NO TIME FOR WHINERS. This is a great year for the fellows who have been predicting a smashing to smithereens.

On the other hand how delightful to meet that honest, cheery souled fellow who gives you a grip of the hand, tells you things are looking better, that the country is all right, that this trouble cannot last forever and that when it is all over there will be such times of prosperity as we haven't seen before.

We mean such a man as that good old Hoosier who gives a few "Thoughts for the Discouraged Farmer," and naturally asks the aid of James Whitcomb Riley because he is the tenderest and most helpful of our poet souls.

They've been a heap o' rain, but the sun's out to-day, And the clouds of the wet spell is all cleared away.

And the woods is all the greener, and the grass is greener still; It may rain again to-morrow, but I don't think it will.

Some say the crops is ruined, and the corn's drowned out, And prophesy the wheat will be a failure, without doubt;

But the kind Providence that has never failed us yet, Will be on hand one's more at the seventh hour, I bet!

This world was made prosperous, happy and hopeful by such spirits as this old Hoosier farmer. Columbus was one of them.

Let us give them the same sort of a laugh to-day and time will do the rest.

DESPITE the green eyed glances and blows below the belt from our friends in the sidetracked canyon, Helena is the most popular town in Montana.

The closing of two banks was followed by a chorus of hurrahs for Helena's pluck, words of encouragement and truth, and prophecies of future greatness.

Newspapers in every nook of the state came out to say that Helena was all right, because she had built herself to the leading place among western cities and on the solid foundation.

Besides, her people had found time to encourage the growth of other communities, build railroads and develop resources wherever money was needed.

And Helena is all right. Right now she is pushing the only local railway enterprise in the state. Right here may be found under way the only building enterprise of any importance in the northwest—Fort Harrison.

In addition to all this, figures show that in comparison with the strongest rivals business in all forms in Helena is fully as good and in most instances better. There need be no worrying over this town. It has always been at the head of the procession in the northwest, and when it gives up the place the country will go with it.

preciation of the many friends I possess at present in enterprising Helena." We were slow to believe that John Maguire would slander the city from which he had carried many hard dollars and where, as he says, he has many friends.

This is not the first time that newspapers on the other side of the range have fabricated interviews and faked news for the purpose of injuring Helena. It is time they were called down to stay.

The cholera and yellow fever are here at last to join the financial epidemic. It is a gruesome trio, but fortunately the visiting germs are likely to make short stays.

The Hon. W. C. P. Breckenridge—the Kentucky Breckenridge—the silver tongued orator who refused to participate at the World's fair opening on the ground that Kentucky, by gad, sir, had been insulted, is having a bit of domestic trouble.

In a recent interview George Gould declared that he wouldn't care to have ten million dollars to raise before the following Tuesday night. Bless his impetuous soul, we wouldn't have him in that plight. For his own satisfaction and that of the producers, we would have the sum fixed at ten cents.
