

South 5th Street Home

I have for sale one of the best home buys in Missoula, a new, thoroughly modern five-room house, nicely finished, good plumbing, cellar, electric fixtures, everything first-class; a swell lot, 50x130, cement walks in front; in a good neighborhood. It would cost at least $2,400 to construct this house. The lot is cheap at $1,000—a total of $3,400. If sold in the next few days I will sell for $2,725, on terms of half cash. Don't you think this a snap?

and segregation of advanced cases, thus removing the infected ones from the healthy, particularly where these cases can not be carefully and safely treated at home.

"It may be prevented by compulsory legislation and reports of all cases; by fumigation of infected houses; by government inspection of all dairies and slaughter houses and the destruction of tubercular cattle; by sanitary inspection of mines, factories, sweat shops and working rooms; by medical examination of school children by official physicians, and by proper ventilation of school houses, churches, public buildings and all working rooms and by longer recesses for school children, more play, more playgrounds and outdoor gymnastics.

"It may also be prevented by educational work along sanitary and hygienic lines. This is the most important. By spreading information broadcast regarding consumption cases, how it spreads and how to avoid contracting it, by means of printed placards, primers, lectures, magazines and newspaper articles, a great deal of good is being done and more can be done.

A PROTEST

At the regular meeting of the Trades and Labor council of Missoula, Mont., the following resolutions were adopted and a copy of the same ordered to be sent to the mayor and city council of Missoula, and a copy to each of the daily newspapers.

Resolved, That the Central Trades and Labor council of Missoula, Mont., representing all branches of organized labor in Missoula county, in regular session assembled, do hereby and herewith by unanimous vote, express its disapproval of the contemplated removal of the animals from Greenough park, believing, as we do, that the park being the only source of public recreation provided for ourselves and our families, and as in all public parks in every city in the country, the zoological features are their greatest attractions, so it should be in our thriving city; and be it further

Resolved, That it is the request of this body to his honor the mayor and the honorable board of commissioners that they use all means consistent with their respective offices to not only oppose the removal of the animals from the park, but to provide means for their proper maintenance; and be it further

Resolved, That all public spirited citizens of this garden spot of the northwest should unite in contributing specimens of animal and bird life to our already too small collection to the end that fair Missoula and its progeny may rejoice in a greater and more beautiful system with an enlarged zoo.

You needn't be afraid.

One day a lady who had been reared in the careful luxury of the old-fashioned Virginia home was invited to visit the kitchen of a great Chicago hotel. She wanted to go, but was afraid. When asked why, she replied, "I'm afraid I'll see something that will forever destroy my appetite for hotel food." She went, and found everything delightfully clean.

Good housewives consider cleanliness and purity first of all; that's why Quaker Oats is their choice among all oatmeals. In making Quaker Oats the grain is sifted and resifted, passing through more than fifty processes of cleaning before it is cooked and rolled.

If you took a handful of oats and scrubbed and polished and wiped each separate grain, it wouldn't then be nearly as clean as Quaker Oats. No human hand ever touches a single grain of Quaker Oats from the field to your kitchen. The best advice on foods you could have is: Eat Quaker Oats every morning for breakfast.

You'll find Quaker Oats put up in two size packages, the regular size and the large, family size for those who are not convenient to the store.

It may be prevented by isolation tuberculosis at one time suggested that the bacilli were omnipresent in the atmosphere, that we all inhaled the germs at all times and in all places and that it was only our vital resistance that prevented us all from becoming their victims. This has been shown to be untrue, for the bacilli exist only in atmospheres contaminated by consumptives. Our present knowledge of the life history of the bacillus, by showing its inability to exist outside the body and the deleterious effect of sunlight upon it explains why, in the course of time, the expectations of consumptives have not rendered the atmosphere pestilential.

The Death Rate.
"The death rate from this disease in Montana is greatly on the increase; last year, excluding the Indian death rate, one out of every 14 deaths in the state was from tuberculosis. Some of the cases were imported, it is true, still the disease is here, it is on the increase and unless precautions are taken, the climatic advantages will count for less than we suppose.

"The chief source of infection is from the sputum expectorated by the consumptive. Billions of bacilli are expectorated daily by advanced cases and as tuberculosis is everywhere prevalent, opportunity is abundant everywhere for infection. Sputum dries and flies in the atmosphere as dust, floats in the medium and also settles upon articles of furniture, draperies, clothing and bed linen.

Method of infection.
"By far the most common method of infection is inhalation. The bacilli are inhaled with inspired air and find lodgement in the tonsils, throat, lymphatic glands, bronchial tubes and lungs. The exhaled air of consumptives is not contagious but, however, when they cough they expect mucus spray or salivary droplets which contain numerous bacilli. It is obvious that each new case comes indirectly from some other tubercular subject and has long been considered a contagious disease. Unlike small-pox, scarlet fever and other acute contagious diseases it is not transmitted by a single contact with a person ill with the disease but requires prolonged exposure.

"Another method of infection is by swallowing tubercular milk, meat and butter. It is a well-known fact that from 15 to 45 per cent of all dairy cows are tubercular. Koch, the discoverer of the tubercular bacilli, has always contended that cattle tuberculosis is not transmissible to the human being and thinks it unnecessary to take any precaution against this bovine tuberculosis. The great majority of physicians, however, take exception to this and the actual experience of numerous noted investigators goes to show that milk from cows with tubercular udders, butter from tubercular milk and meat from tubercular cattle does occasionally produce the disease in the human being.

"It might be interesting to know that there is but one herd of dairy cows supplying milk to Missoula residents that is free from tuberculosis. This herd was treated with tuberculin and all the diseased cattle destroyed. I will venture to state, and the state veterinarian will corroborate my statements, that at least 20 per cent of all other dairy cows supplying Missoula's milk are tubercular.

May Be Prevented.
"The disease may be prevented by the disinfection and destruction of sputum from tubercular patients. The sick person should be taught and instructed to use special sputum cups partially filled with a solution of carbolic acid, or to use pastboard sputum boxes that can be burned. In this way the main source of the disease will be destroyed.

RUNDQUIST LECTURES AT CHURCH

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN TAKES "TUBERCULOSIS" AS SUBJECT OF TALK.

Before a large and interested audience Dr. E. M. Rundquist delivered an address at the Congregational church last evening, his subject being "Tuberculosis." Dr. Rundquist discussed various phases of the disease, particularly methods of infection, prevalence and plans for combating the ravages of the "great white plague."

Dr. Rundquist spoke in part as follows: "The subject of tuberculosis is becoming one of the greatest international questions and within the last few years great strides have been made toward the prevention and eradication of this terrible scourge. In view of the fact that one out of seven persons dies of tuberculosis and that about 150,000 people in the United States die annually of the same disease, it certainly behooves the country at large to conquer this pest, which can be overcome by proper methods of education along sanitary lines. The cause is known, the disease is preventable and wherever preventive precautions have been taken, encouraging results have been obtained.

"Tuberculosis is an infectious, contagious, acute or chronic disease caused by the bacillus of tuberculosis. The disease may be local or general and may involve any organ and almost any structure in the body. "The widespread distribution of

M'MULLEN IS LAID TO HIS FINAL REST

The funeral of John McMullen, the old-timer who died several days ago, was held yesterday afternoon at Lucy's chapel, and was very well attended. The services were under auspices of the Eagles and Red Men, the beautiful and impressive ritual of the former lodge being followed in the ceremonies. Many beautiful flowers were sent by his many loving friends, each lodge contributing a large and handsome set piece. The funeral cortege was led by the Missoula Eagle band.

John McMullen was born in Nova Scotia about 55 years ago, leaving there 30 years ago to make his home in the state of Maine, where he lived for 10 years, coming from there to Missoula county, where he had always followed the lumbering business. He worked for the Big Blackfoot Milling company, the Western Lumber company and for John Minnehan. He was a man who was well known and liked, and his sudden death was a hard blow to his associates. The remains, escorted by the Eagles and Red Men, were taken to the Missoula cemetery, where interment was made.

Dissolution of Copartnership
Notice is hereby given that the copartnership heretofore existing between John Minnehan and William Corbett, under the firm name and style of Minnehan & Corbett, is this day dissolved by mutual consent, William Corbett withdrawing from said firm. All debts and accounts due said firm are to be collected by John Minnehan, and all claims against said firm are to be presented to him for payment. The business of the old firm will be continued by John Minnehan.
