

FOUR DUELS IN FORTY MINUTES.

The Wonderful Record Made by a Frenchman at Longchamps.

A Paris letter to the London Telegraph says: It is greatly to be feared that the hot weather now prevailing has had the effect of developing the quarrelsome tendencies of certain temperaments. To this, perhaps, more than to any decline of French courtesy, must be attributed the four extraordinary duels which took place at Longchamps yesterday, and the details of which were transmitted to you by telegraph last night. The series of engagements, generally described as a "quadruple duel," are said to have taken place at Longchamps, the victor, who liberally laid four antagonists one after the other, is the lion of all circles, and the delight of his own. He is regarded as the counterpart of d'Artagnan, the hero of "The Three Musketeers," who pulled out his sword at the least offense, and was ever ready for his life. The comparison, however, does not hold good all around, for M. Roulez, although one of the best fencers in a city professedly a proficient swordsman, is not the least and the fiercest, is by no means a seeker after strife. In any case the four duels from which he has issued covered with glory were thrust upon him in a manner which, to say the least, was not in accordance with the traditions of the famous French school of chivalry. This testimony to his conduct has been given by men capable of judging and who are on a par with his prowess. It may be interesting to recapitulate the history of the affair, owing to the attention which it attracts as an event in the annals of European dueling.

M. Roulez is an electrical engineer and an able inventor. He is about 57 years old, tall and thin, and he fought in the Franco-German war, gaining the military medal for distinguished conduct in the field. He is an excellent shot as well as an excellent swordsman, and, according to a leading authority, his fencing is the more redoubtable owing to his singular coolness, his skill in fixing his eyes on every movement of an antagonist and above all, the strictly mathematical precision of his style. It was this man who, at Longchamps, was the victor in the first of the four duels, which took place on Gen. Boulanger, and his carotid artery was narrowly missed. The fourth victor was loudly applauded by the group of persons who had gathered round the spot, and the acclamations became more boisterous when M. Roulez still stood his ground, waiting calmly to give a taste of his steel to anybody else who might be inclined to try conclusions with him. His seconds, however, had by this time arrived at a sense of their duty, and prevented him from accepting any more challenges. Such is the authentic history of the famous four duels fought in forty minutes which all Paris is discussing.

A Little Girl's Experience in a Lighthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the government lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and in Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly until she was a "mere handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at R. S. Hale & Co.'s drug store.

A Warning—Don't Use Big Words.

In promulgating esoteric cogitations or articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological observations, beware of inflated ponderosity. Let your statements possess a clarified consciousness, compacted comprehensiveness, consistent consistency and a concentrated conciseness. Eschew all conglomerations of flatus garrulity, jejune babblement and stinging affectations. In trying to impress upon others the superiority of the Wisconsin Central line, and why you and so many others use this thoroughfare from St. Paul and Minneapolis and Duluth and Ashland to Milwaukee, Chicago and points east and south, it is not necessary to use jawbreakers. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or thrasonomical bombast. Sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, pasticcioso vanity, ventriloquial verbosity and vendiculous verbiage, even double entendres, prurient jocosity and pastiferous profanity, obscure or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, naturally, sensibly, and truthfully say the Wisconsin Central line is the route, and that ends it.

Opportunity.

Master of human destiny am I,
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait.

Cities and fields I walk, I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace, soon or late
I knock at heaven's door and gain.

If sleeping, wake; if fasting, feed; if
I turn away, I am the hour of state
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortal desire, and conquer every foe
Have death; but those who doubt or hesitate

Condemned to failure, penury and woe
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore;
I answer not, and I return no more.

JNO. J. INGALLS.

But fall ye not in this respect,
Seize every opportunity to travel
Over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway.

This is the advice of
Geo. H. HAZFORD,
General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.
