The Marquis of Hartington Faithful to His Early Though Old Love.

Lord Salisbury is Seriously Concerned Over the Political Tumult in Ireland.

Massacre of a Garrison of 470 Gorkhas in the British Service in Assam, Africa.

LONDON, March 30.—What of stiered is left in London at this season is stirred by the report of a serious difference which has arisen between the duke of Devonshire and his son and heir, the marquis of Hartington. The marquis, true to his life-long devotion, is resolved to marry the duchess of Manchester, now a widow. To this the duke is opposed on the ground that the lady is over sixty years of age and unlikely to issue. He wants to insure the descent of the title to the dukedom in the direct line. The marquis of Hartington is immovable in his determination to marry the lady of his choice regardless of consequence. As father and son are men of strong will there is unhappily much bitterness of feeling. Society takes deep interest in the dispute; the preponderance of sympathy, however, is on the side of the faithful marquis.

It is not often that Lord Salisbury interferes in Irish affairs and the statement that he had a conference with Mr. Balfour yesterday relative to the situation at Sligo emphasized the danger of the situation. This morning's advice says that the affairs seem to be reaching a point when bloodshed will be unavoidable. Street fights are of daily occurrence and one side spares no provocation likely to madden the other. The police are on the scene in large numbers and military are being hastened to re-enforce them, but the police are so exhausted with continuous service that it is feared they would not be efficient in the event of a general riot. The Parnellites claim that the priests are occasioning most of the trouble, and the priests answer that they are doing no more than their duty. The police have been strictly enjoined to take no side, but only to preserve the peace. Mr. Parnell's friends in London and elsewhere have, it is said, earnestly requested him to keep away from Sligo, it being even hinted that there is an anti-bond organization that will stop short of treating him as Cronin was treated in America. To all advice, however, Parnell turns a deaf ear, entering into the electoral combat with an energy that partakes of frenzy.

MASSACRE 470.

Treachorous Natives Wipe Out Soldiers in the British Service.

CALCUTTA, March 30.—A dispatch from Manipur, province of Assam, says James W. Quinlan, chief commissioner of Assam, has been investigating some trouble which occurred among native chiefs with a view of arresting one of them, who had been instrumental in depositing the rajah. The commissioner occupied a camp garrisoned by a strong force of Gorkhas, native infantry in the British service. Suddenly this camp was attacked by a number of hostile tribes. A two days battle followed the onslaught. The Gorkhas fought most determinedly against heavy odds and, according to report, 470 of them were killed. Seven British officers who accompanied the commissioner and that officer cannot be found.

News of the massacre was brought to Kohim, on the Assam frontier, by two Gorkhas. It originated in a feud between the rajah of Manipur and a leading tribal chief. The rajah was deposed and appealed to the viceroys. Mr. Quinlan was sent to settle the trouble and started from headquarters at Shillong, escorted by the 470 Gorkhas. One account of the affair reports that Commissioner Quinlan and his staff were made prisoners. Another account says that Colonel Skene, the commander, Commissioner Quinlan, with his son and daughter, Capt. Roberts and six officers were killed, and the natives refused to give the quarter. The rebellious tribe is famous for cunning, cruelty and bravery. Immediately upon receiving news of the disaster, the viceroys at Simla summoned the council. Two native regiments stationed in Assam have already been dispatched to Manipur. Bengal infantry will start for the scene tomorrow.

The Programme of the Conference.

PARIS, March 30.—The workmen's congress adopted a programme embracing the following propositions: That eight hours constitute a day's work; that minimum wages be fixed; that children under 14 be prohibited to work; that everybody declared by the workmen's syndicate to be unable to work receive public support; that masters be held responsible for accidents to workmen; that municipal butcher shops, bake houses and bazars be formed; that every trade organize in redress for a general strike to vanquish opposing employers. The socialist element dominated.

Honolulu News.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—The British steamer Elton arrived from Honolulu today with news up to the 18th inst. The queen has announced the members of her privy council. Among the members are the queen's husband, John Dominis, and about forty other prominent men of the kingdom. The missionary schooler, Chapman, was located on the west coast of Tahiti on November 20, 1890. The crew, numbering sixteen, were all drowned.

Geraldine Umar Married.

LONDON, March 30.—Geraldine Umar, the American actress, until recently prima donna in La Cigale, was married this morning to Ivan Baryl, a young Belgian musical composer, at St. George's church. It was a very brilliant affair. The American colony was strongly represented; also a number of English actors were present, together with many notables in the literary and artistic world.

Threatened by Flood.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 30.—The dam at the junction of the Rideau river and the Rideau canal partially gave way yesterday. Great efforts are being made to save the dam. Should they fail, New Edinburgh will be flooded. Residents along the river bank have in the meantime abandoned their homes.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

Gov. Morrill, of Minnesota, vetoed the bill providing that trust companies shall come under the provisions of the state banking laws.

The Commercial hotel, of Austin, Pa., burned Friday morning. Lizkie McGarrick, a domestic, Jack McCarthy, a boarder, and an unknown man were burned to death. The pecuniary loss is small.

County Clerk Curry, Treasurer Gloderly and County Commissioner Mayton and Cole, of Conway county, Kansas, were arrested on information charging them with malfeasance in office.

William Garner, who died at Mexico, Mo., of hydrophobia, was so violent that four men had to be kept with him all the time. His sufferings were terrible. About twenty years ago he was bitten by a mad dog.

The San Francisco Chronicle says an attempt is being made by a syndicate of local jobbers to control the brandy market. Agents of the syndicate have been buying up all the brandy in sight. Independent producers will fight the brandy trust, and it is stated will convert large quantities of wine now on hand into brandy.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the springtime, or, in fact, at any time, and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.
