WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 20, 1909.

GREETING.

From all parts of the great state which is his diocese, birthday greetings will be sent to Bishop Brewer today. Upon this day the beloved churchman passes the three-score-and-ten mark in his life's journey, a journey which has been fraught with earnest effort, but which has been, for the most part, through ways of pleasantness and along paths of peace.

ANOTHER JOB.

William Randolph Hearst does not recede in his opposition to William Jennings Bryan, although the election is over and the defeat of the Nebraska was made complete almost beyond the fondest hopes of the man who organized a new party to prevent the success of the Commoner. The facile writers for the Hearst syndicate dip their trenchant pens into vitriol and place upon asbestos paper the hottest stuff that their master bids them produce.

POE'S GENIUS.

Anent the Poe centenary there has been a lavish flood of eulogy and adulation of the intemperate, eccentric, unfortunate whose genius was hidden from his contemporaries by the hugeness of his failings. It is a weakness of centennial celebrations that they overlook a good deal and enlarge upon a good deal else; this has been the case in the present instance and the multitude of magazine articles and literary reviews has been almost without limit in its fulsome praise of the poor fellow whose grievous faults are now classed as mere eccentricities.

analysis of Poe in Harper's Weekly, Mr. Howells thus sums up the case: "The simple fact is that Poe was lacking in imagination as he was in sincerity, and that he vainly endeavored to supply his lack with fancy and with science. Scientific subjects were always taking his fancy, which responded with inexhaustible fertility, with infinite invention. It is wonderful how much he gets in, but it is not delightful, and the curse of unreality is on all his careful plausibility. When Tourguenief or Tolstoy reports to you what a man thought or felt in the instant of death, you know that it is true; the fact is of a mystical verity; but you know when Poe tells you a mesmerist subject spoke after death that it is not true; it would be impossible to explain how you know it, but it is somehow from your sense that the Russian masters are sincere artists and the American master is not.

"I suspect that he had always a keener literary conscience than he seemed to have. I believe that he must have hated to do the many clever, vulgar things which he did, and which are reproduced in edition after edition of his works. I believe this because I cannot forget that he was always working for a living, and working over-hard, with the jarred nerves and bewildered senses of the drunkard. After long misprizing him I have come to see him in his pathos, as a prodigal of wasted powers, the victim of cruel circumstances, of inherent evil propensities, with a certain majesty of nature, inalienable in his moral squallor."

The man whose money is invested in the Land of the McIntosh Red can take a restful nap in the morning, while the man who plays stocks has to get up and study quotations.

The craving for liberty which lives in any man's breast in any jail is naturally a burning passion when that jail is the Missoula city prison.

With the saloons and gambling houses all closed, Deadwood will no longer furnish the stage setting for the dime novel.

When Montana legislators adjourn sine die before the 60-day limit, their standing as patriots will be unquestioned.

There was diligent perusal of the dictionaries yesterday, to learn just what Mr. Willett had called the president.

There's a great field for the Salvation Army in Hamilton; the wonder is that it has been overlooked so long.

If the Oregon republicans did not intend to abide by their anti-election pledge, they should not have made it.

Of course, if you wait long enough, your walk will not require shoveling—next May, for instance.

Arizona feels that patience has ceased to be a virtue and she proposes to fight for statehood.

The Donnan bill for primary nomination of senators is several laps ahead of rival measures.

Mr. Willett of New York is probably surprised to find that the government still lives.

Now is the winter of our discontent made glorious summer by the January bargain list.

GALLINGER SELECTED. Concord, N. H., Jan. 19.—Jacob H. Gallinger, republican, was today elected United States senator from New Hampshire.

SPEAKS GOOD WORD FOR NORTH

TAFT, IN ADDRESS TO SOUTHERNERS, PRAISES ARDOR OF NORTHERN MEN.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 19.—What might be considered an entirely new point of attack on the "solid south" was made today by the president-elect, when he put in a good word for the warmth and ardor of northern men, "who know a good thing when they see it," in the charm and beauty of the southern young women. This lighter vein of Mr. Taft's humor was given vent before what he termed a "bouquet of bright and charming faces," the students at Tubman high school for girls.

The charming appearance of the student body, he said, impressed him as an entirely new and convincing argument in favor of the separation of the sexes for education.

When trained, intelligent women of the country wanted suffrage, he predicted, they would get it, on the very natural ground that they always got what they wanted.

Not Only Future. Matrimony, as Mr. Taft said at Athens last week, was not the only future to which a young woman should look, and no unsatisfactory acceptances should be made of the marriage proposals simply to avoid being an old maid.

"But, of course, in the south you are not troubled as they are in Massachusetts," he continued, "where there are so many women that there is no possibility that they can all marry, and it is a really serious problem as to what shall be done with the unmarried women. Here I know that the situation is different."

Mr. Taft then went to the Haines normal and industrial institute for negroes, where he delivered an extended address on the benefits of industrial education.

Profound Sympathy. Expressing the most profound sympathy for the struggle upward of the negro race, Mr. Taft remarked, having in mind the recent utterances of Senator Tillman:

"I do not think it inappropriate to refer to some expressions that fall from the lips of a man prominent in political life that are utterly lacking in sympathy and that are cruel and abrupt in their meaning, if they are to be given the meaning that the words naturally bear. I refer to those gentlemen who deem it necessary to affirm that, in the interest of this country, the negro race should have no education. Now, I am glad to know and believe that those men, in their hearts, do not believe that; that it comes rather from a desire to say something that shall have a sensational effect than it does from a real spirit. I know that those expressions do not represent the feeling of the great body of intelligent white men in the south."

SENSATIONAL PAPERS IN JAPAN ARE BUSY

Tokio, Jan. 20.—The nature of the matter cabled from Japan quoting the Japanese sensationalist press in regard to the anti-Japanese bills presented to the state legislature in California, is arousing the indignation of leading newspapers and American residents in Japan, who assert that the selections sent out were taken from the columns of the least responsible newspapers in Japan, whose real character is not understood in the United States. It is declared also that this was done intentionally and that the articles are calculated to arouse feelings of bitterness on both sides of the Pacific ocean. The leading newspapers denounce what they term an effort to create international unfraternity.

WILL DESIGN BUILDINGS.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 19.—The members of the New York state Alaska-Yukon commission at a meeting here today selected Architect Clarence Luce of New York, designer of many of the buildings at the Jamestown exposition, to prepare plans for New York state's building, which will be colonial in style.

SICK ALL WINTER Suffered From Bad Stomach and Severe Cough—Doctored Without Benefit—Vermont Man Was Finally RESTORED TO HEALTH BY VINOL

"About a year ago I began to run down in health, lost appetite and flesh and suffered from indigestion. All the winter I had a severe cough, doctored without any benefit and finally my druggist suggested that I try Vinol. I did so and soon began to feel better. My stomach grew stronger, my food no longer distressed me, my cough disappeared. I began to gain in flesh and soon felt like a new man. I did not believe that any remedy could make such a change in a person."—Edw. R. Wooster, Rutland, Vt.

Vinol contains tonic iron and all of the medicinal body-building elements of cod liver oil, does not taste of oil and is everywhere recognized as the greatest body-builder and strength creator known for feeble old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness and for chronic colds, hacking coughs and bronchitis.

Try it. If it does no good your money will be returned on demand. That's your guarantee but we know it will benefit any such case.—Missoula Drug Co., Missoula.

VOLCANO OF LAGNAS IS ACTIVE

ERUPTION OF MOUNTAIN IN PHILIPPINES DAMAGES SURROUNDING COUNTRY.

Manila, Jan. 20.—The volcano of Lagnas in the Tayabas province, which forms the southwestern part of the island of Luzon, became suddenly active between 3 and 5 o'clock last night, and the eruption seriously damaged the surrounding country. No reports of loss of life have been received. Loud reports, detonations and deep rumblings preceded the eruption and were heard during the afternoon.

Telegrams received describe the outbreak of the volcano as a "giant explosion of water." The governor of the province reported by telegraph that a large area of cultivated fields was destroyed, highways rendered impassable and many bridges ruined.

It is believed here that the subterranean rumblings and detonations warned the people of the coming danger in time for them to flee to the hills, thus preventing loss of life. From reports received it appears that great torrents of water rushed down the sides of the volcano as a result of the eruption.

MINING MAN IS KILLED.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 19.—J. D. Wood of Salt Lake, millionaire mine owner and perhaps the largest sheep owner in the west, was instantly killed by a Union Pacific engine in the Oregon Short Line railroad yards at 9:15 last evening. His body was discovered 20 minutes later, lying between the rails, by a car inspector.

It is not known how the accident occurred, but it is presumed that Mr. Wood, who was intending to take a train for Pioche, was taking a walk about the yards and failed to hear the approaching train.

SWIM IN FRIGID WATER.

New York, Jan. 19.—Unmindful of the chill wind bearing sheet, 16 members of the organization known as the Arctic Swimming club, plunged into the frigid surf off Brighton beach today. The eldest one of the swimmers, who counts his age at 53, suffered no ill effects after the swim, nor did the youngest member, who is 27. These men have made it a point to have their dip every Sunday in the year.

WRECK VICTIM DIES.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Jan. 19.—A. P. Rosseau of Holdrege, Neb., died here tonight of injuries received in the Denver & Rio Grande wreck at Dotsero. He is the twenty-third victim of the wreck.

THE SECRET SERVICE

Both Presidents Cleveland and McKinley, consciously or unconsciously, assented to violation of the law in the detail of secret service operatives. Ever since the administration of Mr. Cleveland the secret service has been the recognized guardian of the president's person. One of the secret service men who was among the first employed to watch over President Cleveland tells this story: "I took Mr. Cleveland some time to become accustomed to the guard placed about his residence. For several months, during the first summer I was stationed at Great Cayes, the president was unaware that any secret service men were on duty. "The house was situated on a neck of land which ran into the bay and it was far from other houses. Tramps used to wander through the estate, and cranks disturbed the household not a little before Secretary Carlisle ordered a detail of government agents to the Cleveland's summer home. "Mr. Cleveland for a long time much pleased at the arrival of myself and two associates, but she did not inform her husband for some time, knowing his dislike at anything approaching surveillance. We were ostensibly employed as farm hands, and I remember that we constructed a fine shell road that first summer. One day President Cleveland came to where I was at work and stood looking at me for some time. Finally he remarked very kindly that he had been informed of our presence, and after due consideration deemed it advisable on account of the children. We gave up our laborious job after that."

While the president is traveling and while he is at Oyster Bay secret service operatives bear full charge of all measures taken for his protection in his person. Whenever Mr. Roosevelt leaves Washington to visit another city secret service agents are always sent ahead to familiarize themselves with the police arrangements and to make suggestions for the greater protection of the executive. Mr. Roosevelt does not visit any city in the country until the plans for his public movements have been approved by the secret service. The agents who accompany him on these trips always return to Washington in a state bordering on collapse, because of the strain and the responsibilities that have been placed upon them. Through the whole 24 hours someone must be near the president, awake and on guard.

"Nobody except Chief Wilkie knows to what extent secret service agents have been employed to 'shadow' congressmen and others for political reasons. Since the scandal of 1874, when agents of the secret service division were accustomed to render service to those who had been instrumental in securing their appointment, it had been charged at various times that political work was being done by operatives. Last winter several members of the senate and house pointed out to newspaper correspondents a man who was always loitering in the corridors of the capitol building as one of the secret service operatives who, under the direction of the president, was spying upon congressmen who did not approve the Roosevelt policies.—Harper's Weekly.

From present indications the projected all-Russian railroad through Eastern Siberia will not be opened for traffic before 1912. It will tap five cities on the way east from Moscow and develop vast tracts of agricultural land.

WILL BE AGREEABLY SURPRISED

FIVE MINUTES AFTER TAKING DIAPHRAGM, INDIGESTION AND STOMACH MISERY GOES.

Why not start now—today, and trouble rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diaphragm to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diaphragm costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of indigestion and upset stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take gas from stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and, besides, one tripartite will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diaphragm works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all stomach misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diaphragm. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diaphragm, because you wish to be thoroughly cured of indigestion.

FEDERAL JURY IS PROBING SCANDAL

Its passage. The senate, by a vote of 44 to 24, adopted Mr. Lodge's motion to send Mr. Rayner's resignation to the committee on the judiciary. Senator Clapp said the senate should stop long enough to consider "where we are liable to land if we continue." He wished to know what method would be pursued to enforce compliance with the demand for information if the attorney general should refuse to furnish it.

SENATE HAS POWER.

"The senate has power to enforce its orders," retorted Mr. Rayner, adding that he believed the attorney general would give the information. He said he scarcely knew what the charges were and he wanted to know whether the district attorney of New York was proceeding under the orders of the attorney general in endeavoring to indict people in the federal circuit courts outside the District of Columbia for libel.

Mr. Clapp insisted that the very information desired by Mr. Rayner would be brought out in the proceeding to quash the indictment in New York, but the latter replied that the long delay of the proceeding would defeat his purpose even if the information could be brought out that way.

"I do not believe the attorney general is required to tell us what law he is proceeding under," said Mr. Clapp. Mr. Rayner declared that the first time an attorney general had refused to give information about business before the department. "When did it occur to any great lawyer in this senate to go to the attorney general to ask what the revised statutes show?" asked Mr. Dolliver.

NEVER BEFORE.

"But never before has there been such a case as this," Mr. Rayner retorted. "I believe in proceeding outside of the statute for the purpose of gaining information to which he has no right. I ask the senate to maintain its privileges."

Senator Knox opposed the resolution and cited the case of the Northern Securities company when he was attorney general. He said the harm that might arise from the proceeding to dissolve that illegal combination a report became widespread that there was no authority in law for such action. If a resolution so declaring had been passed by the senate, he said, its influence might have been such as to change the decision of the supreme court, as four of the justices still opposed the idea that there was such law.

WOULD REFUSE.

"If I were acting as attorney general," said Mr. Knox, "I would be constrained to say in reply to such a resolution that it was contrary to the interest of the public to express what the basis of the government's claim was, especially in a criminal case."

Mr. Culberson declared the contention in this case was that the processes of the courts were now being used to prosecute people for political offenses. He said, being prosecuted for expressing their honest convictions of a political character.

By an aye and nay vote the motion to refer the resolution to the committee on judiciary was adopted, 44 to 24.

RICH STRIKE NEAR MULLAN.

Reports from the Transcontinental mine in the Coeur d'Alene district are that a strike, which is considered one of the best in the district, was made by the property near Mullan a few days ago. The owners of the mine say the ore will run $60 to the ton, and that after driving 100 feet and the same ore body is in sight, that the building of a mill will begin as soon as the snow leaves the ground. Water power in abundance can be had within a few rods of the mine, so the expense of running the mill will be practically nothing. The money for the building has been raised.

FIFTEEN INJURED.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 19.—Fifteen people were more or less seriously injured and one fatally in the overturning of a runaway St. John electric car and trailer on a sharp curve at Williams avenue and Cherry street this afternoon.

FARMERS ADVOCATE POSTAL BANKS

THREATENED FAILURE OF CONGRESS TO PASS MEASURE CALLS FORTH PETITIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Threatened failure of congress to enact at this session the expected postal savings bank bill has become the subject of heated discussion at farmers' institutes the country over. Resolutions demanding action now have been and will be adopted by many of them and forwarded to the Postal Savings Bank league in Chicago. These and other petitions received will be forwarded to members of congress. Advice from Washington indicates that every executive will be made for failure to take action. Senator Aldrich one day insisting that the Carter bill should be entirely redrafted, although amendments that meet all objections have been agreed to, and the next day raising some other point, for the purpose of delays quite in harmony with desires of the American Bankers' association. "The acute experiences of the recent money panic seem to have been forgotten by congress or nothing could stop the postal savings bill, which would bring back into circulation a large part of $500,000,000 now in hiding," one advocate of the bill declared. "The funds are to be re-deposited in the bank nearest the depositors, so small depositors get absolute security, there is no draining of the money of one section for benefit of another and the buried talents will be put to useful aid of business in general. Among the members of the advisory committee of the Postal Savings league are Governors Gilchrist of Florida and Noel of Mississippi, who have shown the keen interest of the south in the measure for which the republican party declared unequivocally—until congress convened—and which also was endorsed by Democrats, Mayors or Hooker of Hartford and Mayor Connell of Kansas City are also on the advisory committee to urge the enactment of the proposed measure without delay, the merits having been given some 20 years of consideration with only favorable results.

ALHAMBRA PROPERTY IS BEING DEVELOPED

Spokane, Jan. 19.—Development of the Alhambra property in the Coeur d'Alene is progressing at the rate of five feet a day, the tunnel being in more than 1,300 feet. This is on the contract for a mile of tunnel work, and the owners are confident when it is completed it will lead into the ore body supplying the Bunker Hill and Sullivan, which the Alhambra adjoins. But for the panic of a year ago, money supplied by the Guggenheims would have gone toward developing the property, according to a contract with John A. Finch of Spokane, who personally controlled the Alhambra. Of all the non-producing properties in the district, the Alhambra's ground is the most valuable and consists of 25 patented claims.

MILADI'S SLIPPERS.

A woman's slippers are at once the beauty and the bane of her existence—just how much bane and how little blessing depends probably more on the manner in which she cares for them when not using them than on any other similar circumstance. A few extra smart women have taken greedily to a new model of slipper—the extra high-heeled, square-toed slipper, such as were worn at the court of that grande monarch, Louis XVI, king of France. The slipper looks perfectly beautiful on a small and slender foot, but the woman with a low ankle and a great, broad foot should shun them like the plague, for such a one will surely present a ludicrous appearance in this extra finical style of footwear.

PLENTY OF ORE IN SIGHT.

Spokane, Jan. 19.—The Bear Top Mining company, operating in the Coeur d'Alene is considering the letting of a contract for a 4-foot raise to connect the No. 2 and No. 3 levels. There is $500,000 worth of ore in sight and the mine will begin shipping as soon as the new road is ready. The property is equipped with a 100-ton concentrator.

FIFTY CENTS A MONTH

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort. Babies that are given Scott's Emulsion quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most. Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

DOWNFALL OF SLADE A SURPRISE

NO SUSPICION ATTACHED TO POSTOFFICE OFFICIAL UNTIL HE WAS CAUGHT.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 19.—In the arrest of Charles C. Slade, superintendent of delivery of the local postoffice, charged with extracting money from letters, Salt Lake business and social circles are experiencing one of the most pronounced sensations of recent years. Mr. Slade has been employed in the mail service for 23 years, 15 of which was as head of the city delivery department. His family is prominent socially, entertaining lavishly, and his wife's gowns have been the envy of many women in the circle in which she moved.

Postmaster Thomas stated yesterday that when the inspectors were brought here to locate, if possible, the source of the leakage in the local office, no suspicion attached to Slade, and that it was only by the merest accident that he was discovered in the act of extracting money from a letter. He added that Mr. Slade, from whom the local police profess to have obtained a written confession of his guilt, had become so adept in the art of opening letters that he was able to reseal them without leaving any evidence of their having been tampered with.

It is not possible to estimate the amount of money secured in this manner, but it is believed that the total is small. Sums ranging from 25 cents to $25 have been missed at various intervals, extending over a period of about one year.

Mrs. Slade assigns ill health, overwork and financial worry as the cause of her husband's alleged action.
