CORONER LOOKS INTO DEATH OF RANCHER

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Bozeman, Dec. 29.—Coroner Trent, who left yesterday for East Flathead to investigate the death of G. W. Bowen, the rancher who was killed while hunting, had not returned up to 3 p. m. today, so that the particulars of the fatality are still very meagre.

It is understood that Bowen was taking his rifle from the wagon, when the weapon went off, the bullet entering his breast. He died in a very few minutes. The widow and four small children live in Livingston and they are nearly distracted.

On Accident.

It was in the time of wild raspberries, and the Blank family were spending a few weeks in the country. Harold Blank, aged 6, and his two little sisters had been out in the woods, and when they returned Harold presented his mother with two very moist and slightly crushed wild raspberries. She thanked him with the effusion that mothers show on such occasions and said, when she had swallowed the berries, "They were lovely. I wish I had more of them."

"I did have another one for you mamma, but I swallowed it on accident on the way home," said Harold.

"Why, Harold, dear, how could you have swallowed it on accident?" asked his mother.

"Well, it was like this, mamma," Harold explained. "I was afraid Lucy and Alice would try to get the berries away from me if they knew I had them, so I carried them home in my mouth, and that was how I swallowed one on accident."—Woman's Home Companion.

OLD SANTA CLAUS BLESSES CHILDREN

APPEARS IN ALL HIS PRISTINE AND HISTORIC SPLENDOR TO 500 TOTS IN AUDITORIUM.

MANY GENEROUS DONATIONS

Associated Charities Aid in Making Festival a Success by Number of Business Men of Butte.

It is a well known fact among the children that Santa Claus lingers around all during the Christmas holidays and may appear any moment. This was proven today when the Associated Charities held their Christmas entertainment in the Auditorium.

Santa Claus was there in all his glory of furs and whiskers. He was good to look at, judging from the shouts of joy with which the 500 children greeted him as his head appeared from the little window in the chimney, and a moment later he came out of the fire place dressed in regulation Santa Claus fur and cap. The tree was a sight to behold, for on its branches this tree had grown the most wonderful fruit, consisting of monkeys, wagons, dolls, drums, apples, candy, kitchens, jumping-jacks, fluffly cotton cats with thread whiskers, tin soldiers, whips, rattles, games, blocks, loop-the-loop, clowns and dolls in full dress and undress condition; there was numerous other kinds of fruit on the tree which would have seemed strangely profane had it been any other than the Christmas season.

For Sweet Charity's Sake.

The stage was handsomely decorated by the noble-hearted women who are interested in the children of those not so fortunate, in a material sense, as themselves. On the stage was erected a large chimney, the bricks of which had been outlined by a clever hand. In the center and to the right of the chimney were the national colors, in streamers falling from a point near the ceiling; at this point was a large transparent star, behind which an electric light had been placed.

This star was to represent that of Bethlehem, as it shone down from the sky on the wise men of the East, telling of the birth of the Messiah. The effect of this upon the children cannot be imagined, as they seemed overcome with wonder as the glittering light flashed out of the semi-darkness. A little to the right of the star stood the Christmas tree in all its glory of brilliant electric lights and glittering adornments.

The Tree.

This tree was a dream of beauty and was the handsomest and most artistically trimmed tree ever seen outside a private home in this city. The countless yards of frosted popcorn had been strung by the dimpled fingers of the children of those under whose direction the entertainment was given, and the pretty ornaments were free offerings from merchants and young men who remembered how close to the heart is the memory of the old-time Christmas tree at home.

Hidden in the foliage of the tree were tiny electric lights, fastened there by electricians who donated the time and wiring.

On its branches was the white snow so necessary to the artistic effect of the real tree; there was also yards and yards of gold and silver tinsel, which glittered and danced as the colored lights fell on it. The whole effect was so thoroughly artistic and real that the children sat in mute wonder gazing on its mysterious appearance and beautiful effect.

The Program.

There was a short program which did not last more than half an hour. J. R. Russell delighted the children with a brief but kindly address, full of Christmas cheer and good wishes. Mr. Russell's address was followed by a figure drill by six pretty girls appropriately addressed in red, white and blue, being two of each color.

During the drill the girls each caught up an end of the streamer falling from the ceiling and sang of the coming of the Christ.

This was emblematic of the acceptance of Christ throughout America and at the close of the drill the whole audience joined in singing "America."

Those in the drill were Misses Brodie Chesnut, Ina Erickson, Ida Bye, Bertha Eide, Grace Hubbard, Bessie Gray, Mrs. C. A. McMullen was pianist and had trained the sextet in the drill and song. It was an effective scene and called forth loud applause from the little ones.

The Great Moment.

Then came a rattling on the chimney which indicated that something was about to happen. Every eye was fixed on the fireplace—but wonder of wonders! Santa Claus' leg was seen to come through the little window at the top of the chimney. Then his head appeared and he nodded to the happy, shouting children and cracked a few jokes.

In a moment he disappeared and came out through the fireplace to the joyous greetings of nearly 500 happy little folks and to the delight of the audience who had gathered to witness the coming of dear old Santa.

There were tears in the eyes of many a mother as she witnessed the pleasure thus given her children and which she could not give to them in their own home.

Then the next hour was one of supreme delight to the little boys and girls as the precious and longed-for gifts were placed in their eager hands. Every one went home with a new joy shining in his and her face, all happy in having seen a real live Santa Claus and in the spirit of the Christmas time.

Old Santa.

Santa Claus was dressed, in an Eskimo outfit, which consisted of a handsome fur-lined coat, which fell below the knees; fur breeches with long-topped lace boots, which were also fur-lined, and mittens which Jack Frost could not get through, while on his head was the cap always seen on Santa Claus. His whiskers were flecked with the snows of years and were in strange contrast to his bright, softly shining eyes.

The Christmas tree and entertainment was a great success, and it is owing to the following that it was so great a success: Hennessy Mercantile company, Symons company, the Lewis Dry Goods company, M. J. Connell company, Lutey Bros., Gallagher and Ponderph, P. J. Brophy, City Market, A. F. Bray, Passmore Paper company, Kelley & O'Brien, who donated and built the chimney; the Electric Light company, who furnished and wired the electric

JAMES LORR CAN HOLD LAND

SPECIAL TO THE INTER MOUNTAIN.
Helena, Dec. 30.—James Lorr, who for 20 years has resided upon 160 acres of land not far from Gold Creek and Pioneer, Powell county, can hold his land, as the acting commissioner of the general land office has decided in his favor. The Helena land office received word today that Acting Commissioner J. H. Fimple had affirmed the office in deciding against Carl Bergstrand and Mary I. Baker's contest of Lorr's entry.
The contestants claimed that the land was more valuable for mineral than for agricultural purposes. After hearing the evidence, the Helena land office decided in favor of Lorr, and the acting commissioner makes his title more certain by affirming the decision.
Bergstrand and Mary I. Baker can appeal to the secretary of the interior if they wish, but appeals are rarely made where the general land office affirms a local land office.

WILLIAM A. ANGER BANKRUPT

In the federal court today, William A. Anger, a laborer, who lives in the city, was adjudged a bankrupt. His liabilities are placed at $964.95 and his assets at about $563, which he claims is exempt.

Constables in London receive $25 a year as a clothing allowance.

ANOTHER WARRANT ISSUED

Another warrant was issued today for the arrest of Matt Hill, who is charged with kicking in a door at the rear of No. 47, Anaconda road, and creating a disturbance at that place. He was arrested recently on a similar charge and is out on a $50 bond.

DREADFUL GROUP

Many weary nights are spent by anxious mothers whose children are afflicted with croup. This dreadful disease carries off thousands of beloved children every year; there is one remedy that should be in every household, so that as soon as croup appears, it may be given to the child and thus save its life, the old reliable,
DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP
THE ONE THAT CURES
"If it had not been for Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup I would have lost my little ten year old girl several times, as this old, reliable remedy has always cured her of the croup. I have kept on giving it to her when necessary for the past eight years and would not be without it if the cost were twice as much as it is. I also gave it to my little boy with the croup and diphtheria, and I am now giving it to both of my children for the whooping cough. I had my husband home with the grippe this winter, very sick, and he used one and one-half bottles of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, which cured his cough entirely." Mrs. A. Durbin, 228 Morell Street, Detroit, Michigan.
Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure every case of croup, coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma and pneumonia and will cure consumption if taken in time.
AVOID WORTHLESS SUBSTITUTES
Look out for cheap substitutes and imitations—they are dangerous and harmful and do not cure. Insist on getting Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup which has been on the market for fifty years, and look for the "Bull's Head" trade-mark on the wrapper. All druggists, price 50c, 75c and $1.00.
