

GENERAL NEWS.

A Portland dispatch of June 10 says: The latest election returns from the interior of the State indicate that M. C. George, Republican, is elected to Congress by a majority ranging from 1,000 to 1,500. The entire Republican ticket for judges of the Supreme court is elected beyond a doubt. The majority is difficult to obtain, but it is safe to estimate the average at 1,000. The complexion of the legislature can not be stated although there are strong indications that the Republicans will have a majority in both Houses.

A Springfield dispatch of June 10th gives the following proceedings of the Democratic convention of Illinois:

Upon reassembling the committee on credentials reported no contests, and all delegations full.

The temporary organization was made permanent and the following were appointed delegates at large to Cincinnati: Melville W. Fuller, Samuel S. Marshall.

District delegates, Presidential electors and the State central committee were appointed.

A resolution was offered by Goudy, of Chicago, very laudatory of Seymour as the nominee for President, and while not instructing for him, earnestly requested the delegates to the national convention to take such action as they may deem advisable to present the name of Horatio Seymour before the national Democratic convention for the office of President of the United States.

The mention of Seymour's name created great applause and cheers. As the confusion ended a representation of the Morrison and one of the Palmer wing succeeded in making a speech against instructing for any one, and thus ruling out Illinois' own delegates. Finally the roll was called on the question referring the resolution to the committee on credentials, which prevailed by a vote of 373 to 273.

Lyman Trumbull was nominated for Governor; Lieutenant Governor, Lewis B. Parsons; Secretary of State, John B. Oberly.

The resolutions oppose protection of tariff and a third term, and demand civil service reform, equal rights, no military interference, gold, silver and paper interconvertible, no land grants, no eight to seven frauds and laws protecting labor.

The New York World's Philadelphia special of June 9 says: Col. McClure telegraphs to the Times from Chicago: Gen. Grant quietly stepped into the Palmer House this morning, and I never saw him look more gentle or composed. He talked pleasantly in passing his acquaintances. In half an hour he stepped out in the same unostentatious manner, and the faces of Cameron, Logan and Storrs were visible as the lieutenants with whom he had been in conference. What transpired in that brief council of war will probably never be known to the public, but after Grant had hurried off to the Milwaukee train both Cameron and Logan said publicly that Grant would be nominated without opposition in 1884. It appears to be their confident expectation, according to this writer, that Garfield will be beaten, and that one term of Democratic rule will make Grant's return to the helm of State a necessity.

A London dispatch of the 10th says there was a statement received last evening confirming the reports of an actual outbreak in the Argentine Confederation, and that President Avallanade had left Buenos Ayres with an army.

A private telegram, dated Buenos Ayres, June 8, says: The Southern Railroad company has stopped its train service, so as to prevent the seizure of its rolling stock by either party, and the national government has removed its stores of gunpowder from the city.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean's Milwaukee special of June 10 says: During an interview with General Grant this afternoon he expressed the opinion that Mr. Seymour would be the nominee of the Democracy. In relation to the Republican nominee he said General Garfield had always been right, and that in case of his election his administration would be satisfactory, and in harmony with the advanced thought of the country. The General did not allude at any length to his position before the Chicago Convention. He said he was grateful to the friends who had stood by him there, and particularly to Senator Conkling, who should have been nominated.

The New York Herald's Syracuse special says: Governor Seymour was met on Monday last in the corridor of the Oneida county court house, at Utica, by Judge Graham, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, with whom the Governor is on intimate terms, when the conversation naturally turned upon the proceedings of the Chicago Convention. Governor Seymour, a trifle nettled, said: "I see that a delegate from

New York (Roscoe Conkling) said in a speech at Chicago that Grant could carry New York State against Seymour. If I happened to be the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention, I should certainly carry New York, but I am in no sense a candidate." The Governor added, as if he had said something in an unguarded moment which he regretted, "I do not think that the nomination belongs to New York." Judge Graham took the precaution to write down these significant words a moment after, and it was he who gave them to my informant.

John Gemple, of 19 Delancey street, New York, beat his wife on the morning of June 10 until he thought her dead, then threw her out on the stairs, bolted the bedroom door, set the house on fire and cut his throat from ear to ear. The firemen found him in bed enveloped in flames, and dragged him into the street, where he died. The woman's skull is fractured, and death is expected. Cause, jealousy.

The Earl of Kimberly, the English Colonial Secretary, has sent instructions to the new High Commissioner in South Africa to avoid extending the British jurisdiction in South Africa, on the plea of complications between the colonists and native tribes, and to abstain from interference with the independent tribes.

The Soldier's Reunion was held in Milwaukee, June 10. There were over 150,000 strangers in the city, and 2,000 militia, 20,000 veterans and 700 inmates of the National Soldier's Home were in line at the parade.
