There was an interested crowd all day in the lobby of the Missoula hotel, watching the operation of the Burroughs typewriter telegraph machines which had been set up on a short circuit and were in operation as a demonstration of the possibilities of this remarkable invention. The exhibition is in charge of Messrs. Riden and Crawford who are the general agents of the company which controls the invention. The work of the typewriters in circuit is marvelous. The receiving machine duplicates every motion of the sending apparatus and the action of the two is simultaneous. The machines have been operated on a circuit nearly 500 miles long and have been given a thorough test by the government signal service men on submarine cables. According to the testimony which the demonstrators offer, every one of these tests has been eminently satisfactory. Certainly, there is no hitch in the operation of the machines which are on exhibition. All day long there was a crowd about the show place and there were many exclamations of amazement at the accuracy and the simplicity of the mechanism. It is worth while to see the way the machines operate. If you stop and watch them a minute, you will linger longer; that's certain.

Among the visitors in the city this week is L. W. Tuttleys of Council Bluffs, who is looking over the northwest and COMMENTS who, in common with most people who are traveling this way, has heard enough of Missoula and the better part of the country to want to know more. Mr. Tuttleys is the head of the firm of L. W. Tuttleys & Son, which has been established for more than 25 years in Council Bluffs in the investment securities business and has had much experience in western cities. He was a caller at The Missoulian office last night and spoke pleasantly of the city and of what he finds here. "I have been much pleased with Missoula," said he, "and have seen much since I came here that has surprised me. The development of the country about you is farther advanced than I had expected and your city is certainly keeping pace with the growth that is going on around you. I want to compliment you and your city upon having so good a paper as The Missoulian. I think your paper has surprised me more than anything else that I have seen here. It is a remarkable paper for a city of this size and it compares favorably with the papers of cities many times larger than Missoula. It speaks well for the enterprise of its publishers and it is a credit to the city that it is willing and able to maintain such a daily publication."

Letters received yesterday by members of The Missoulian staff announced the safe arrival of Jim Carroll at Los Angeles, where he went to enter the national soldiers' home. The letters were brief but contained the promise of more detailed accounts of the journey and the location of the old veteran and these later letters will be awaited with interest for Jim has a host of friends here who are glad that he is to be so pleasantly situated. Jim did not write that he had met a good many Missoula folks in Los Angeles and that he had found, among the first, C. W. Pulliam, who is running a successful grocery business and who invited Jim to make headquarters at his store. Jim stopped in Spokane and had a visit with A. W. Woodworth and then went to Seattle, where he took in the fair. He had other stops to make along the coast and has evidently been enjoying himself ever since he left his Missoula friends. He sent his good wishes to all his Missoula friends and wants them to call on him when they go south.

If ever there were two men who gave up hours to serious introspection and earnest review of their past lives, those two SERIOUS THOUGHTS are Dan Wicker and Charlie Donovan. In a moment of utter lapse of caution, they consented the other night to be the course judges in the automobile race between Frank Simons and Dr. Oettinger which was over the road to Bonner in the darkest part of the night. Before they had been gone three minutes they realized what they had done and were anxious to get home; but each of them was in a car apart from the other and speeding off in the dark at a rate that made communication impossible. Argument with the drivers was out of the question and if it had been possible it would have been unavailing. There was nothing to do but to hold on and hope for the best. There were rough places in the road and there were sharp turns that had never been observed in daylight but they were all found in that mad run through the darkness. Shutting his eyes each of the two tried to recall whatever good he had done in his whole life and sought to make the best showing possible, as he didn't know how soon he would be called upon to present his case to St. Peter. Arrived at Bonner Donovan and Wicker endeavored to have the race called off there, but it was no go and they had to climb in for the run back home. That was a terror and it was not until yesterday that they were able to talk about their experience. They had a quiet Fourth, all right. They were thinking hard all day.

GREAT CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH
PROFESSOR ELROD RETURNS FROM THE FLATHEAD COUNTRY WITH GOOD STORY.

Dr. M. J. Elrod returned last night from Dayton, where he delivered the Fourth of July oration at the celebration on the east side of the lake. He had an interesting experience and a royal good time and, on account of a rain, hail and wind storm, was enabled to witness two complete celebrations. He arrived in Missoula with celebrating and glad to find that the wave of patriotism had spent its force in this city before he got back. "It was the first formal celebration of the Fourth that Dayton had ever planned," said Professor Elrod last night. "The whole town and many of its neighbors went out to a beautiful lake in the mountains and had a real, old-fashioned Fourth. It was really very fine and we all enjoyed it much. "When I set out to come home, I found the boats crowded to the limit of their capacity and was compelled to wait a day till the crowd had finished traveling back and forth from Kallispell way to the foot of the lake, where Polson had the greatest celebration in its history. It was estimated that three thousand people came across the lake to witness the Polson program and I think there must have been fifty that number, for the crowd was immense. "There were horse races and baseball games and a program of Indian dances. It was a hurrah all day and wound up with fireworks at night and of course a dance. As the crowd was ready to start home, there came up such a storm that the boats did not dare venture out and the thousands of visitors had a great time finding places to sleep. They were stowed away everywhere and most of them had to sleep out doors. But they had a good time and when the storm was over the boats took them home and gave the rest of us a chance to get down the lake. I should have been home Monday night but I do not begrudge the time I lost. It was a hummer of a celebration at Polson."
