

PROSPECTS BRIGHTEN FOR POSTAL BANK

THERE IS A POSSIBILITY THAT THE MEASURE WILL BE CONSIDERED AT THIS SESSION.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Prospects of the passage of the postal savings bank bill at this session of congress brightened somewhat, according to advices from members, as results of announcements that the friends and advocates of the measure, hitherto unorganized, were swinging into united front under the banner of the Postal Bank League of the United States, with headquarters in Chicago. Members of congress are likely before the end of another week to have abundant reminders from their constituents that the American people have confidently expected prompt enactment of the postal savings measure and will resent temporizing or delays. The Postal Savings league has issued an address declaring: "It is going to be a square-toed fight to see whether congress represents the people or not. This league will serve to coordinate the forces which seek the prompt enactment of the measure." The advisory committee of this league includes many governors and representative business men who have pledged active support for the measure during the next few weeks. Headquarters are in the fortress of the opposition, the First National bank building. Advices to the league are that nothing short of tremendous pressure from "back home" can convince congress that the Carter bill can be reached before adjournment. Congressman Madden of Illinois has written as much, his letter being as follows:

"I am interested in the postal savings bank bill also. I know of no way that any assistance on your part would aid me in becoming more enthusiastic for the proposition than I now am. I have always been an advocate of it. I will do what I can to help pass the bill when it can be reached. It looks as if that would not be the case. Among the 'obstacles' interposed is the desire of Senator Aldrich to have the postal savings bank wait upon the findings of his monumental currency commission report, although it is not involved in the scope of the investigation, and waiting would mean years of delay.

Postmaster General Helps.
The entry of Postmaster General Meyer into the lists of those now actively fighting for the postal savings bank measure against the opposition of the banking interests has also given new and official data to the aid of Senator Carter and other western senators to secure the immediate passage of the bill. Mr. Meyer's article for the Woman's World of Chicago, an advance extract of which has just been made public, not only establishes beyond question the determination of the administration to carry out the will of the people, as expressed at the polls last November, by making the postal savings plan law at this session, but also disposes of good of one of the main "arguments" of the bankers, by which they have attempted to block all legislation on the subject. This is the claim that the establishment of postal savings banks would result in the shipment of currency out of the west and the concentration of the savings of the country in a few eastern centers. The postmaster general shows in his article that the reverse of this would be the case, for money received by the government would be deposited in national banks in the localities from which it came and the calling into circulation of millions of dollars now hidden in stockpiles and other places would provide communities with more currency than they now have for the purpose of commerce. "There can be no question as to the advisability of encouraging the foreigners within our borders to make such disposition of their savings that some benefit will accrue to the communities in which they are employed," he said. "Under the bill now before the senate with a favorable report from the committee on postoffices and postroads, the money would be widely distributed, as it would be in the national banks in the districts where the deposits were first brought to the postoffices. The government would not go into the banking business. As the postoffice department is a preferred creditor, it would not demand collateral from the banks in the way of bonds. There would be the safeguard of the comptroller of the currency reporting regularly on the standing of the banks that are used as depositories, and the public liability of the stockholders of the national banks would be an additional assurance of the security of the deposits."

WILL FIGHT DECISION.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The appeal from the recent decision of Judge Wright of the District of Columbia supreme court in sentencing Samuel Morrison to jail for contempt will be vigorously pressed and a call for funds for that purpose will shortly be issued by the American Federation of Labor.
