HAIL CUTS A SWATH THAT'S NARROW

EARLY MORNING STORM DAMAGES TREES AND FRUIT IN LIMITED AREA.

Yesterday morning between 5 and 6 o'clock a heavy rain and hail storm swept over a narrow path in the Missoula valley, doing considerable damage to the fruit in the limited area that it covered. The hail was most severe between South Higgins avenue and Ash street. In Orchard Homes the hail did no damage whatever and on the north side of the river its force was not as great as on the south side.

In town, the damage was confined to trees and gardens about city residences, none of the suburban orchards suffering, as far as could be learned yesterday. Secretary Ebert of the chamber of commerce, whose home is on the eastern border of Orchard Homes, said that the hail did not reach his place. Carl Seely reported that the hail beat off about a half bushel of young pears and bruised the fruit that was left on the trees; his place in well within the city limits.

Inspector Dean of the state board of horticulture had some samples of bruised apples on his desk yesterday that came from some city orchards but he had no report of any serious damage outside of town.

Gaspard Deschamps said last evening that he had received word from his ranches in Grass Valley and below and the report was that there had been no damage by the storm there, not any of the hay or grain being beaten down.

East and north of the city the storm of yesterday morning was without serious effect, the hail, of the night before having caused whatever injury there was in that district.

Word from the Bitter Root received here yesterday, was that the storm had not damaged the orchards at all. There was a heavy rain there but little hail. County Commissioner Worden, whose irrigating flume was carried away by a rush of water down the steep hill south of his farm, said yesterday that there was no damage from hail but that the rain was severe and had done a lot of damage outside of the break in his flume. There were no reports yesterday of any damage west of the city, beyond those reported the night before. Yesterday morning's storm was evidently purely local as to the hail.

STEEL WORKERS DUE NEXT FRIDAY

BURRELL COMPANY SUB-LETS CONTRACT FOR ERECTION OF SUPERSTRUCTURE.

The Burrell Bridge & Construction company has closed a contract with McCreary & Willard of Spokane for the steel work on the Higgins avenue bridge and the steel erectors will be here, ready for work, Friday. The subcontractors are men of high standing in their profession and it is expected that there will be little further delay in the completion of the bridge.

"There are now 16 carloads of steel on the road between here and Toledo," said R. W. Sweet, superintendent of the Burrell company last night, "and there are three carloads in the yards here. The rest of the material is to follow as fast as it can be turned out and with the erectors here Friday, there should be a prompt start on the work. Our contract with McCreary & Willard calls for the presence of their men on the work Friday and they will hurry the work right along."

"At the rate at which the water in the river is falling, I think we shall be able to start on the north piers again in 10 days or two weeks. The south side abutment will be ready Saturday night as far as we can carry it until the steel is up. We will be able to fill it in right away. The outlook is good now for the speedy completion of the work. The Milwaukee railway is rushing the shipments of material and with these delivered promptly, there is nothing to prevent the work on the superstructure from going forward rapidly."

SINGS THE PRAISES OF MISSOULA

BUSINESS MANAGER OF THE TREASURE STATE PAYS HIGH COMPLIMENT TO CITY.

M. L. H. Odea, business manager of "The Treasure State," Montana's only magazine, is in Missoula, on his way to the Indian dances, and when interviewed by a Missoula reporter expressed great enthusiasm over the growth of Missoula. But, in his own words, he said:

"My last visit to Missoula was during the holidays, before all the spring construction began—Ye Ode fan and the Harnois theater were the newest projects, the forerunners of that Missoula spirit which was heralded all over Montana—'Watch Missoula grow.' Big things were anticipated, and now I think they are realized, for Missoula is undoubtedly the most progressive city in Montana, and ranks high in the whole Northwest. I have been all over the state many times, in the old days when Miles City 'The Cow Town' and after when it changed into 'The Heart of the Yellowstone' have watched the Billings boomers and the quiet, conservative growth of Helena. Great Falls, too, is a city of destiny. There, the first dam in under construction, and the city is feeling that intensity of enthusiasm always co-ordinate with growth.

"With the exception of Butte, I know of no town in Montana with such busy streets. The main streets of Helena, Billings and Great Falls are deserted compared with Higgins avenue. And this must necessarily mean business for the merchant, which will end in the formation of a good substantial city. I think Missoula hardly realizes the stir it has created around the state. But when the residents of other cities visit 'The Gateway of the Bitter Root,' and see the magnificent progress made by its citizens, then Missoula will assume more than ever the high position it deserves. It is an object lesson to every commercial association in the state. Missoula, Billings and Great Falls undoubtedly control the strategic positions in Montana, and Missoula has certainly taken advantage of its location, climate and citizenry. Another thing which has undoubtedly assisted the growth of the city is its good government and administration.

Not a Dream.

"With a street railway no longer a dream, I can see nothing so necessary to the improvement of Missoula as a permanent main street illumination. Both Helena and Missoula are behind time in comparison with Great Falls, Miles City and Butte. Last summer the former arranged a permanent illumination of Central avenue, which is held out from the railway station quite as Higgins avenue. The street is brilliantly illuminated by long strings of incandescent lamps, with canopies at street intersections. Miles City has a much more elaborate plan, which consists of three beautiful lamp-posts, each equipped with five lamps, on each side of the block. They have followed the Los Angeles plan. Butte has decided to retain the electric decorations placed for the Eagle convention. Helena, through the Lewis and Clark Carnival association, is soon to have a permanent illumination, but their committee has not yet decided as to the system, although, on account of the narrow, winding main street, it will undoubtedly be the overhead strings.

Idea Grows.

"This idea has grown all over the United States, and not only possesses the primary benefit of bringing people downtown, but also has moral and physical merits. Brilliantly lighted streets are easily policed. They create a feeling of civic pride among the citizens. Practically every ugly store front in Miles City is being painted. Mr. Collins, the secretary of the chamber of commerce, stated to me that the business men felt it was the best civic step ever taken. Missoula and Helena will surely install such systems soon, and Missoula has the advantage over Helena on account of its wide, straight Higgins avenue, with its vista across the river.

"So you see I am ever so enthusiastic about Missoula, and hope that it will continue in its good fortune, and that the name 'Missoula, Montana' will soon take its place and be known all over the states as a foremost city."

After the hot weather of the past few days yesterday was a decided relief. Instead of the thermometer hovering around the 90s, as it did last week, there was a fall to 69, the maximum temperature for the day. The observations were:
