving an opponent a chance to do anything.

The big fellow is very anxious to get a try at Jeffries. And there is no good reason why the champion ought not to accommodate him.

Can it be possible that at last Bob Fitzsimmons finds the weight problem a problem for him?

It has always been his boast that he neither took on nor off weight, and to those who knew him the boast made no hole in the facts.

It was the only man who held two championships, the middle and heavy, and could make the lesser weight and be plenty heavy enough for the greater.

But now there is a sad note from the coast that the old man is going the way of all healthy flesh and has become fat.

Joe Gans is hammering away at his proposition to box "Young Corbett."

Gans' last appearance against a feather-weight champion was when he fought Terry McGovern at Tattersall's, Chicago. Although that fight was a fake, Gans still claims that it was on the square. If Gans could not stop McGovern, how does he expect to stop Corbett?

A match between Gans and Walcott looks like a good proposition. Both men have had records, but both are acknowledged to be great fighters. Both are agreeable to the battle, and it may be fought in December at Boston. The weight proposed by Gans is 140 pounds at ring-side, which ought to suit Walcott, considering what he has done in the past.

Walcott, in his fighting career, has met "Kid" Lavigne and "Mysterious" Billy Smith, and has gone down to a lower weight than Gans asks. It is true also that Walcott has found the lightweights too much for him, perhaps because he weakened himself to make the weight.

In 1895 Walcott fought Lavigne at 133 pounds at Maspeth and lost in 15 rounds. He met Lavigne later at San Francisco and lost in 12 rounds.

The high salaries that have prevailed among ballplayers will soon be a thing of the past. With the expiring of the present contracts there will be a cutting down all along the line. Once more has the grasping player killed the goose that laid the golden eggs. Little or no mercy was shown the club owners by the stars while the two major leagues were at war, but now it is different. The boot is on the other foot, and before long it will begin to pinch.

It is the same old story of 1890 all over again. Then it was the players themselves, and they got all that was in sight, and in some cases more, for it had to be produced to satisfy their greed. Capital got tired, and withdrew its support, and the National League again took hold. Down came the salaries with a thud. It will be the same way again, and the players have no one to blame but themselves. To pay their prices and other expenses makes it impossible to run a team except at a loss.

WILL CORBETT BOX?

IMPRESSION IS THAT HE IS TRYING TO DODGE HIS BOUT WITH EDDIE HANLON.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—Is Eddie Hanlon to be deprived a return match with Young Corbett, who enjoys the proud distinction of holding the championship? The indications point this way, which will be somewhat of a surprise to the local sports who supposed the match was clinched copper rivets. Hanlon was the good Indian, and agreed to all of Corbett's terms in order to meet the champion whom he feels he can master the next time they hook up.

Eddie did not care so much about the terms as he did for an opportunity to fight. The weight, which is usually the hardest thing in a match to agree upon, Hanlon conceded everything. Corbett said, "I'll fight you at 129 pounds at 6 o'clock." Hanlon replied: "All right, come on." Hanlon can fight at a lighter notch, but he was afraid Corbett would balk if he proposed anything lower. Rather than have him slip away he allowed Corbett his own weight. In the matter of purse Hanlon said: "You can split the money to suit yourself. You can have it either take all or divide the money equally. I don't care."

While these negotiations were going on Hanlon was not aware of the fact that Corbett, whose eye for business is as sharp as his eye to land a knockout punch in the ring, was bickering with the Hayes Valley club, under whose auspices the fight was to be held. What Corbett was after was a bonus. He received a bonus when he fought Hanlon before, and Morris Levy was ready to give him a second dose of the same amount, but Corbett said this was not large enough. He insisted on Levy increasing the bonus, which the club manager has refused to do. Hence there is grave danger of the match going by the boards and Corbett not returning to California next month. Corbett is a hard chap to do business with right now for the reason he is making money as if by magic and making it easier than he would by fighting Hanlon again.

"It looks to me as if Corbett wanted to crawl out of the fight," said Hanlon yesterday, who returned from the country this week. "Here I gave in to him on everything, and then he won't come around. I don't object to the club giving him a bonus, but he should not want everything. He ought to be reasonable. I don't know how big a bonus he got the first time, but it was pretty fat. I want to fight Corbett for two reasons. In the first place, I am after the championship, and in the second place he would draw more money than any other fighter. If I don't get him I don't know whom I will fight next."

JIMMY BRITT WINS

LITTLE TROUBLE IN SECURING DECISION FROM CHARLES SEIGER IN TWENTY ROUNDS.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—Jimmy Britt, the California light-weight, easily secured the decision last night over Charley Seiger, of New York. There was no stage of the contest in which the issue was in doubt.

In all but the 14th round, Britt had a clear lead. He outpointed, outboxed and out-generaled Seiger at every stage of the game. Britt created havoc with Seiger's stomach with left hooks, which he landed time and again.

He varied this during the latter stages of the contest by working his left to face and soon had Seiger bleeding copiously from the nose and mouth. Britt timed his blows and seldom failed to reach some portion of Seiger's anatomy.

The 14th round was the only one in which Seiger had a chance. Toward the close of this round he succeeded in landing two wild swings on the Californian's jaw, one partially flooring him, and the second sending him to his knees. The bell rang at this stage, but Britt went to his corner without showing signs of distress. He came up fresh in the 15th round and once more began his plan of outpointing the easterner.

From this on Britt seemed to grow fresher, and as the fight advanced, there was a noticeable increase in the power behind his blows. Britt employed his left almost continuously throughout the fight, but when the opening presented, he used his right to great advantage. Seiger put up a game fight and his ability to take punishment was marvelous. Time and again he seemed on the verge of going out for good, but always came back and forced the fighting. Britt left the ring without a mark, while Seiger presented a pitiable appearance. His mouth, nose and eyes were badly cut and his body plainly showed the effects of Britt's left hooks.

MARY COLLINS DISCHARGED

Lowenthal Fails to Prove That She Took His Money.

Mary Collins, charged with grand larceny, was discharged yesterday in Justice Colligan's court. It was charged against the woman that she, while employed at the York block, had relieved J. Lowenthal, a lodger, of the sum of $60.

Lowenthal alleged that he dropped the money in the bath room and that the Collins woman got it. There was not sufficient evidence produced yesterday and the defendant was discharged.

SWEETEST THINGS

What are the sweetest things on earth?
Lips that can praise a rival's worth;
A fragrant rose that hides no thorn;
Riches of gold untouched by scorn;
A happy little child asleep;
Eyes that can smile though they may weep;
A brother's cheer; a father's praise;
The minstrelsy of summer days;
A heart where anger never burns;
A gift that looks for no returns;
Wrong's overthrow; pain's quick release;
Dark footsteps guided into peace;
The light of love in lover's eyes;
Age that is young as well as wise;
A mother's kiss; a baby's mirth—
These are the sweetest things on earth.

AFTER THE RECORD

DUFFY IS GOING TO TRY TO DO FIFTY YARDS IN A VERIFIABLE FLASH.

Arthur F. Duffy, the fastest sprinter the world has ever seen, will make an attempt to reduce the world's record for 50 yards at the big indoor meet of the Missouri Athletic club in St. Louis, Mo., December 10.

Ever since the palmy days of Lou Meyers, when he astonished the world by traveling the 50 yards in 0:05 1/2, athletes have every year attempted to reduce the record, but have always failed. The nearest approach to Meyer's record has been 0:05 3/5, but many have been unofficially timed in from 5 seconds flat to 6 seconds and over.

In 1901 Duffy ran the distance in a 50-yard invitation race, at the Georgetown University meet, in 0:05 flat. James E. Sullivan of New York, who was referee of the meeting, would not allow the record, as he claimed Duffy beat the gun. The Georgetown sprinter did leave the mark in a very fast manner that night, and afterward acknowledged that he was a trifle faster than the pistol.

Although the "champ," as he is known to his friends, has been compelling athletes to lose championships year after year, he seems to hold his speed in a remarkable manner, and only last summer broke the English, Scotch, Welsh and Irish record for the hundred-yard dash. Not only that, but Duffy ran a hundred in a grass track in 0:09 4/5 three times, a most remarkable feat, and had he not been taken ill the day before the Birmingham sports, he would probably have equaled his record of 0:09 3/5 for the hundred.

The outcome of the St. Louis race will be watched for all over the country. Duffy will compete in a 50-yard invitation and will meet Frank Scheuber of Harvard, who beat the Georgetown wonder at the Boston Athletic club meet at Boston in a 40-yard dash in 1902. At the time Duffy was a trifle fat, though the Harvard man won the event in a world's record time.

JUSTICE APPEALS TRIED BY A JURY

JUDGE HARNEY IS ENGAGED IN THE HEARING OF CASES UP FROM THE LOWER COURTS.

SUIT AGAINST SHORT LINE

Cow Belonging to E. B. Sabin Is Killed and He Wants Damages—Other Matters Before His Honor.

Judge Harney continued trying justice court appeal cases in his court today, with the aid of a jury.

The case of E. B. Sabin against the Oregon Short Line Railroad company went to trial. Sabin sued the railroad company for $85 because a cow belonging to him was killed on the road. He got judgment in the justice court, and the railroad appealed to the district court.

A good part of this forenoon was devoted by the court to listening to the lawyers argue law points in the action, the jury being excused in the meantime.

Before opening this trial the court dismissed a number of other justice court appeals.

The case of Tim Shea and Carl Kerr against the Frank Commercial company was dismissed because of the default of the plaintiffs this morning, neither of them appearing in court.

The suit of Fred Arbour against the Colorado Smelting & Milling company was settled.

The court dismissed the suit of William Richards against Samuel A. Hall, doing business as Hall Bros., because of the default of the plaintiff who did not appear for the trial.

Judge Harney is rapidly disposing of his justice court appeals.

LITTLE TIM HARRINGTON IS TO FACE DISTRICT JUDGE

Tim Harrington has escaped from the industrial school three times. It is a rule of the school that three escapes place the child in line for the reform school. He will be tried in Judge McClernan's court possibly tomorrow.

Bill of Interrogatories

Judge McClernan settled the bill of interrogatories of five witnesses from the state of Oregon this morning. These interrogatories were the result of depositions taken in the case of Stephano Farrar. Attorney Newton is looking after Farrar's interests, while Mr. Lynch represents the state.

Blood Diseases

Bad Blood Blood Poison

There is no human disease, hereditary or contracted, that requires prompt or more heroic treatment than specific or contagious poison in the blood.

Hot spring baths, specific remedies, potash, mercury and other mineral mixtures and poisons may either boil out or drive in the external symptoms for a time, but they can no more eradicate the merciless, killing, all-consuming taint than the fabled fountain of Ponce de Leon produced perpetual youth.

There is no better evidence of a bad condition of the blood and unhealthy state of the system than a sore that won't heal, or a festering, discharging ulcer or abscess. There are many ways by which the blood may become contaminated and poisoned. The excessive use of mercury in certain diseases, inactive kidneys and torpid liver, exposure and lack of nourishing food, weaken the constitution and cause the system to become congested with impurities which are taken up by the blood, and wherever the flesh is bruised or scratched a festering sore or discharging ulcer begins. A boil or blister, pimple or burn often develops into a frightful looking sore because of the unhealthy condition of the blood, and the place will continue to grow and spread, finally reaching the bones and causing them to decay unless the blood is purged and purified and the system thoroughly cleansed of all morbid and unhealthy accumulations. This cannot be done with washes, salves and soaps, which only afford temporary relief. The only way to get rid of these disgusting evidences of impure blood is to remove the cause.
