

IN THE RAILWAY WORLD NO FOUNDATION FOR TUNNEL TRACK GANG STORIES MAKES PROGRESS

OFFICIALS OF HARRIMAN LINES
DECLARE NO CHANGES ARE CONTEMPLATED.

LAST RAILS WILL BE LAID IN ST.
PAUL PASS TUNNEL ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

Ogden, March 18.—Julius Kruttschnitt, vice president and director of maintenance and operation of the western roads of the Harriman system, arrived from Los Angeles this morning in his private car over the San Pedro and Oregon Short Line roads.

"No radical changes are contemplated at this time in the management of either the Southern Pacific, Oregon Railway & Navigation company, Oregon Short Line or Union Pacific roads," said Mr. Kruttschnitt.

"You may quote me emphatically on this subject. I will also add that the stories recently published regarding rumors of changes are without foundation in fact.

"I would like to impress railroad officials generally with the fact that the Harriman management is not desirous of making changes at any time."

W. E. Dauchy, division engineer of the Puget Sound line, returned yesterday from Taft, where he has been inspecting conditions in the tunnel. Mr. Dauchy said last night that steel laying in the tunnel was progressing very satisfactorily, and that it was expected the steel would be connected up by Saturday night. Rails are now laid about two-thirds of the distance through the big bore, and with average luck all the work should be finished on Saturday night.

East of Missoula the gangs continue to move westward at a rate of about two miles a day, and will probably reach Missoula early in April. This, however, will not mean that the line will be complete through, as the Puget Sound will not be able to lay its steel for a distance of four miles between Bearmouth and Nimrod until the Northern Pacific vacates the line, about June 1. Reports reaching Missoula indicate that there is still a small piece of track near the Columbia river not finished, but it is expected that this track will be ready for the ballasting gangs in about a week.

CONTRACTS AWARDED FOR NEW RAILROAD

Butte, March 18.—A Miner special from Dillon states that authoritative announcement was made today by John Duffy, general superintendent for the construction company of McArthur Brothers of Portland, that the work of constructing the Pittsburg & Gilmore railroad will begin April 1. McArthur Brothers were awarded the contract for building the road, and have opened up offices in Dillon, and are now letting sub-contracts for construction work. The Pittsburg & Gilmore railroad will connect with the Oregon Short Line at Armstead, Mont., and extend to Salmon, Idaho, a distance of 120 miles, opening a portion of Idaho hitherto without railroad facilities, the Short Line being the nearest road. Pittsburg and New York capitalists are said to be behind the project.

ORCHARD MEN SORRY BILL FAILED FOR THE TERM

THE INVALIDATING OF THE INSPECTION LAW IS REGRETTED AT HAMILTON.

Special to The Daily Missoulian.
Hamilton, March 18.—It was with regret that the people of this section learned, when they read The Missoulian today, that the governor had found errors in the enrollment of Senate Bill 113, which provided for the appointment of a commissioner of horticulture. Senator Romney, who introduced the bill, was seen tonight by a Missoulian reporter, and was asked for his opinion regarding the situation. Mr. Romney said: "I am very sorry to learn that the bill has failed through what appears to be a clerical error. I introduced the bill at the request of the fruitgrowers, it having been drawn up by E. C. Mulrooney of Missoula at the suggestion of the state horticultural society. I believe it would have been a great benefit to the orchard interests of the state. The bill passed the senate in the form in which it was introduced, the principal change being that the selection of the state commissioner by the governor was to be submitted to the state board of horticulture for approval. The bill came back to the senate during the rush of the last night of the session. The house amendment was concurred in and the bill was sent for enrollment. Colonel Marshall, who was much interested in the passage of the bill, at my request went to the committee with the bill. I suppose the amendment must have been lost by the clerks; I can account in no other way for the invalidating of the measure by omission. It is unfortunate. I did not see the bill after Colonel Marshall said he would look after the enrollment. I suppose in the rush of that night the clerks lost the slip with the amendment attached."

Notice to Contractors.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS PLAN FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Much interest is being shown on the part of those interested in the schools for the musical and dramatic entertainment that is to be given in the assembly room of the south side school next Tuesday night by members of the eighth grade class. The music will be furnished by several divisions of the chorus class under the direction of Music Supervisor Miss Patten, and there is great promise of something good in this line. The girls' glee club, girls' quartet, boys' club and boys' triple quartet will be featured, as well as some instrumental music by the eighth grade pupils.

A reading by the same pupils from "The Sky Pilot" will supply the literary part of the program, and is being given under the supervision of the teacher of elocution in the eighth grade, Miss Prichard.

This is the first of a series of programs that is to be given for the benefit of the piano fund of the city schools. Tickets will be placed on sale today.

PREHISTORIC LID

IT'S ONLY THE PAINTER

We see the inside of an apartment, where a couple are living, apparently very happy. Through the windows we see the scaffolding upon which some painters are busy painting the window sills. It comes time for them to quit, and they climb down, leaving the scaffolds suspended where they are. Soon the man of the house goes out, and in a little while an admirer of his wife comes upon the scene and is admitted to her room. They are having a quiet little visit when the maid rushes in, telling her mistress that her husband is at the door. The woman is in an awful state of perplexity, for she has no place to hide her friend. Finally she rushes to the window and grabs one of the painter's jumpers and puts it on the fellow and starts him on the job. When the husband enters he sees the fellow in the room, but when the wife explains that it is only the painter doing his duty, his mind is put at ease, and the intruder is saved from a beating. Finally, when he gets a chance, he tries to escape; so he climbs out on the scaffold and starts to pull on the ropes which draw him up to the next floor, where he enters an apartment and is ordered out by the woman occupant. He goes up to the next flat, and in each one he meets with trouble. Finally he starts to make a descent, and as he passes each floor he meets with a bombardment of missiles. The painters have by this time returned to their work, and when they see the fellow using their scaffold they call to him to come down; but realizing the danger at the hands of the burly fellows, he enters an apartment where he meets the cook, who treats him very cordially. She lends him some of her clothes, and in the disguise he goes down the stairs, but to his surprise, when he reaches the street, he is recognized by the awaiting crowd, including the enraged husband. They grab him and throw him into a tub of water and give him a well-deserved ducking, and he leaves the place, vowing never to return.
