New York, June 18--Until a dapper, stockily built Chinese, well educated and when last seen dressed in a black suit of American cut, is under arrest and put through the police inquisition known as the "third degree," it is likely that the murder of Elsie Sigel, Civil war hero, will remain unsolved.

The reading required about 45 minutes and while it was in progress Assistant District Attorney Henev, unaccompanied by Rudolph Spreckels, financial backer of the graft prosecution, hurried down the aisle, conferred with his colleagues to learn the reason for the jury's return and remained until the 12 men again filed out of the narrow doorway and up the short flight of stairs to the jury room on the floor above.

It has also come out that the girl's mother, now prostrated, according to reports, and in a hospital, had been fearful of her daughter's safety ever since the girl's disappearance and had searched Chinatown day after day without success.

In order to prevent the possibility of a demonstration in the vicinity of the room where the jurors were deliberating, the streets were cleared of spectators as soon as Mr. Henev concluded his address, which was terminated at 10:30 this morning after the prosecutor had spoken for over 16 hours.

The mother and Paul Sigel, the father, are hoping, however, against hope, clinging to the evasive claim that a telegram signed "E. S." was sent from Washington, D. D., on the fatal Wednesday. This message read: "Will be home Sunday or soon. Don't worry."
