

IT HURRIED THE MATTER

Protests From Corrigan Caused the Pope to Make Satolli His Delegate.

One Result May Be to Elevate Ireland to the Cardinalate.

Dr. McGlynn Repeats That He Did Not Renounce the Teachings of the Anti-Poverty Society.

New York, Jan. 15.—The Herald's Rome correspondent says regarding the appointment of Mgr. Satolli as apostolic delegate, that the immediate reason for papal action was the arrival at Rome of two strong protests from Archbishop Corrigan against the reinstatement of Dr. McGlynn, one addressed to the pope, the other to the propaganda. In each the archbishop complained that he was not notified by Mgr. Satolli of Dr. McGlynn's restoration till the fact became public. The protests were the outcome of Archbishop Corrigan's bitter wrath at the whole course of the delegate, Bishop McDonnell, of Brooklyn, shared Archbishop Corrigan's views, and was mistaken enough to write to a Roman friend of Mgr. Satolli that the Italian intruder would be driven back to Europe.

The collapse of the Corrigan party is complete. One result may be the elevation of Archbishop Ireland to the cardinalate. Another, perhaps, will be the resignation of Archbishop Corrigan for New York. The loss of Mgr. Satolli was utterly unaccountable. It has just been ascertained that for months Archbishop Ireland and Riordan, Bishop Keane and Mgr. O'Connell were dogged by spies, their letters were stolen and a large number are now in the hands of a man named Dreing, of San Francisco, who publishes the Western Witness. The result was that Archbishop Riordan was notified and advised him to recover the documents, of which wrong use might be made. Dreing himself wrote to Archbishop Riordan to say he held the papers and was willing to give them up on certain terms. The archbishop refused to negotiate with Dreing, but was informed that they could not recover the letters unless he would place a money value on them, and would go to court, where their contents would be made public.

He Did Not Retract.

New York, Jan. 15.—Dr. McGlynn tonight said in his letter to Mgr. Satolli he neither condemned nor retraced the economical doctrine he had been teaching. He made public the text of his letter. It is said that he was rejoiced that Satolli was prepared to remove the ecclesiastical censure; and that there was nothing contrary to Catholic doctrine in the doctrine taught by him. He assured Satolli he never said and never would say a word contrary to the teachings of the church and the holy see. Dr. McGlynn said this evening that in his statement to Satolli there was no mention of retreating or departing from the doctrines of the anti-poverty party or the anti-poverty society.

The Professors Were Pleased.

Washington, Jan. 15.—In connection with the appointment of Satolli as apostolic delegate to this country, it was learned today that in December professors of the faculty of theology of the Catholic university transmitted through Cardinal Rampolla to the pope a joint letter, expressing their devotion to the holy father and thanks for sending the delegate. An autograph of the letter from the pope has been received in reply, in which he bestows the apostolic benediction, expresses gratification at the spirit exhibited in their address, and rejoices to see that they welcome with pleasure the proof of the papal solicitude which the pope gave to the mission of Mgr. Satolli.

ATTACKED BY AN APE.

The Professor's Trained Animals Rebelled Against Him.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 12.—Prof. Samuels and his wife, who have been exhibiting a troupe of trained animals at the Wigwam theater, had a terrible experience last evening during their performance before a large audience. The animals comprised goats, dogs, cats and five large apes. The largest apes in a little phreton drawn by a dog. Prof. Samuels conducts the performance, while his wife is the agent out of the stage and in the phreton. The ape was silky last night, but Prof. Samuels got into the phreton when it suddenly sprang at him and drove its long limbs through his left wrist. In an instant the phreton was overturned, and strong men turned their heads aside as the maddened brute bit and tore at the man's arm, while his screams for help rang through the building. He was rescued by the other apes, but rushed to her husband's assistance, when the first ape grabbed her arm in its teeth and the second ape also joined in the attack. Men rushed on the stage and tore the boards from under the phreton, while the other apes were beaten into insensibility. Samuels' hands and lower arm were terribly torn and lacerated, and his wife's wrists were badly bitten, but both prove poisonous.

BOUNDED OUT OF WORK.

Government Detectives Caught an Ex-Convict to Lose Every Job He Gets.

New York, Jan. 15.—William Steber, an expert bank note engraver, who was last year discharged from the Indiana state prison, where he had served a sentence for counterfeiting, asked for lodging at a station house last night because he was penniless and was going to work in the city. United States secret service detectives so that as fast as he obtains employment they report him as an ex-convict and counterfeiter and he is immediately discharged. During winter he was at the station in Terre Haute, Ind., and his daughter was sent back to Germany by friends. He left prison determined to reform, and obtained work at $10 per day with the Philadelphia bank note company. In three days a detective reported him as an ex-convict, and he was discharged, against his pleadings for a chance to work and lead an honest life. He next got work with the American Bank note company of New York city, with a similar result. Wherever Steber has obtained any work the detectives have spotted and exposed him, so he has at once lost his job, and now, destitute and despairing, he says he sees no way to obtain food and shelter except by going back into the ranks of counterfeiters, and eventually to a practically a life sentence in some state prison.

Some Well Paid Lawyers.

It is stated that the largest single fee ever received by a lawyer was that paid to John E. Parsons, of New York, for organizing the sugar trust, which was dissolved by the courts. It is the general opinion of the profession that this fee amounted to $200,000 at least. Mr. Parsons' regular annual earnings are said to range from $50,000 to $100,000. Among those who earn over $50,000 a year at this profession the following have been named: James A. Carter, Fourth Avenue; Joseph H. Choate, Benjamin F. Tracy, Frederick B. Condit, Robert G. Ingersoll, Elihu Root, Artemus H. Holmes, Horace H. S. T. C. Todd, and George Honday.

The will of the late Edgar Mills, of San Francisco, leaves his property, valued at $1,500,000, to his three children.

THE HARMONISTS' HOME.

A Model Village on Which Teed is Said to Have High Opinions.

The beautiful village, on which Dr. Teed of Chicago is said to have assigned, was located on the Ohio river, eight miles from Pittsburg, Mo., with 3,000 acres of highly tilled land, and it is the property of the Harmonist community, which recently chose John Duss as its leader to succeed the deceased Father Henriot, save a dispatch. Duss, as leader, has absolute control of the community's property, which, including land, village, live stock, stores, houses and workshops, is valued at $30,000,000. His first step was to cut $500,000 mortgage on the property. The minority of the community bitterly opposed this, but having no remedy had to acquiesce. The Harmonists, sometimes called Economists or Harmonists, were founded by George Rapp, who was born in Wurttemberg in 1770. Rapp imagined, when about 30 years of age, that he was divinely called to restore primitive Christianity on the basis of absolute equality, with joint ownership of all property and proceeds of labor, everything to be under the control of the elected leader. The community has always maintained a very high standard of morality. In 1805 Rapp moved his little colony to Butler county, Pennsylvania, and in 1815 to Posey county, Indiana, where it purchased 27,000 acres of land and built the town of New Harmony, in the Western valley. Its increase of membership came largely from adopting orphan children. In 1824 Rapp sold the Indiana land to Robert Owen and located the colony where it now is, as it is known as the Harmonist community, and 200 members who revolted against his authority $105,000 as their share of the property, and they went away and became wealthy people again. Rapp died in 1847, and was succeeded by Father Henriot, who has just been expelled by John Duss, who is almost the youngest member in the community.

The membership has steadily declined since 1837, and those who remain are the others, will become a small coterie of the $10,000,000 worth of property the community has accumulated. Economy is a model town. The streets are broad and solidly paved, all the ordinary arrangements are first-class, perfect health prevails and there is not a disease in the world. There is one store and each member draws therefrom what he needs. There is no money, and visitors who wish to pay, but those who do not are equally welcome. The form of worship is that of the Lutheran church, with some additions. The church is built in rock with tall spires, and is a simple number in its turn; that of Father Henriot is now but a number, and soon the last of the original Harmonists will have his number in the same plain row.

CHARLEY MITCHELL'S PLANS.

The Britisher Says He'll Sail for America on Wednesday, Feb. 8.

New York, Jan. 15.—Charley Mitchell is coming over here to fight Corbett, or he's a bigger fiber than Baron Munchausen. On no less than fifty occasions Charley has stated that he would fight Corbett's long-pole. In spite of the fact that the long-headed British boxer has frequently told the scratch when the time came, a good many Americans do not believe that he intends to tackle Sullivan's conqueror. The fight against Mitchell is a walkover, however, it is not as a matter of fact, Charley's latest declaration comes from Bernard Abraham, a solicitor in London, who is on intimate terms with the boxer. In a letter to Jim Hall, dated Dec. 28, Abraham says: "I saw Mitchell last week. He is in capital spirits and seems more the worse, but really considerably the better physically, for his incarceration. He desired me to say to you that he will be in camp on Tuesday, Jan. 31, and that he would surely sail for the states on Wednesday, Feb. 8. So you see he has arranged his dates nicely. I do not think that our American consuls will consider it a walkover. I am a walker when I have a chance to see Mitchell. I do not think he has looked so well as he does now in five years. True, the doctor gives him a not of a kind, calculated to make money, but he is a healthy man, and I am certain to put a man in the best of spirits. But he has no more right to be where he is than a man in Zanzibar has. This is, perhaps, consoling to him. From now on, I so added, they will be in camp on Tuesday. He is sure to meet and conquer the American. Mark me down to that."

ONLY A WOODEN LEG.

But It Nearly Changed the Course of European History.

A little more than a quarter of a century ago a wooden leg nearly changed the course of European history. A year or so before the war between Prussia and Denmark, which preceded the great struggle between France and Germany, Bismarck was starting at Biarritz. One morning, accompanied by a number of his staff, he was walking on the beach near Biarritz. A dog, which had been brought from the sea by a boy, was barking at an old French naval captain, with a wooden leg, powerfully built and of penetrating eye. The dog became madly attentive to the captain's leg, and the Frenchman struck at the animal with the butt of his fishing rod. Bismarck, seeing the sailor repelled in the same manner. From ignorance they came to blows, and in a few moments Bismarck found that, once again, the angry Frenchman was hitting him bodily on the parrot of the wall. Another minute and he would have been in the rapid current of the sea below, and what would have been the course of European history during the past twenty-five years? But at the critical moment help arrived by the way of a fat man in the shape of an officer of the Emperor Napoleon—the timber leg of the captain was broken, and the Frenchman of Germany and of Italy was secured. All the year round.

A NICE LITTLE MOTHER-GIRL.

The Child Who Is as Useful as a Green Up Woman.

This is a little 19-year-old girl in Abilene, who is a sort of mother-child, says the Globe of that city. No other words describe her. When the children have the camp she mixes them up a lot of omelet and spring before going to bed and usually takes them with her. So she can hear them cough, she is the center of all their life in her neighborhood, and no one dares to skin a little girl while she is around; she will flex him if he does. She recently licked two boys larger than herself for annoying a neighbor. HIT THE BULLSEYE.

Shooting at a Nocturnal, They Kill the Man Who Was There.

STANFORD, Va., Jan. 15.—Revenue officers who have been arresting illicit whiskey distillers in this state relate a singular episode which they made last week in Buchanan county. Charles Carroll, a moonshiner, who was being pursued by deputy marshals, concealed himself in an abandoned cabin, barred the door, and stood prepared to receive a knock. He was not alone, for the door was stopped, and began talking on the edge of the clearing, so far away to be heard in ordinary conversation. A lot was made and taken into one of the party could not be traced. A man, who was a moonshiner, was loved and fired and something was heard to fall inside the cabin. The officers rushed to the spot and found, writhing in death, the man for whom they had been hunting.

Mrs. M. V. Woodward, wife of a prominent attorney of Los Angeles, Cal., was buried to death at Sierra Madre by the upsetting of an oil stove.

WRECKED BY WORSHIPERS.

Angry Faction Fight Furiously During Divine Service in Church.

ANDERSON, Ind., Jan. 15.—Forest church chapel, six miles southwest of this city, was the scene of a desperate and bloody fight, just after communion service between two rival factions in the congregation, the Lawsonians on one side and the Swinfords, Smeers and Hartsells on the other. Both sides came to church armed with blisses, slungshots, brass knuckles and stones, and no sooner was the benediction pronounced than the sacred edifice became the scene of desperate fighting and wild commotion. Through broken windows and chinks of lead flew the air, clubs descended on heads, and men pounded and battered each other all the way from the pulpit to the entrance door. Women and children were hurled through broken windows, and shrieks, groans and curses made a pandemonium. Finally, the Lawsonians, who were outnumbered, gave way, and were pushed out of doors. A dozen of the combatants were seriously injured, and some will die. Pools of blood were all over the church, and the pews were badly wrecked, but the Swinfords side conquered and proposes to hold divine services to suit itself hereafter.

SHE SWINDLED SOCIETY.

Mrs. Bailey Gets Out of Members of Her Own Sex.

DAYTON, O., Jan. 15.—Mrs. Alice G. Bailey, registering from Chicago as agent of the United States Merchandise company, has been doing a large business here with society ladies by collecting $6.75 from each as membership fee of the association through which they were to purchase beautiful imported dress patterns at wonderful low prices, according to a bewildering array of samples she exhibited. Ladies who have sent orders to the association have been swindled. Mrs. Bailey had no authority to collect money and make the money she did, and their order cannot be filled. Her dressing was so exquisite and her behavior so admirable that the ladies were deceived. She disappeared from here the other day, saying she was going to Fort Wayne, Ind., to give the society ladies of that city a chance to get party dresses, shoes and hosiery at lowest prices.

FOUGHT TO SAVE THE BOY.

A Fierce Mastiff Shows Timely Affection for Her Master's Child.

GURKHA, Okla., Jan. 15.—A butcher named Maz, in the western part of the county, has two large mastiffs, a male and a female, both fierce, though the female has always evinced a liking for Maz's seven-year-old son. While the boy was alone in the yard yesterday the male dog suddenly attacked him, biting him in the arm and side. The boy screamed, but nobody was near, and he would have been killed had not the female dog by the alarm, barking, and pulling him away. The boy ran for the house, but the savage dog again caught him and threw him down. The friendly canine once more went to the rescue, and grabbing the male dog by the throat with her teeth, threw him down and held him until the boy got safely into the house. The boy's injuries are not serious, but he had a narrow escape from a horrible death.

Both Will Be Touched Off To-Day.

DANVERS, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Kernell Lohr, a Hungarian, 26 years old, will be electrocuted to-morrow for the murder of Mrs. Demaresek at Schoenicht. The condemned man shows little feeling or interest in the approaching execution. The dynamo and apparatus were all tested to-day and found in good working order.

Joseph Ruby, Son of Harry K. Ruby, of Columbia, Pa., Suffered From Birth Scrofula Humor.

With a severe form of Scrofula Humor.

"Until my boy was six years of age he was from birth a terrible sufferer from scrofula humor. Sores would appear on him and spread until he was a ball of pain and then discharge, followed by others, so that the larger part of his body was one mass of sores all the time, especially on his legs and back of his neck, and he had to be kept in bed. The humor had a very offensive odor, and caused

Intense Itching.

We cannot tell you how poor my sufferer in all these years. Physicians did not effect a cure. At last I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla, as my druggist recommended it. In about two weeks the Sarsaparilla began to have effect. The sores commenced to heal up, the itching began to look more natural and healthy. Then the sores ceased and all over his body there was a healthy skin and hair formed. When he had taken two bottles he was entirely free from sores, having only the scars to show of the sores he had had. The humor had a very offensive odor, and caused
