LOWE'S FIRST CONFESSION.

I passed my lady's bower one night—
Scarcely dared I hope she loved me,
I heard her sing some love-song light,—
The soft notes strangely moved me.

"Sweetheart, will sing that song for me?"
I whispered, bending o'er her;
"Dear love, 'twas sung alone for thee,"
And blushes answered for her.

—Ernest O. Chamberlin in St. Louis Magazine.

OUR YOUNG WOMEN.

Referring to our article last week, we have something more to say about the ideas advanced by Dio Lewis and the contributors to his valuable magazine. In the same issue containing Dr. Crosby's article, appears the editor's comment upon it, as follows:

Dr. Howard Crosby's paper in this number of our magazine, touches a matter of vital moment. There are a hundred thousand young men in New York who dare not marry. They may long for the love of wife and children, without which a man is not half a man; they feel that a boarding-house is not a home, that wandering about for amusements is not living. They may cherish in their heart of hearts the deepest yearning for a mate, but all the girls whose social status and intelligence would satisfy them, are such gorgeous creatures, that they would as soon ask some princess to share their fortunes. Human ingenuity could scarcely devise another scheme which would so surely defeat the matrimonial aspirations of girls as their wonderful attire, added to their accomplishments and their lofty contempt for the simple, homely duties of domestic life. Girls, your eagerness to "see the cow that gives the buttermilk," makes a sensible man think twice before he ventures.

My neighbor, Tom Bartley, chief clerk in an insurance office, is 29 years old, and in every respect of his being a "family man." He drops in to chat with me, and we often discuss the subject of matrimony. He said to me, "I would give ten years of my wretched boarding-house existence for one year of love in a cottage; but I cannot find love in a cottage without a mate, and I do not know a young lady whose manners and intelligence would suit me, who would consent to live in a cottage. If I had five thousand a year I would venture, but with eight hundred—well, I will stop where I can pay my expenses. I know a young lady whom I greatly admire; and although her father is a carpenter, and a very plain man, she is so grand in her ideas that I am afraid I should never be able to satisfy her. She is a splendid pianist, but I am sure her hands are unacquainted with work, and with my income she would have to do our housework. I am bound to be an old bachelor."

Now we think the hundred thousand young fools of New York City—or State, he doesn't say which—had better colonize with Tom Bartley for a chief executive. If they dare not marry, they would make very poor husbands for any sensible girls. If the young ladies of their stratum of society are such helpless and extravagant creatures, have they sense an independence enough to look elsewhere. Why, this army of young bachelors are as much to blame as the girls whose habits they criticize, if they still keep them company. The young women of the present day are as sensible as the young men growing up beside them, and no more extravagant either. In the manners they assume, the tastes they cultivate and exhibit, and the pursuits they seek out and follow, the young women of the most frivolous and aimless stamp, are doing their best to please the young men about them. There are hundreds of thousands of young women whom Dr. Crosby never met, and though New York is not the best place to find the right kind of wives for economical young husbands, the learned doctor has probably not carried his investigations beyond the boundaries of the gilt-edged and aristocratic society which owns him.

In personal tastes, he may not be aristocratic, but he would not dare—we believe, to ignore the dictations of society mandates in the "upper walks," speaking from a worldly point of view. The timid young men, doubtless flatter and follow ceaselessly, the very young women they cannot think of marrying. By their aimless attentions, they help educate an equal army of flirts, with no faith in the average young man, and for lack of precept or example to the contrary, the marriageable young ladies are taught to believe that no husband is desirable without a fortune. The same generation of the same rank in society, will not produce sensible, prudent, economical young men, and flippant, useless, helpless young women, as a rule.

But suppose that out of Dio Lewis' hundred thousand peopled young swains, we find one hundred, probably an ample estimate, who would be delighted with the company and ministrations of sensible, modest, well bred, not uneducated wives. Do they not know where to look for them? If not, let them ask advice of certain sensible, intelligent Christians and philanthropic people who can be found in encouraging numbers in the middle aged ranks of even the most aristocratic society of Gotham. As it is their tastes, let them consult those of her sex, and relatives, friends or entire strangers. We venture that without a single "personal" in the Herald, or the doubt-fudged medium of an advertisement the anxious lovers will be directed to thrice their number of young women of their own rank socially and intellectually, each of whom would be glad to marry a sensible young man, and would "do him good and not evil all the days of his life.

Still further, Dr. Lewis, in the same number of his magazine from which we have quoted thus far, says of "Our Girls":

We have in this city an army of independent, unmarried women, who, if brought up individually, would, in reply to certain questions, answer as follows:—

"What can you do?"
"O, most anything you please!"
"But tell me particularly."

"Well, there's dentistry, teaching, typesetting, watch-cleaning, engraving, and—"

"Oh, I don't mean such things, but I can do any common work!"

"Can you cook?"
"Well, not much; and then I don't like cooking."

"Can you do fine needle work?"

"No but then I can do plain sewing."

"Can you make men's shirts?"

"O, no, I can't do that, but then I can sew on pillow-cases and sheets, if you will show me just what you want me to do."

"Can you do chamber work?"

"A little, but then I don't like going out to service."

"I don't see then, that you can do anything but a little plain sewing, and for that you want a superintendent. There are at least five hundred occupations in this city which women could follow and earn an independent living thereby. You come seeking employment, and finally inform me that with superintendence you can do a little plain sewing, a thing which a young man can learn in three days."

This is bosh, or we hope never to be banished to New York. We believe if this army of city girls were summoned before the doctor, to answer to the questions above propounded, he wouldn't find a corporal's guard so flat as to answer with such words as he has put in the mouth of his victim.

The good-for-nothing girls are not found among the dependant classes principally, for such soil cannot produce them. Whatever exceptions can be selected from the army of girls seeking employment, so helpless, and ignorant even of their own inability as to talk like the exemplar cited, will not be a title of the number of shiftless, cigar-smoking, beer-drinking, theatre-loving young men, or more elegant dudes, who will by-and-by link their destinies with squally promising females. If we are wrong, we would say to those un-mated young men, the victims of circumstance, to avoid celibacy and fulfill your destiny, "go West."

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS.

The number of types used in an ordinary country newspaper is about 600,000; that is the actual number of bits of metal arranged for each paper in preparing a newspaper of that size for the press. Few people think of the printing trade as one of the most exact and particular handicrafts; but it is. In making type, variations that might be allowed in the finest machinery would render useless. The most elaborate and carefully fitted piece of work ever made in other very particular skilled labor does not compare, for minuteness of detail and accurate fitting, with that which the printer does every day.

The man who does the first is looked upon as the marvel of skill, but if one hundred of his pieces are put in wrong side up or down, or turned around, it is not noticed in the general effect; if a printer, in fitting ten times as many pieces together in a single day, puts one in the wrong way, everybody sees it, and are amazed at the "stupid carelessness of those printers."

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR MONTHLY.

The contents of the May number are as usual, extremely varied; and in a literary and artistic point of view, in its comprehensiveness and cheapness, this magazine is far ahead of its cotemporaries. Among the notable articles are: "Russia's Latest Annexation—Merr"; "The Origin of New York Churches"; "The Adventures of Bold Alonzo de Ojeda"; "Morocco and the Moors," etc. Lady Blanche Murphy, E. W. Pierce, Garry Moss, Fanny Driscoll, Annie Thomas and others, contribute delightful serials, short stories, adventures, etc; and the poems are by Charles Mackay, Wade Robinson, R. H. Shepherd, etc. Prof. W. F. Barrett has an admirable article entitled "Geysers," with eleven fine illustrations. The miscellany is large, most interesting and instructive. There are 128 quarto pages, more than 100 illustrations, and a beautiful colored-plate frontispiece, "By the Soft Sea Waves." 25 cents a copy, $2.50 a year, postpaid. Mrs. Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

Onion parties are all the rage. Six ladies take an onion with them into a room and one of the number takes a bite of it. Then a young gentleman is admitted, and after kissing all of them, if he fails to tell which one of them bit the "onion," why, then the girls all of them are compelled to kiss him, or he is compelled to kiss all of them, and we forget which. The play will have a big run here, if the onions hold out. A chromo goes with the play.

"Now, darling, will you grant me one favor before I go?"

"Yes, George, I will," she said, dropping her eyelashes and getting her lips in shape.

"What is the favor I can grant you?"

"Only a little song at the piano, love I am afraid there is a dog outside waiting for me, and I want to scare him away."—Philadelphia Call.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Cluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to contribute, or cause to be contributed, your portion, amounting to twenty-five dollars ($25), together with interest and costs, within ninety days from the date of this notice, all your right, title, interest and claim to the above mentioned quartz lode claim will become the property of the undersigned co-owner, who has made the required expenditures. M. DAVIS.

BUTTE, M. T., January 16, 1884.

When you come to think of it, it is not odd that literary people prefer a pipe to a cigar. It is harder to smoke when they are writing, and much cleaner. And then it gives them the true essence and flavor of the tobacco.

The most fastidious smokers among all nations and all classes of men agree that the tobacco grown on the Golden Tobacco Belt of North Carolina is the most delicious and refined in the world. Lighter than Turkish, more fragrant than Havana, freer from nitrate and moisture than any other, it is just what the connoisseur prizes and the habitual smoker demands. The very choicest tobacco grown on this Belt is bought by Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., and appears in their celebrated Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco. It is known the world over. Get the genuine, with Bull trade-mark, then you will be sure of having the absolutely pure tobacco.

NOTICE TO STOCK GROWERS. At a meeting of the stock men, owners of stock on the Musselshell range, said range being defined as follows: to wit: Beginning at the mouth of Box Elder creek on the Musselshell river, thence up to Box Elder to Flat Willow to head of same, thence westerly along the divide to Judith Gap, thence southerly along the divide to Copperopolis, thence westerly along the divide to the divide between Fish Creek and Sweet Grass creek, thence easterly along the divide between the waters of the Yellowstone and Musselshell rivers, to a point opposite or south of the mouth of Box Elder creek thence north to the mouth of Box Elder creek. We the undersigned stock growers of the above described range, hereby give notice that we consider said range already overstocked, therefore we positively decline allowing any outside parties, or any parties locating herds upon this range, the use of our corals, nor will they be permitted to join us in any round-up on said range, from and after this date.
