CAUGHT ON THE RUN ABOUT TOWN

John Scott came in last night from the Kennedy Creek coal mines, accompanying yesterday's automobile party out from the camp. It is not easy to get Mr. Scott to talk much about the mine, he says he doesn't want to overstate anything, but he would be glad to have everybody who is interested come out and see for himself what there is in the coal beds there. "We have been doing a lot of work," said Mr. Scott last night when a Missoulian man got him cornered and insisted upon some sort of a story. "There have been a good many people out to see it since we started the free automobile trips, and every one of them has expressed himself as satisfied with what we had to show him. Some of the visitors have been men who are wise to the coal business, and it is from them that we have had the most enthusiastic expressions. We are down 300 feet with the drill and have gone through two fine bodies of coal; when I left the drill was just entering a third and the signs that we were getting from the drill were encouraging. Our plan is to go ahead with the sinking of a shaft as soon as we are in shape to undertake the work thoroughly. I do not want to attempt to market the coal in the upper vein, I want to be able to go right down to the lower level, where we have found the best coal. I believe we are on the right track, and as soon as we are able we will start the shaft on a proper scale for thorough development."

Major Shattuck came into town yesterday from the fort and renewed his acquaintance with some of his old friends in the city. The town has not grown so much that he couldn't find his way around, but the growth has been sufficient to make him take notice, and the major was not at all backward in making known his pleasure at being back in Missoula once more. "The city has changed a good deal," said he, "but it is still Missoula, and I find a great many of the old friends here. It is a pleasure to meet them on their own stamping ground once more. I was glad when the order came that assigned me to the work of building the new fort. There is a great amount of work to be done here in this construction. The new fort will be fine when it is finished, and all of us who were here in the old days are glad to see the big fort located here." As soon as the old-timers get used to addressing him as "major" it will seem natural to have him around. Just now it is a bit awkward, but it is good to have him here.

Walter Kruger, Jim Featherman and Harry Featherman were in town yesterday to place their names on the slips that will be drawn first when the big raffle comes off at Coeur d'Alene City next month. They studied the reservation map in the Missoulian office long enough to make their selections and they are now merely waiting for the official announcement that they have won first choice. Jim Featherman had journeyed only from Drummond; the other two had been to Lewistown to be present at the dedication of the Masonic temple there. They had picked up Jim and one or two others at Drummond on their way down the line. "We had a pleasant trip to Lewistown," said Mr. Kruger. "The town is growing wonderfully and the Masons have made a fine temple. There is also a splendid court house just finished and many other evidences of permanent prosperity. It is one of the really live towns that I have seen."

Jim Featherman didn't go to Lewistown, but he had something to tout for, and that something was DRUMMOND. If there is anybody in the world who knows Drummond, that same is James Featherman, who is not at all alarmed by the report that there is to be a new Drummond built on the Milwaukee that will rival the old Drummond. "The river is too high yet for any new town down there," said he, "and the pile-driver has not yet arrived to put in the foundations for the town. There was one man who went down into the meadow to look over the proposition and he was picked up and carried away by the mosquitoes. Since then there has been nobody willing to make the attempt again, and we are still doing business at the old stand."

Frank Foote was amongst the arrivals yesterday, and his coming was the signal for a little jubilee amongst the old-time railway men. The Harper-ster acted as introducer while his train was waiting here, but it was not necessary to do much introducing, for Frank has not changed at all since he left here years ago. He looks the same and seems to be just the same as when he was on the Northern Pacific. He has a little vacation from his duties on the Great Northern, and is improving it by getting his name on the registration lists of the three reservations. "I shall stay in Missoula four or five days," said he last night. "It looks good to me here and if I can get that claim on the Flathead reservation that belongs to me it will be the simple life for me in old Missoula county. There are

J. L. Camp returned from the reservation and says that there are hundreds of people traveling across to Kalispell to get a glimpse of the reserve. Some of them go on the regular stage lines, but there are many who like the country so well that they take side trips into the hills and across where the stages do not go. "They all like the country," said Mr. Camp, "and are urging others to take the trip."

SEVERAL BEAR SKINS EXHIBITED

HIDES FROM ANIMALS KILLED IN BITTER ROOT IN OFFICE OF SUPERVISOR.

Supervisor W. W. White of the Bitter Root national forest has on exhibition in his office in the Hammond block six bear skins, which were taken from bears killed this spring by James D. Vance, expert hunter in the forest service. The animals were all killed in Ross Hole, on the east fork of the Bitter Root river, most of them being taken in traps.

The best skin of the lot is that of a full-sized grizzly bear, one which is suspected to have had a hand in the killing of 26 head of cattle and one horse. The brute was a powerful one, weighing about 500 pounds, and the hide is in perfect condition and is a beauty. This bear was the first one of the lot to be killed. The rest of the bunch consists of a brown and four black bear skins, all of them in prime condition. The skins will be sold for Mr. Vance, who is a well-known forest ranger and hunter of the Bitter Root.

REGISTRATION TAKES STEADY STRIDE

TOTAL NUMBER OF APPLICANTS FOR RESERVATION LANDS ON THURSDAY IS 2557.

The business of registration for the reservation lands has settled down to a regular stride, and does not vary many hundreds either way. The notaries are all fairly busy and the railroad men extremely so. But the crowds have been so accurately judged and estimated that no trouble is experienced in handling the people. Yesterday's total was not quite as large as some days, but it was fairly up to the average. The total number of people who registered yesterday for lands on the Flathead reservation was 2557. One thing that is noticeable is the fact that the new train of the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound is doing its share in bringing homeseekers to the city to register.

The number of registrants handled by each notary's office and the total for the day is as follows:

J. L. Wallace	89
Wellington Napton	155
T. N. Marlowe	15

Many Easterners Coming.
Butte, July 22.—A special from Kalispell to the Miner says: With the arrival late this afternoon of the local train which connected with No. 4 of the Great Northern and Burlington west at Columbia Falls Junction, the city is thronged with landseekers. A report that two special trains left St. Paul behind these arrivals destined for registration points is brought with the passengers, and the first special, which is reported to carry more than a thousand prospective applicants, is due here tonight or tomorrow. Every nook and cranny in the city is crowded to-night, and before closing hours probably 2,000 will have registered their applications. This will bring the grand total of the eight days to more than 10,000, with a daily average of more than 1,200.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL IN SESSION

At the meeting of the trades and labor council last night, James P. Froman was elected delegate to the meeting of the Montana Federation of Labor to be held in Butte. E. F. Trump was named as his alternate. The joint committee to prepare for the Missoula labor day celebration is working up a plan for an impressive affair. The joint committees will meet at Cook's and Walters' hall at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, August 1. Froman is proposed to make the celebration this year one of the biggest ever held in the state and an effort will be made to have the work started early so as to insure the complete success of the celebration.
