GETTING AHEAD.

THE machinery on the work at the coffer dam at pier 2 of the big bridge is working well; last night the work was carried on by electric light all through the night, and it was estimated that the down-river footing of this pier would have its location all ready some time today. There are yet four feet to sink in the up-river coffer dam before the preparations at this point are finished. The past 24 hours have been the best in point of results of any day's work that has been done here. Today two new 16-inch pumps will be set up and probably started at the coffer dam of pier 10. It is believed that with this increased capacity, the work at this pier, which is well advanced, will be speedily finished. The piles are all driven in one of the coffer dams at this pier, and there is not much work to be done on the other before the piles can be driven there. The big pumps will be put into action just as soon as possible, and there is every reason to believe that this work, which is the most difficult on the job, will be disposed of in short order. There were hundreds of people watching the work yesterday, deeply interested in its progress. If pier 10 can be completed soon and pier 3 can be rushed through, they will remain but pier 2 which will be the last one needed. The outlook is encouraging.

William Q. Ranft, whose return from the east was noted in The Missoulian yesterday morning was at the AT HOME. Ranft welcomed during the day by many of his friends, glad to see him at home again. Mr. Ranft was busy with duties that naturally attend the taking up of business matters which accumulated during an extended absence, but found time to express his satisfaction at being home once more. "I had a very good trip," said Mr. Ranft to a Missoulian reporter last night, "but I am always pleased to be back in Missoula, and this return is no exception to the rule. The town seems to be better and busier than ever, and I am more than confident of its permanent prosperity."

Up at Reid station on the Evaro mountain there is a chicken waiting for the owner. The person who has the chicken in charge is taking good care of the bird, but he writes that he cannot spend any more time hunting for the rightful owner of the fowl. The man who is thus embarrassed by the possession of a chicken says in a letter which he wrote yesterday to the Missoulian, that he has not the means of relief from the situation which would ordinarily suggest itself, as he is a vegetarian and does not eat chicken. He is of the opinion that he has been jobbed. He says that a clerk in a grocery store in Missoula, where he goes when he comes to town to buy his pease and lentils when he stocks up his vegetarian pantry, is the author of the trouble. When the Reid man was last in town he drove to this store, and while waiting for his purchases, he saw one of the clerks watching a leg-tied chicken; he was the better that the clerk wanted the chicken, but could not find the opportunity to secrete the fowl. This, of course, is merely circumstantial evidence, but the Reid man contends that it strengthens his belief that that clerk put that leg-tied chicken into the back end of that buggy. Any way, when the Reid man had driven away from the store, he discovered that the chicken was in his possession. He wasted an hour or more asking people along the road if the bird was theirs; then he was compelled to go home, as it was late. Now he has the chicken, and he can't come to town to get rid of it. He will, however, turn it over to the rightful owner if ownership is established.

Chester Richli has a new song which starts off this way: "I wore a white carnation, but she didn't come." What the rest of the song is none of the boys of the Northern Pacific headquarters can tell, for Richli has not sung any more of it; that much is enough to explain why Chester has such a cold this morning and why he wandered up and down the street last night wearing conspicuously a white carnation and looking for a pretty girl with a red one. The boys assert that he was looking for this girl; how they know is not divulged. But this morning Chester had a bad cold and a heart that is an aching void. He hasn't figured out what happened, but he knows she didn't come.

SOLOMON JOKES

Leo Solomon is entertaining, as his guest, a cousin, H. J. Selig of San Francisco. He is naturally anxious that his guest should have a good time, while he is in town, and is exerting himself in every way to see that Missoula makes a good impression upon this particular Native Son of the Golden West. To that end, yesterday, he told all the hackmen, expressmen, policemen, restaurant men and others whom he met that Selig was in town, and he wanted to give him a good time. He wanted Selig to feel at home, he said, and he urged every one that he met to greet him cordially when he came down the street. The result was that it took Selig an hour and a half to go two blocks on Higgins avenue yesterday. First, a policeman greeted him with, "Hello, Selig, when did you leave Frisco?" Selig was overjoyed to meet somebody who had known him in Frisco, and he chatted a while with the copper. He had gone but a few steps when he was halted by a hackman with, "Hello, Selig, when did you leave Frisco?" This led to another conversation about the Golden Gate and its people. An expressman was

When Selig went into a restaurant to get something to eat, a waiter graciously said, "Hello, Selig, when did you leave Frisco?" And that meal tasted ever so good. The salutation was encountered all the afternoon, and last night Selig said he had no idea there were so many Frisco people in Missoula; he wanted to know how they all happened to get up this way.

Freight Car Robbery of August Revealed

By the announcement yesterday of the arrest of Louis Morton in Spokane, the reason of the incarceration of O. E. Johnson, who was taken into custody last Sunday, was made public. Morton, it is claimed, was Johnson's accomplice in robbing a freight car in the local yards of the Northern Pacific last August. At that time $375 worth of Smith & Wesson revolvers were taken from the car, which signed out here, but was more completely further west. The railroad detectives have spent much time in securing evidence against Johnson, who was suspected from the first, and caused his arrest several days ago, through the local sheriff's office. It is claimed that he had a Smith & Wesson pistol in his pocket when arrested. Johnson is a laborer and has been in Missoula most of the time since last summer.

TROUBLES OF A NIGHT

An unknown Finlander, too far gone in drink to do anything but cry, was robbed at an early hour this (Saturday) morning on the vacant lot to the west of the Green & Ellinghouse livery stable on West Front street by two men, both of whom escaped after being frightened away by the screams of a passing woman. Both ran through the Milwaukee saloon, and was last seen on the river bank. Earlier in the night two men attempted the same game on the same lot. After the assault on the Finlander it was brought out that two men tried to drag a passerby into the lot, after hitting him over the head with a beer bottle. They had, however, misjudged their man, and fled as he turned to fight. He did not report the attack to the police. Frank Lustrik, Matt Kasumich and Dixie St. Clair were arrested at 2 o'clock this morning by Officer Theriault. Lustrik claims that he was touched by the St. Clair woman at $20. Matt Kasumich is being held as a witness.

EDWARD C. MULRONEY WILL WED

COUNTY ATTORNEY WILL MARRY MISS O'LEARY—KAPPA DANCE IS BRILLIANT.

County Attorney Mulroney left last evening for Fort Dodge, Iowa, where, on Wednesday, April 28, he will marry Miss Mary C. O'Leary. The ceremony will be performed in the Corpus Christi church of Fort Dodge. Mr. Mulroney and his bride will return to Missoula about April 25 and will make their home here, after an extensive wedding trip that will include many of the larger cities and points of interest in the east. Miss O'Leary has been a teacher in the Des Moines high school for several years. She is a woman of superior attainments and will be welcomed to Missoula society. Mr. Mulroney is one of the best known attorneys of western Montana. He was elected county attorney on the republican ticket last fall and has been a member of the state legislature. Mr. Mulroney is also prominent in fraternal life.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Dance.

The delightful dance given last evening by the Beta Phi chapter of the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity proved far beyond all that the most artistic and artistically decorated in red and white, the brilliant color scheme being carried out in draperies of white silk overhung with quantities of gorgeous poinsettias. Each window was screened and a larger screen completely hid the orchestra. In the receiving line were the patrons and patronesses, Professor and Mrs. Fred Scheuch and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Keith, and all of the members of the local chapter. Throughout the hall were numerous cozy corners, almost enchanting enough to withstand the call of the especially good music of the evening. Lights, shaded in the prevailing color, shed a rosy hue over the pretty scene, and beautiful girls, handsome gowns and a good floor made the occasion all that could be wished for. Among those present from out of town were Miss Bessie Clynick, Bonner; Miss Frances Jones, Anaconda; Miss Jessie Wharton, Butte; Miss Lillian Vivian, Butte; Mrs. Arthur Morgan, Hope; Miss Kurtz, Tart; Mr. H. Williams, Seattle; Mr. Will Craig, Helena; Mr. William O'Brien, Huson; Mr. Oates, Tart; Mr. A. Beckwith, St. Ignace; and Mr. George Weisel, Henderson.

SPOKANE'S FLOAT IS VERY FINEST

Spokane, April 23.—"Spokane's float the finest in the largest women's parade ever held in London."

Mrs. La Reine Baker of Spokane, who with the three Misses Kangley of Seattle, participated in the street demonstration in London on April 11 in honor of the release from Galloway jail of Mrs. Petrick Lawrence, sent the foregoing cablegram to Mrs. May Arkwright Hutton, president of the Spokane Equal Suffrage association. The four women, who are delegates to the convention of the International Suffrage societies, rode in an open carriage, which was decorated with the Stars and Stripes.

The message was read at a largely attended meeting at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Goding, 227 Ermina avenue, where Mrs. Hutton, who was the principal speaker, said, in part: "One of the various objections advanced against granting women political liberty is that if the women have the ballot the home and babies may be neglected and that the publicity at the polls may mar her chief charm—modesty. The fact that election day rolls around once in two years or once each year at the most, and that an opinion can be written and placed in a box in about five minutes does not seem to consume much of the year's time. This duty of voting is less arduous than some that have fallen to the lot of women. "And yet another objection. Women might have to sit on juries if they voted. I think that women who stand behind counters or in factories at the cook stove, washtub, ironing table, dish sink and baby crib would be mighty glad to sit on almost anything for a rest.

"I am aware that at present women do not take any great interest in public affairs, but the average woman is a dutiful member of society and as soon as she could realize that her duty as a citizen would require her voice in solving the great problems she would not only think and act but vote intelligently. At least this is her record where she now possesses the absolute franchise in the four 'free' states. "Women who want the ballot stand for a school suffrage. If a young mother is capable of choosing members for a school board who must pass upon the qualifications of teachers who will guide her children through school years, how much more capable should she be with the added wisdom of mature years to aid in selecting men to make laws that shall govern her children through their manhood and womanhood. A mother's interest in the welfare of her children does not cease with their school years. In summing up this entire question there are no logical reasons why women should be deprived of a voice in making laws which she and her children are bound to obey. "There are two classes of men who oppose woman suffrage. One class places woman on a pedestal and worships at her shrine. He would work, think and vote for his womankind, denying her all individual thought or action. Another class degrades women and desires that all womankind shall be held in subjection. "But there is still another class, composed of common people, whom Lincoln said 'the Lord loved, because he made so many of them.' They are demanding a square deal for all, regardless of sex. The heads of families of this class know that the ballot in the hands of wives and daughters mean votes for decency, as an offset against corruption, graft and ring rule. "The statement of The Baltimore American that 28,000 of the 38,000 stockholders of the Pennsylvania railway, or 47 per cent, are women, whose interests aggregate about $148,000,000, may account for the interest manifested in the woman's suffrage movement by the Goulds, Mackays and Vanderbilts, besides scores of lesser lights in the feminine financial world. "While the founders of the republic may not have felt the need of the ballot for woman at the time it was inaugurated, the public men of today can not deny that women are important factors in the financial and industrial, as well as the social world, and are entitled to representation in affairs. "Old things and old ideas are giving place to newer and better thoughts and with these should go the prejudice against making woman man's political equal, as she has always been his intellectual, moral and social equal. To longer withhold political emancipation from women is a menace to progress and an injustice to the race."
