CAUGHT ON THE RUN ABOUT TOWN

PEOPLE YOU KNOW AND SOME OF THE THINGS THEY DO AND SAY.

The action of the city council in adjourning last night to Thursday night filled the only vacant date in the week and furnished some attraction for every day. The democrats last night filled the opening date of the week by running according to the dope sheet and placing the favorite at the head of their ticket. Realizing the futility of attempting to secure an audience against the drawing power of the democratic convention, the aldermen wisely concluded to wait until there would be no counter-attraction. Tonight at the Harnois Paul Gilmore will have the boards, even if his papier-mache counterfeit is not returned by the kidnapers. Tomorrow night the republicans will perform in their original melodrama "How to Win, or Who Will Swat Patterson." Then will come the off night in which the city council will get in its work. Friday night there will be another good one at the Harnois, and Saturday night will end the week in the all-star performance which will be given by the merchants of Missoula in their inimitable act of giving the choicest Easter bargains, the latest goods at the lowest prices. The indications are that the later performances will prove more satisfactory than last night's curtain-raiser. There was a misfit in the democratic show, which might have been entitled, "Oil and Water—They Don't Mix."

THOUSANDS OF TEETH NEED ATTENTION

EXAMINATION OF MOUTHS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN SHOWS STARTLING CONDITION.

The children in the public schools of Missoula are carrying around with them, according to Dr. T. T. Rider, who has just completed an official examination, 4,448 teeth which are in immediate need of attention. Of these 2,391 defects are found in teeth of the boys and 1,427 in those of the girls. All of these teeth too were found in the examination of 854 pupils, showing an average of 5 1/2 bad teeth to each pupil. Out of the whole number only 33 were found with perfect teeth, 16 of whom were girls and 17 boys. The examiner also found that there were 818 teeth which needed cleaning by a dentist and that there were only 274 children out of the whole 814 who used a tooth brush once a day.

The foregoing figures are among the most interesting of those found in the report of Dr. Rider to the school board in which he explains his work in the following terms:

The object of a dental examination is to educate the children in the proper care of their teeth. After the examination proper is completed, the value of the permanent teeth, the great importance of caring for the temporary teeth is explained, also the reason for recommending the extraction of teeth. The proper manner of caring for the teeth is brought to the attention of the child. A tooth brush best adapted for this purpose is recommended. A brush having the bundle of bristles far apart is much to be preferred to one where they are close together. In the former, food particles are not so likely to lodge between the bristles and decompose, and it has the further advantage of drying more rapidly.

Each boy and girl, on an average, has five and one-half teeth needing attention. Of this number one and one-half are of the permanent teeth. Frequent dental examinations have many advantages. Cavities are found while small, which means that a filling can be placed with little or no pain. Children dread visiting the dentist because the tooth is allowed to decay until large cavities form and the consequent pain drives them there. The first permanent molar, which is the first of the permanent teeth to appear, erupts when the child is 6 years old. This tooth is often mistaken for a temporary tooth because it has no predecessor and appears soon after the baby teeth have erupted. Many children have neglected this tooth for the above reasons and consequently he has the largest and most important of the permanent teeth. Each child, on an average, has three temporary teeth in need of filling. Few parents realize the value of the baby teeth. These teeth are as important to the child as the permanent teeth to an adult. A child cannot chew its food properly if it has had several teeth extracted. The stomach cannot perform its work when the food has not been thoroughly masticated. The child cannot be healthy and strong if the food is not properly digested, consequently the child's school work is impaired because of lack of a strong constitution. The temporary teeth are not only for the mastication of food but to retain spaces for the second teeth. The early loss of the first teeth often causes a crowded condition of the second teeth. The baby molars especially must be kept in position until their successors are ready to take their places, because they assist the first permanent molars in taking proper position. The appearance of this latter tooth stimulates the growth of the jaw forward, opening the lower portion of the face to be in harmony with the upper. When the temporary molars are lost early it is likely that the permanent molar will appear further forward in the mouth, causing either a crowding of the permanent teeth when they appear or a protrusion of the lower jaw.

Cavities in the temporary teeth are as painful to the child as cavities in the permanent teeth. Neglect of these teeth not only means toothache, but food will collect in the cavities, decompose, effect the pulp and an abscess forms. An abscess, erroneously called an ulcerated tooth, means pus formation, and the flow of this into the mouth and thence into the stomach will not tend to the upbuilding of the child's body. Thus we see that temporary teeth are there to masticate our food, hold space for the permanent teeth and to aid in the growth of the jaws.

The extraction of a tooth was indicated in 25 per cent of the children. Almost half of the teeth to be removed were of the second set. This was recommended because they could no longer be made useful to the child and were likely to ache and abscess from at any time. The temporary teeth were to be removed so as to permit the incoming permanent tooth to assume its proper position in the mouth. Many of the permanent teeth do not appear in their places because the temporary teeth have not been removed at the proper time. Their long retention does as much harm as their early loss. Ofttimes a child has use of only half because of their loss. The examination indicated that every boy and girl was in need of having the teeth cleaned. Green and dark brown stains were found upon the teeth, which ought to be removed. The green stains, if not removed, will dissolve the outer part of the tooth structure, causing the formation of a cavity. The brown stain does not tend to a cleanly condition of the mouth and therefore should be removed. Children's parents put forth special efforts to see that the child's hands and face are clean before going to school. Why should not the teeth be given the same attention? The child will not eat a piece of bread if the hands are dirty, yet it never hesitates if the teeth have been brushed for a week or not. On rainy days the janitor takes great pains to see that the children clean their shoes before entering the building. He has learned by experience that the doorstep can be more easily swept clean than the entire building; by this simple method he saves both time and labor. Why can we not adopt the same plan in caring for the mouth? The mouth is the threshold of the body; any decomposed food that is allowed to accumulate here is carried on through

PATTERSON NAMED FOR MAYOR

McLaughlin, H. T. Wilkinson and W. R. Everts.

Resolutions—Will Cave, F. H. Woody, Sr., Charles H. Hall and Adam Bickel.

Two Are Nominated.

In a characteristic speech, Judge F. H. Woody placed before the convention the name of John E. Patterson, pledging him to a "good, clean business administration." W. H. McLaughlin nominated P. M. Reilly, but before the convention had taken a ballot, Mr. Reilly declined the honor, giving as his reason that his business cares would not allow him to accept. Mr. Reilly then moved that the nomination of Mr. Patterson be by acclamation and the colors of the democracy of Missoula were placed in the care of the alderman from the Third ward without a dissenting voice.

Aldermanic Candidates.

After a brief recess, during which the delegations of the various wards canvassed, the convention ratified the following candidates for alderman: William Crawford, First ward; James Corbett, Second ward; H. T. Wilkinson, Third ward; John Bonner, Fourth ward.

Committeemen Chosen.

The following new members of the city central committee of the democratic party were chosen last night: G. Deschamps and Joe Dean, First ward; James Piquette and A. E. Higgins, Second ward; J. W. Hicklin and Thomas Nelson Marlowe, Third ward; P. J. Conroy and R. E. Gove, Fourth ward. After the convention proper had adjourned, Mr. Hicklin was elected chairman of the new committee.

operation on Wednesday morning. There is now only a short span of wire to be strung near Booser, and this will be finished by noon today. The dispatchers' office is to be established in the Puget Sound freight office here and will be maintained in that building until quarters are available at Alberton, the division point now in course of construction.

Locked telephone booths are being erected at all stations and sidetracks along the line of the new road, and the movement of the trains on the division will be regulated by the telephone system adopted by the company. Conductors will handle their own train orders by direct communication with the dispatchers and no operators will be appointed until regular train service is scheduled.

Local officials of the Puget Sound line are unanimous in declaring that in 60 days the new line will be in perfect condition and ready for regular trains.

REGISTRY AGENTS CLOSE THEIR BOOKS

When the registry agents in Missoula's four wards closed their books last evening after the final day for registration, the total number of men who had acquired the right to vote at the coming city election was found to be 1,281. When the books were closed last evening the chance to register for the election of next month was closed to everybody—almost. There is still a chance for those who have up to date been unable to get their names on the lists and this will come on Saturday, April 3, when the books will be opened at each of the registry offices from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.
