

OBERLIN M. CARTER IS FREE TOMORROW

WILL WALK FROM GATES OF MILITARY PRISON IN WHICH HE HAS STAYED SO LONG.

WILL BE A MINING ENGINEER

Said the ex-Army Officer Hopes to Brace Up and Prosper—Will Sue the Government, It is Thought.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. Leavenworth, Nov. 27.—Oberlin M. Carter, ex-captain of engineers, U. S. A., who has served three years and seven months of a five-year sentence in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, will pass out of the gate of the prison tomorrow morning a free man. He intends going directly to Chicago. Carter positively declines to be interviewed by newspaper men, his attorney, H. G. Stone of Chicago, warning him to say nothing whatever.

For three years and seven months Carter has sat in a cell in the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth listening time and again to the sound of dance music in Pope hall, where his former classmates at West Point hold their hops; hearing the army bugles calling the officers and enlisted men out to drills and dress parades.

He Will Sue. In January, it is said, he will file a suit in the United States circuit court at Chicago against the United States government for the possession of $23,000 in bonds and cash, which he claims belonged to him before he became involved in the trouble in Savannah, Ga., which led to his present sentence.

When Carter donned his prison suit he was given charge of the books in the tin and harness shops. Later he asked for more to do and was made gardener and given charge of the flower beds in the hospital yard. Later he was given charge of the books in the hospital and in time became head nurse. He was kind to the sick, patiently waiting on them and writing letters for them. He liked this place so well that he has continued to remain there, having much leisure time to devote to the study of law. He has read all the law books available and is well posted on the suit he will take up when released.

Aids Convicts to Liberty. Through his knowledge of law Carter has aided many prisoners to obtain their liberty and by all of them he is much admired. As a Spanish scholar Carter has acted as interpreter for the Mexican prisoners; he has written letters for illiterate prisoners and drawn maps for the prison officials of county roads, which are used in tracing fugitive convicts.

Carter's cavalry mustache has not been shaved off, and his hair has not been trimmed so when he leaves the prison and changes his gray suit for that of a more stylish cut he will not look like a convict. The prison authorities will furnish him with a $15 suit, but it is not probable that he will accept it. His broadcloth suit he wore when he entered the prison has been saved and he will don this. His jewelry also will be returned to him.

Will Be Mining Engineer. As a mining engineer Carter hopes to succeed. His uncle, Capt. L. D. Carter of Chicago, owns several mining properties in the West and he wishes the ex-army officer to take the position of head engineer for him. It is not improbable that he will do so, preferring to seek seclusion on the western hills, for a time at least.

Since his incarceration Carter has not been visited by an army officer, although at least 300 of them are on duty at Fort Leavenworth. There are many who know Oberlin M. Carter as a cadet in West Point and also as an army officer after his graduation, but they have avoided him.
