GREEN HAS FRIENDS IN MISSOULA

PASTOR OF LOCAL CHURCH AND UNIVERSITY INSTRUCTOR KNOW LECTURER.

The arrival of Dr. Thomas E. Green will bring special pleasure to at least two of his friends and admirers. He is a personal friend of Rev. Walter Lennie-Smith, and delivered the baccalaureate address before the class when Dr. J. H. Underwood of the university graduated from college. Both of these gentlemen speak of him in the highest terms as a lecturer.

Dr. Green lectured in several cities of Montana last season, and it is greatly to his credit as a speaker that he was asked to return in nearly every case, something which was not done for other speakers. This is his first appearance in Missoula, and those who go to hear him will be both entertained and instructed.

The Boston Journal says of his lecture, "The Key to the Twentieth Century":

"No one who heard Dr. Green's address will soon forget it. It was a speech that if printed in full would not be adequately reported. It was a prose ode on patriotism, an exaltation of American destiny, so earnestly, so magnificently delivered, that the audience was again and again lifted to cheers, and even to waving handkerchiefs."

The Atlanta Constitution says of his lecture on "Civil Bacteriology":

"There have been few platform orators heard here who created a more profound impression than he; few who have proven so fascinating and at the same time so profoundly instructive. His gift, and he possesses it in a marked degree, is that of directing the attention of his hearers that the common things of every day become invested with the magnificence and romance of epic poetry."

The lecture is the sixth in the university course. Ticket No. 6 will be used. Seats will be assigned as for the last number.

BEAR HUNTER HERE.

Martin Johnson, the noted trapper and bear hunter, was in the city yesterday from the east fork of the Bitter Root. He says that the bears in that vicinity have not yet made their reappearance after spending the winter in sleeping. Mr. Johnson reports that there is from six to nine feet of snow on Rock creek, most of it being half water, and he thinks the rivers and creeks will be unusually high this spring.

Don't Forget the Hen

She is a producer and lucky is the man who owns a few. We have a hen ranch, and it is a dandy. Three acres one mile from the corner of Higgins avenue, and joins platted part of city. A fine 4-room house, plastered, and in first-class condition, wood shed and granary, two large chicken houses and fine brooder house. 60 fruit trees, mostly bearing. Fine shrubbery and flowers; good fence and water right. With the places goes all kinds of tools, 200 thoroughbred hens, household furniture. You can work in the city and live on this property, and if you take care of your hens they will make you this property clear in a few years. Price, $2,500, terms.

LONG-FELT WANT FILLED AGAIN

WEEKLY KAIMIN PLEASES STUDENTS OF UNIVERSITY IN FIRST APPEARANCE.

Yesterday noon No. 1, Volume I, of the Weekly Kaimin was distributed among the students of the state university. Ever since the plans for a weekly college newspaper began to take shape last winter the university has looked forward to the first issue. That the hopes of the students and faculty were realized in the first issue was evident from the many expressions of satisfaction with the new undertaking, and the editors received many flattering comments.

The Weekly Kaimin is a four-page newspaper which will be issued every week, appearing on Wednesday evenings. It is filled with news concerning the state university, supplying a "long-felt want" for a regularly published journal which would chronicle university happenings with special reference to the interests of the institution. The new journalistic venture may be complimented for the excellent tone in which university happenings are related and the wholesome attitude taken toward college interests.

The keen appreciation of university life taken by the student promoters is shown in the editorial column:

"The Weekly Kaimin is primarily a newspaper and in this function will exert every influence to 'make good.' It has its mission to perform and we trust that the Weekly, through its editorial columns and its general tone, will place before the students, the faculty, the alumni and their friends a clean, wholesome view of college life and to represent the Montana spirit as it is found in the class room and the athletic field, at work and at play and in every phase of collegiate activities."

"The spirit of change from the old to the new, the trend toward the development of a high-class collegiate institution, which has characterized the University of Montana during the present academic year, has borne fruit likewise among student enterprises. A new president, the raising and rigid enforcement of entrance requirements and the elimination of the preparatory department are significant, far-reaching facts, which have been realized for any a few past months."

The principal feature of yesterday's issue was a large half-tone cut of President Dunaway on the first page, with the president's greetings. President Dunaway said that "The university will profit greatly by the success of this enterprise. The better the institution and its activities are understood by the public, the more rapid will be its development; the greater will be its resources."

The paper is managed by the University Press club, membership in this organization being open to students, alumni and faculty. There are at present about 40 members of the club, each holding from one to five shares of stock. The club has a paid-up capital of $150 to start with. In order to keep the control of the paper out of student politics not more than five shares of stock can be held by any one person nor can the members of any one fraternity hold more than 20 shares. This plan has been adopted to make the paper entirely representative of the whole institution. The first board of directors contains five students, one faculty member and one alumnus.

The following is the membership of the staff: Charles S. McCowan, editor in chief; Robert C. Cline, managing editor; Frederick Greenwood, Robert L. Satterthwaite, DeWitt C. Warren, Arthur W. O'Rourke, reporters; Gilbert McLaren, business manager; Lamar D. MacLay, Dudley Richards, assistant business managers; Daniel M. Connor, circulator.

The following are the members of the board of directors: Robert C. Cline, president; Mamie Burke, vice president; DeWitt Warren, secretary; treasurer; Gilbert McLaren, Edna Fox, Dr. J. H. Underwood and J. B. Spear.

Coming! Be Sure to See It! Next week, beginning Monday and continuing until Saturday night, housewives and others of Missoula are to be given a treat in the form of demonstrations on cereal foods by representatives of the Quaker Oats company.
Besides being the best cereal foods in the matter of purity and cleanliness, Quaker Oats products are the most attractive to the eye and palate. The Quaker Oats company spends thousands of dollars yearly in showing the public the best and most wholesome way to prepare and serve cereal foods. This is a rare opportunity for the ladies of Missoula.
If you will attend one of these demonstrations you'll feel fully repaid. Don't miss it!
