CAUGHT ON THE RUN ABOUT TOWN

PEOPLE YOU KNOW AND SOME OF THE THINGS THEY DO AND SAY.

The county commissioner are planning a road-road movement of their own, and their first step along this line are HIGHWAYS. To be taken soon. At the session of the board last week there was a long discussion of the road question and a general policy was considered. It is likely that there will be further talk along this line when the board meets again tomorrow. In the meantime, the commissioners have decided to proceed with the construction of a new bridge on the main road across Lolo creek. The old bridge is weak and badly worn and there is urgent need for a new structure, as the travel that way is heavy. The new bridge will be larger and stronger than the old one and will be built at once. There are several important road problems to be considered by the board soon; there is urgent need for work in several parts of the county. Up the Blackfoot there is a cry for road work; the highway up the river to Clearwater is in unusually bad condition this spring and the demand for improvement here is imperative. Commissioner Nelson is personally familiar with the conditions in this part of the county and his advice regarding the road work here is that the thing to do is to build thoroughly whatever road is made this year and not have to build it over next spring. And this is a good plan for road work anywhere. Poor road work is money thrown away. On this the commissioners were agreed in their discussion.

In some way there has been a wrong impression formed regarding the purpose of the west side NOT ANY FRICITION. committee to confer with the members of the school board regarding the new school house that is to be erected over in the end of the town. The Missoulian's report of the meeting of the west side's Thursday night stated that this committee had been named as a conference committee, and that was all there was to it. "It is entirely wrong," said one of the representative west side people last night, "to think for a moment that there is any friction between the folks over our way and the members of the school board. We are appreciative of the fact that the school trustees have been very considerate of our needs, and we believe that they have done everything that they could do for us. We have no contention at all with them; we named a committee the other night merely to assist the trustees if in any way we could do so. We have no intention to annoy the board, as we have complete confidence in the trustees. We merely thought that there might arise an opportunity for us to help, and we wanted to be in shape to do so at a moment's notice. It is likely that the committee will never be called upon to act, but if its services are ever needed it will be ready to serve the board in any way possible." That is all there is to it, and the attempt to make anything else out of it is a mistake, for there is nothing else to be made out of it. We want it understood that we are the friends of the board."

John M. Price spent a busy Saturday, his Saturdays are ordinarily busy, but this one was HIS BUSY SATURDAY. to sell lots all the way from the state university down to the Shryock farm and was all booked up for a day of business activity when fate intervened. The particular form of fate that butted in at the opening of the day was the insistent duty of every citizen to serve upon a jury when he is called. John M. Price is a good citizen, and he responded to the call of duty—he had to or he would have been held in contempt of court. He drew a prize and was made foreman of a jury in a divorce case. That was going some, especially as the case was hotly contested. But the woman won her case and was given everything she asked for. Mr. Price then returned to his business, and had just got well into the swing when he was summoned as an expert witness in a police court where cruelty to animals was the charge. He was more at ease here than he had been in the divorce affair; he made a good witness and no pettyfogging could faze him. He knew more about horses than either the prisoner or his attorney, and the court soon discovered the fact. When he was dismissed from this service it was time to go to dinner and the day was gone. Today Mr. Price can enjoy the peace of a Sunday that follows a week well spent and the happiness that comes from the consciousness of duty well performed.

ENGINEERS' SOCIETY GIVES BANQUET

IN HONOR OF PROFESSOR COPELAND AND SENIORS. SPREAD IS SERVED.

Last night in the state university gymnasium the sixth annual banquet of the Associated Engineers was held, the event being given in honor of Professor C. A. Copeland and the four members of the senior engineering class, Charles E. Farmer, Barney E. Kitt, Frank E. Lewis and William M. Van Eman. A feature of the engineers' banquet was the presence of the girls of Woman's hall, who were invited to participate in the festivities.

The gymnasium was decorated in the colors of the engineers' society, purple and white, and a long banquet table was stretched nearly the entire length of the gymnasium floor. The menu was unique, terms suggestive of engineering work being used. The menu cards were in the form of neat blueprint folders, tied in the engineers' colors.

Following the banquet, President C. A. Dunlavy assumed the duties of toastmaster, introducing the speakers with witty remarks and making many comments pleasing to the banqueters. President Dunlavy spoke of the need of such organizations as the engineers' society, stating that they developed a commendable unity of spirit among the students. He took occasion to compliment the engineers as well as the general student body on the reputation which is being earned throughout the state by university students for the kind of work which they are doing.

The four engineering seniors were then introduced in turn, B. F. Kitt being the first to respond to a toast. Mr. Kitt spoke of Montana, "Our Chosen State," and its possibilities for engineering graduates. Charles E. Farmer gave a retrospective talk on the class, telling many interesting anecdotes of "prep" days. William M. Van Eman, president of the Associated Engineers, gave the president's toast, speaking at length of the work of the organization. "Where, Oh Where, Are the Grave Old Seniors?" was responded to by Frank Lewis in an interesting manner.

President Dunlavy called on Miss Stewart, who spoke for the ladies present. Professor Copeland responded to the last toast of the evening, relating some interesting experiences and proving himself a pleasant after-dinner speaker.

What Time?

Heimbach & Kelley have a novel guessing scheme at their store. With every 25-cent purchase the firm gives a card upon which is printed in hour, minutes and seconds, the time. In the show window is a clock which is covered as to its face, the clock will not be wound and on Wednesday the cover will be lifted and the hour noted at which it stopped. The holder of the ticket which shows nearest to the hour of stopping will be given a prize, consisting of silver dollars. Every Wednesday night from now until July 14 the clock will be unveiled; ticket holders, in order to be in on the guessing contest, must be present at the unveiling, which will occur at 8:30 p. m.
