

voters on their oath, stating that it could not harm any one if all was as it should be, that we would consent to nothing that would in any manner prevent a legal voter from getting in his vote, and that we would be glad to find that there was no fraud contemplated. The Anaconda men present were unanimous in the statement that they each had certain knowledge of large numbers of men who were not legal voters, that from what they had learned in association with the newly imported men they estimated that not less than 1,200 men were registered that were not entitled to vote, claiming also that they could prove that large numbers had been registered under different names, and others had been taken to Butte, and in fact there was not a step taken by any one of us that was not dogged by a Pinkerton. On registering at the hotel we were given rooms as far apart as possible. Wishing to get them together we engaged the night clerk vacated rooms adjoining each other, and also sample room No. 5, which he assured us was vacated that night. He seemed curious to know what we wanted of it, so we told him that we were checking into the registration and would need more table room than a bed chamber afforded. The next morning we were very politely informed that these rooms were all taken. "This, together with the statement of the men we met, that they were in fact not only of their business welfare but of their lives if they met us in the sample room, as arranged, put us somewhat on guard. In one room one of us saw an eye at the keyhole of the door leading into the next room. The Standard admits having a detective with his car to the wall of some boarding house, but forgets to add that when a Pinkerton can hear of nothing to the advantage of his employer he gets tired, and therefore is obliged to draw upon his imagination when facts are not to his liking. Next to one of our rooms was a bath room belonging to the next room, but also having a door into our room. Thinking we heard a noise at the door one of us put his ear next to the door and distinctly heard breathing on the other side. This we tried three times in twenty-four hours, each time with the same result. The man in that bath tub took the longest dry bath on record. One man we claimed that our having spoken to him on the street had been sufficient to cause a Pinkerton to shadow him night and day, and that peep holes had been made between his room and the next. They are all told the same story of being offered bribes, and when that failed they were threatened with bodily harm if they helped check up the registration list with us. When the agents of Haggin saw that there was no chance to stop the investigations with threats and small bribes, they had Mr. Daly, Mr. Toole, Mr. Dixon, Mr. Matts, Mr. Carroll and several others come over on the first train. Soon after they came one after the other of the men who had agreed to check the list commenced to drop off until by Friday night there was not an uncaught man among them all. The last one of the seven gave the proposition away, but intimated that if he got half as much from us as he was to get from Toole, he would see us through. "We politely informed him that we had no objection to paying wages for actual work done, we did not propose to pay a man for his capriciousness, and if we could not get the list checked by our friends it would remain unchecked. He informed one of our number that the man Matthews had got $2,000 for perjuring himself in an affidavit; this, with the $500 he had been offered, and the money being returned, made that man a pretty expensive article of merchandise for the Haggin committee to own. To top off the whole adventure, on coming home in the smoking car of the E. A. & P. train Saturday those who were there will remember a loud mouthed, dirty man coming in with a very violent cough, like a man in the last stages of consumption, but the cough was to hard work and only lasted one round. This man coughed until near Butte. He was much surprised that he reached Butte so quick. Soon after we reached our room in Butte he came bolting into the room in search of a judge; he was in an out of the way part of the hotel, and yet he had made a bee line for it. In turning to leave he exposed the lower part of his neck, which was white, and at the same time the clean white silk hand of his fannel shirt was exposed under the dirt and rags of his coat, and he said, "If 'Pinkerton' had been on him in big letters no plainer proof could have been had of his identity. "Now, would all this bribery and Pinkertonism have been necessary if the Anaconda registration had been an honest one? Is this the kind of thing we want to subject ourselves to by giving Haggin the capital, and thereby making every politician and business man fear to set out against any proposition advanced by a corporation sufficiently powerful to buy the capital of the great state of Montana?"

Palpitation of the Heart and A General Break Down

The Good Effect of Hood's was Marked and Permanent. "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'gentlemen:—I was taken down sick last December, and became very weak with nervous trouble, palpitation of the heart, and a general break down. I had a good physician, but lingered along, getting no better. I could sit up only about half a day, until the 18th of March, when I concluded I would give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. When I had used it a short time, I could get up and go all about the house all day. I have never enjoyed perfect health, but as you know my fifth bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and know it has helped me wonderfully. I have used Hood's Pills, and think them excellent.' MRS. A. E.
