

SPORTS
FIGHTING PHYSICIAN
MAY "MAKE GOOD"

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 8.—Will Dr. B. F. Roller, the Seattle wrestler, "make good" as a fighter? This is the question that is being asked and variously answered since Roller has been matched to fight Al Kaufman before the Jeffries club in Los Angeles toward the end of this month.

James J. Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and other pugilistic stars who have boxed with Roller have expressed favorable opinions of his prowess and predict a bright future for him in the ring. Other competent judges do not hesitate to declare that the Seattle physician-athlete, while a marvel of physical development, will never set the world afire as a pugilist. To prove their case they point to the tried-and-true saying that a good wrestler never makes a good fighter. Perhaps, however, the fact that Roller has never developed into a champion mat artist may help him to defy the old rule.

Dr. Roller is in the prime of vigorous young manhood. Born in Illinois and educated at the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania, he came west after his graduation and hung out his shingle in Seattle. His marvelous physique, coupled with his natural love for athletic sports, led him to take part in amateur wrestling matches. In these amateur bouts he was invariably successful. Later he engaged in professional matches with a number of prominent wrestlers, among them Champion Frank Gotch. In these contests he made a good showing and gave promise of developing in time into a first-class wrestler. Recently he has devoted his entire time to learning the fine points of the boxing game. As a sparring partner he has had "Denver Ed" Martin, the big negro fighter who has fought Jack Johnson and other big fellows and has learned by experience every angle of the boxing game.

If Roller masters the science of the game and possesses the requisite courage it is believed he may develop into a good fighter. He possesses all of the physical qualifications for a heavyweight champion. He strips at upwards of 200 pounds, is over six feet tall and possesses a wonderfully long reach. He has a hard punch and for a novice at the game he is said to be exceedingly shifty on his feet. His muscles are softer than they should be, but this is a defect easily remedied.

SPORTING NOTES.

It Frank Chance, the peerless leader, wants to make himself popular with a few of the national club managers, he will remain on the Pacific coast during the coming season. Most National league managers are greatly interested in Chance's success as an orange grove magnate, as long as he remains out of baseball.

Wrestler Mahmount, the Turk, weighs about 205 pounds when he is stripped for action. He is 25 years old and of medium height. His strength is principally in his legs, although he has a finely-developed body and is as quick as a cat.

The peace mission of Presidents Johnson and Pulliam of the two big leagues, was unsuccessful and the coast outlaws will remain outside the fold of organized ball. The major league moguls declined to sanction the reinstatement of three blacklisted players and the deal clubs manager, he called off. President Johnson did not see Hal Chase, but if the statement of Cy Moreing of the San Jose team is of any value, New York will be minus the services of its star first baseman this year.

WOULD NOT FIGHT.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 8.—The following telegram was today received by the sporting editor of the Denver Times from James J. Jeffries in response to a message asking the former champion under what conditions he would enter the ring to fight Jack Johnson for the championship:

"I would not think of re-entering the ring at present under any conditions." For the present at least, this apparently disposes of the reported offer of $100,000 made by a number of Masuma, Nev., men for a fight between Jeffries and Johnson.
