A PAGE OF MISSOULA BOOSTERS---ALL LIVE ONES

ANDREW LOGAN.

He is mayor but he has to look after the blacksmith shop once in a while to keep things going. He's a good mayor and a good blacksmith.

FRANK MIX.

The busy south side grocer. So long a resident of Missoula that he could not live anywhere else if he would. He is always on the square and is popular.

FRANK GLEASON.

A baseball player, a fan from the beginning and a successful merchant. His place is headquarters for news and magazines and you're welcome there.

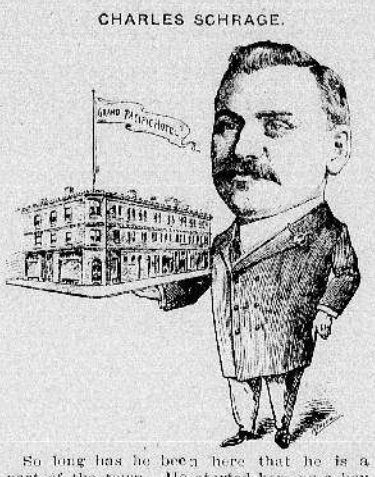
DR. H. J. RIESLAND.

One of the oldest and most experienced optometrists in the northwest. He grinds his own glasses and is recognized as a leader in his profession.

C. P. CHERRY

The manager of the new Savoy cafe will be known soon to more people than know him now. He has the handsomest hotel in the state and proposes to make it the best.

CHARLES SCHRAGE.



So long has he been here that he is a part of the town. He started here as a boy and now he has his own successful hotel, which is a good one.

DIXON AND HOON

Boosters who have, by strict application to business, built up a strong business and who interest themselves in giving a good understanding to Missoula people.

MIKE J. COSGROVE.

The business end of the Vienna cafe is in his hands and they are good and efficient hands. He has been in Missoula a good many years and is glad he came.

GREEN & ELLINGHOUSE

The proprietors of the Eclipse stables are experienced horsemen and have a fine equipment of stock and vehicles. They help the town by their enterprise.

RUSSELL & NEWQUIST.

Two young men who have started a high-class meat market and are making it win. They are on the south side and the people over there are glad of it.

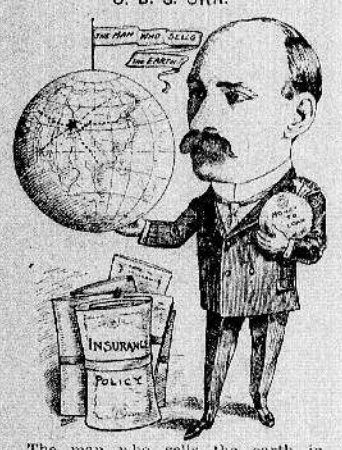
OHLAND THE PLUMBER.

One of the new boosters. He has a shop on the south side and finds it a good place. He has work all over the city and likes the town which seems to like him.

CHARLES HARNOIC.

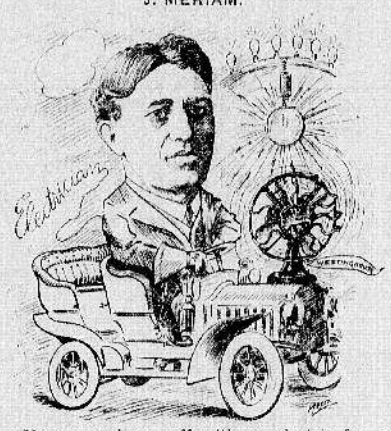
The man whose enterprise gave Missoula the finest theater in the west and whose persistence gives us some of the best shows in the world.

O. B. S. ORR.



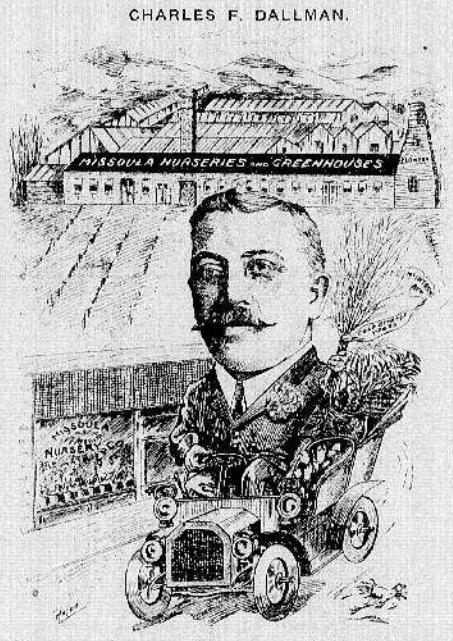
The man who sells the earth in chunks to suit the purchaser. He is a pusher and is always on the job, active, alive and alert. He is a live one.

J. MERIAM.



He can cool you off with an electric fan or warm you up with an electric stove. He does other things, too, and does them well. He's a booster.

CHARLES F. DALLMAN.



The man who gave Missoula one of the finest nurseries in the west and who has boosted more and harder for the town than any man of his weight.

MARTIN R. MARSHALL

The man who conducts the business of Barber & Marshall, enterprising and square. He has developed a big business from nothing and is still at it.

F. M. INGALLS

Photographer, First National Bank block, Missoula, Mont.

There was a young sculptor named Phidias,
Whose genius for art was invidious,
He carved Aphrodite,
Without any nightie,
Which really quite shocked the fastidious.

CHARLES H. MARSH.

One of the real boosters of the city; in the front of every movement for the betterment of the town. He conducts an undertaking establishment.

DR. GEORGE MORGAN.

A veteran opthomologist who has made Missoula his home and who is an expert in his profession. He has a strong clientele and is successful.

R. S. SOMERVILLE

The leading tailor. All work made in Missoula and strictly first class.

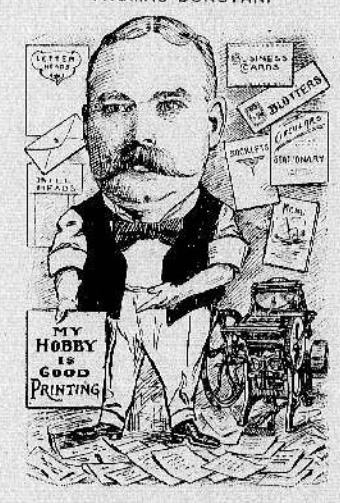
FRANK BORG.

The managing partner of a lively jewelry house, who has built up a good business from a small beginning and who hasn't stopped growing yet.

OSCAR BOOS.

Makes life happy during the summer months with his matchless ice cream. In the winter he has something just as good and makes folks happy.

THOMAS DUNSTAN.



He used to hold a stick in The Missoulian office; now he runs a print shop of his own. He is a good man and an old-time citizen.

HOTEL MISSOULA

Newly furnished and remodeled dining room. European plan. Open from 6 a. m. to 8 p. m.

L. W. AUSTIN

Austin the hatter is one of the newer boosters, but he is making up for lost time. He is sorry he didn't find Missoula earlier but he's doing well.

CHARLES LEMLEY

Mr. Lemley is the best-known man in western Montana and those who know him like him. He is as adept with the rod as with the goose—a good man wherever you put him.

THE DESCHAMPS HOUSE

Gaspard Deschamps is one of the oldest citizens of western Montana and one of the most higly respected. He and his sons conduct a great implement store and stand high in the business community.