ENDS DESPONDENCY BY SUICIDE ROUTE

RESTAURATEUR CHARLES ROSS DECIDES THIS LIFE IS NOT WORTH THE LIVING.

PUTS BULLET IN HIS BRAIN

Quarrel With His Wife and Debt Said to Be Responsible—Had Been a Heavy Drinker of Late.

In a fit of despondency, it is supposed, due to family troubles and financial embarrassments, Charles Ross, proprietor of a restaurant at the corner of Front and California streets, committed suicide about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in his sleeping room at the rear of the dining room of the restaurant. He died at 7 o'clock in the evening at Murray & Freund's hospital, where he was taken for treatment.

Ross' act of self-destruction was apparently premeditated and carefully planned. He had been despondent for several days and had been drinking heavily. To a friend, Sam Aytte, keeper of a saloon at 177 East Park street, he stated a few hours before he committed the deed that he intended taking his life, but Aytte paid little attention to the threat, as Ross appeared to be in a maudlin condition as a result of drink.

Family Troubles.
Ross' despondency had its origin primarily in family troubles. He was married about two years ago, but after a few months he and his wife separated, the latter then applying for a divorce. Ross had many times since pleaded with his wife to return to him, but she refused to do so. She went to Missoula and there opened a restaurant. It is said that she has prospered.

Ross had been a heavy drinker and the separation from his wife appears to have precipitated him into still further excess. Neglect of his business followed, and within a short time he was seriously embarrassed with creditors pressing upon him from all sides for money. He placed a mortgage of $4,000 on the building he owned and also mortgaged the furniture and fixtures in the restaurant and rooming part of the house. Claims amounting to several hundred dollars had been filed in the court against the property and he had been threatened with foreclosure by many creditors the last few days.

The fast accumulating load of trouble finally became too heavy and Ross decided to end his life. Returning to his room from uptown about 3:30, shortly after his visit to Sam Aytte's saloon, when he told Aytte he intended shooting himself and showed the latter the weapon he intended using, he drew from a trunk his best suit of clothes and hid them on a chair, together with a clean white shirt and collar, and with a picture of himself and wife before him, he lay down on the bed, placed the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

Heard the Shot.
The women who were employed in the restaurant, Dora Eckerlund, Julia Allis, Eleanor Church and the housekeeper, Mrs. Daly, heard the shot and timidly approached the room. They found Ross curled up on the bed with the picture of himself and wife before him and the smoking revolver beside him on the bed, groaning and bleeding badly.

The police and coroner were notified and the dying man was hurried to Murray & Freund's hospital, where an attempt was made to locate the bullet, which failed. Ross was weak from loss of blood and only half-conscious. He tried several times to speak but could not make himself understood. He sank gradually until at 7 o'clock he died. An examination then showed that the bullet had entered the base of the brain through the mouth.

On the dead man's person was found $86.20 and a gold watch. It was said that he had more money in his possession, but this could not be found. It is also said by some that the man's real name was not Ross, but this could not be verified.

In answer to a summons sent last night Ross' wife came down from Missoula this morning to take care of the remains. Coroner Egan will hold an inquest over the body at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Sherman undertaking rooms. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

TO GO AFTER LYDIA GOULD

Sheriff Quinn Expects to Take Requisition Papers to Denver.
Sheriff Quinn will leave for Denver tomorrow for the purpose of returning Lydia Gould, the big colored woman who ran away from here with a charge of robbery hanging over her, to Butte. He will get requisition papers for Lydia from Helena before he starts.

Officer Barney McGillicie is in Denver now, having gone there several days ago to prevent Lydia from securing her release from the Denver jail and leaving that city.

OPENING OF THE WEST SIDE SKATING RINK.

The management of the new rink, corner Alabama and Galena streets, announce that their rink will be open this week, just as soon as cold weather comes. Everything is in readiness and fine skating will be assured when freezing weather comes. Quite a novelty is advertised for the opening night, which will be Thanksgiving night, when there will be a grand illumination, fireworks and a brass band in attendance. Large and well heated waiting rooms have been arranged for ladies and gentlemen, and every possible accommodation will be extended to patrons. School children will be admitted every afternoon for 5 cents; general admission for adults, 10 cents.

The management has arranged for several carnivals, races and fancy skating, to take place at intervals during the winter and a pleasant time and good skating is assured to all patrons.

Suit to Foreclose.
John R. Davenport has sued Pat Keele and others in the district court to foreclose a mortgage on a lot and house at 19 East Ogden street and to collect $200.

Anyone who wishes to give a Thanksgiving dinner to a deserving family will please 'phone or call on Associated Charities, between hours of 10 and 12 or 2 to 4.

APPEALS ARE NOW IN COURT'S HANDS

INJUNCTION CASES SUBMITTED TO THE SUPREME TRIBUNAL—EARLY DECISION.

IMPORTANCE OF LITIGATION

Thought Montana's Appeal Court Will Decide the Cases at the Earliest Possible Moment.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Helena, Nov. 24.—The famous MacGinniss-Anaamagated injunction appeals are now in the hands of the supreme court. They were submitted late yesterday afternoon after extended arguments by A. J. Shores, counsel for the Anaamagated company, and John J. McHatton, counsel for the Montana Ore Purchasing company, John MacGinniss and F. Aug Heinze.

It is not known how long the court will take to consider the matter, but in view of the great interests involved there is no doubt but that the case will be taken up at once and decided as soon as possible. The effect of Judge Clancy's decision was to declare the Anaamagated company an outlaw in Montana, and this compelled the company to close down its various plants until it could find out definitely just what its rights were under the law.

Equal Justice for All.
The subsequent opening was brought about by Governor Toole's response to the widespread demand for a special session of the legislature and the passage of some legislation that would insure to litigants the right to have cases removed from courts equitably heard.

The gist of Attorney Shores' argument was given in the Inter Mountain of yesterday. On the question as to whether a corporation could be formed in Montana for the purpose of investing in the stock of another company, Mr. Shores said:

"Suppose a corporation were organized within this state, having $10,000,000 capital, for the purpose of acquiring stocks of other companies of this state to aid in the upbuilding of strictly industrial and productive lines of business. Is there any doubt that it would give a most wonderful growth to the development of the state? Can it be said that such business would be antagonistic to the interests of this state and not beneficial? The laborer, the miner, the agriculturist, all would be delighted to see $10,000,000 thrown into the state to flow through its channels of trade."

Moved to Dismiss.
Attorney McHatton moved to dismiss the appeals on the ground that the rules of the court relative to separate transcripts had not been complied with.

The court will pass on this motion in its decision on the main question.

HIT BY SHUTDOWN

REPORTS OF RAILWAY EARNINGS SHOW HOW SYSTEMS FELT GENERAL DEPRESSION.

That the shutdown of the mines and smelters of Butte, Anaconda and Great Falls would have materially reduced the earnings of the railroads of Montana if it had continued cannot be disputed in view of the statements of the October earnings of the roads.

Advance sheets from the October statement of the Great Northern road show that the earnings of the Montana Central road for the third week in October, or when the shutdown was most complete, fell off 23 per cent. If the shutdown had continued a few weeks more the business of the road would have shrunk still lower and the Eastern stockholders would have had good ground to begin asking questions.

This road was probably hit heavier than any other, excepting, of course, the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific. The Montana Central laid off a dozen or more crews of men, reduced its force in its shops and generally curtailed expenses. If the mines had not resumed very soon there is no doubt the company would have taken off one of the passenger trains between Butte and Havre, leaving only one train a day between those points.

The receipts of the Oregon Short Line and the Northern Pacific-Burlington were of course materially affected also in October, but it is doubtful whether they felt the shutdown as seriously as the Montana Central. The business of all the roads has jumped up rapidly since the works resumed and the railroad men join with the miners and other citizens of Butte in welcoming the return of Butte's good times.

CASES CARRIED OVER

Judge Clancy this morning continued the hearing on the motion to settle the appeal record in the Nipper case, to next Saturday.

The court also continued to next Saturday at 2 o'clock the motion to settle the appeal record upon the court's order refusing the plaintiff an injunction in the case of F. A. Heinze against the Boston & Montana company.

Both matters had been set for a hearing today, Judge McHatton, the Heinze attorney, who is concerned in both cases, was not present, however, and so they could not be heard. The court also was busy with another matter.

Attorney C. F. Kelley appeared in the Nipper case for the defendants and asked for the continuance. Attorney Kyle appeared for Heinze in the other matter, and asked for the continuance in it.

LETTER TOM HORN WROTE TO COBLE

MAY BE TAKEN AS DYING STATEMENT FROM ALLEGED MURDER OF THE NICKELL BOY.

HE DENIES THE WHOLE THING

Horn Says He Never Confessed Killing and That There Was a Deliberate Plot to Inculpate Him.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 24.—When Tom Horn, the murderer of little Willie Nickell, was about to die, he wrote a letter to John C. Coble, the manager of the cattle company for whom he had worked so long. The letter is now made public. It is a strong denial of any complicity in the killing of the boy, and as it was written only a short time before the execution, may be taken as a dying statement. It is as follows:

"To John C. Coble, Esq., Cheyenne, Wyo.: As you have requested, I will tell you all my knowledge of everything I know in regard to the killing of the Nickell boy.

"The day I laid over at Miller's ranch he asked me to do so, so that I could meet Billy McDonald, Billy McDonald came up, and Miller and I met him up the creek above Miller's house. Billy opened the conversation by saying he and Miller were going to kill off the Nickell outfit, and wanted me to go in on it. They said that Underwood and Jordan would pay me. Miller and McDonald said they would do the work, but I refused to have anything to do with them, as I was not interested in any way. McDonald said that the sheep were taken on Coble's land, and I got on my horse and went up to see, and they were not on Coble's land. I promised to stay all night again at Miller's, as McDonald said he wanted to come up again next morning.

"He came back next morning and asked me if I still felt the same as I did before, and I told him I did. 'Well,' he said, 'we have made up our minds to wipe out the whole Nickell outfit.'

"I got my horse and left and went on about my own business. I went on, as John Bray and Otto Plaga said I did, and on the ranch where I got in on Saturday, I heard of the boy being killed there. I felt I was well out of the mischief.

"I was over in that part of the country six weeks or two months later and saw both McDonald and Miller, and they were laughing and blowing to me about running and shooting the sheep of Nickell. I told them that I did not want to hear of it at all, for I could see that McDonald wanted to tell the whole scheme. They both gave me the laugh and said I was suspicious of the whole thing. I knew there was some suspicion against me, but I did not pay the attention to it, so far as I know.

"Horn, who swore I came in to Laramie on the run on that Thursday, just shortly after the fact of the boy's killing, said that all of that supposed confession in the United States marshal's office was prearranged, and everything that was sworn to by those fellows was a lie, made up before I came to Cheyenne. Of course there was talk of the killing of the boy, but LaFors done all of it. I did not even make an admission, but allowed LaFors to make some insinuations. Ombaus, LaFors and Snow, and also Irwin of Laramie, all swore to lies to fit the case.

"Your name was not mentioned in the marshal's office. This is the truth, as I am going to die in 10 minutes.

"Thanking you for your kindness and continuing goodness to me, I am sincerely yours,
"TOM HORN."

SAY DUGGAN IS NOT THE MAN
Livingston Officials Say Suspect Is Not Park County Murderer.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Livingston, Nov. 24.—The Park county officials do not think John Duggan, the man held in Helena on suspicion of being the murderer of Sheriff Young, is the person wanted. Photographs of the suspect have been received here and examined by the sheriff and his officers and by the police.

All agree that the picture does not resemble the man whose description was sent out just after the murder.

Under Sheriff Keller, who was wounded at the same time that Young was killed, does not think Duggan the right party.

FREIGHT TRAINS BADLY WRECKED NEAR ATHENS—HENRY KRUSE SERIOUSLY INJURED.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Kalispell, Nov. 24.—By a rear-end collision of two freight trains in a deep rock cut near Athens, 20 miles west of here, on Sunday night, the engine and snow plow of the rear train and the caboose and a score of freight cars of the other were wrecked and travel was blocked for a long time.

Henry Kruse, who had been with the government survey party surveying the international boundary line, and who was riding in the caboose of the forward train, was badly hurt.

His hips and legs were crushed and bruised, two ribs broken and his head and face badly cut. How he escaped instant death is considered a miracle.

He was brought to the company hospital at Kalispell. The doctors say he will recover. The escape of the people on the engine of the rear train is looked upon as something remarkable.

EXTENDS THE ORDER

JUDGE KNOWLES IS DETERMINED TO HAVE THE MICHAEL DEVIITT CLAIM INSPECTED.

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Helena, Nov. 24.—If F. Aug. Heinze thinks that by blocking access to the workings of the Michael Devitt mine, contrary to the order of the federal court, he can prevent the Butte & Boston company making the examination it wants to make in connection with pending legislation, he will find out his mistake.

Judge Knowles made an order as long ago as November 1 that the Butte & Boston be allowed access to the mine, but the engineer detailed for that purpose has been unable to get in up to this time. Attorney Kelley, for the Butte & Boston, asked the judge yesterday to extend the same for the inspection. Judge Knowles made another order extending the time for the inspection of the workings of the property 21 days from and after the date when the defendants shall grant said complainant access to the premises.
