A GOOD START.

Judge Witten's lottery machinery moved smoothly on the opening day of the drawing for the choice of lands on the Coeur d'Alene reservation. The telegraphed account of the proceedings in the pretty Idaho town which is the scene of the preliminaries of the selection of lands indicates that there was no hitch in the scheduled plans for the drawing. The results were reported promptly and a few minutes after the slips had been drawn from the envelopes, the bulletins at The Missoulian office announced to a waiting and much interested crowd the names of the fortunate registrants. Considering the fact that Spokane furnished such a large proportion of the people who registered at Coeur d'Alene, it is not surprising that there were so many residents of the Washington city in the list of successful applicants. The distribution of fortune appears to be very even; the east shares with the west in the lucky list. There will be two days more of the Coeur d'Alene drawing and, Thursday morning, the Flathead slips will receive attention.

FROM THE BLEACHERS.

The attitude of Harper's Weekly toward the tariff bill has been persistently hostile and there was a time in the course of the consideration of the measure in congress that the erudite editor of that great regulator was inclined to censure Mr. Taft for his non-participation in the ceremonies. On this account it is pleasing to note that Harper's is, in the main, well satisfied with the result of the action of congress and that it is delighted with the course which Mr. Taft pursued. We had not looked for such strong independence from the sage of Franklin square. Here is the comment of the great journal:

"It is all over—for the present. The president asked for substantial revision downward; he gets unsubstantial revision downward. But it is downward; at least we know it is in some respects, and guess it is on the whole. Many are the wisecracks who perceive how much more the president could have accomplished in some other way. We cannot see it. True, as the Times and Evening Post maintain, he might have butted in at the beginning, a la Roosevelt. Had he done so, the Times and Evening Post would have been the first to condemn his encroachment upon the constitutional prerogatives of congress. Then he might have heeded the World's sage advice—vetoed the bill, and called congress together again later. This would have been a brilliant feat of statesmanship. Returning prosperity would have been halted, a long and bitter struggle would have been inaugurated and in the end nothing material could have been accomplished except perhaps the glorification by the ignorant of William H. Taft as such a 'tribune of the people' as Bryan assumed to be exclusively until another came along and grabbed the title away from him.

"No, brethren, the president has kept the faith. His sincerity remains unquestioned and his achievement, though falling far short of what he, no less than the rest of us, would have liked, is really substantial. Never again will Abriehes and Lodges dare to misinterpret and misrepresent a party platform, disruption is uncomfortably near as it is. Never again will a Littauer brazenly demand special favors in return for dinner-giving on behalf of a candidate for speaker. Never again will Joseph G. Cannon rule the house of representatives. His race is run. So far so good.

"President Taft seen his duty and done his damndest; angels could do no more." And what we like even better than what he has done is the way he has done it. There have been no pronouncements, no verbal eruptions, no brow-beating of congress, no denunciation of individuals for manifesting an interest in their own welfare, no hogging of credit, no beating of drums, no posing as a champion of the people, no anything unbecoming a chief magistrate acting within constitutional limitations with dignity, composure and modesty. The first severe ordeal has been passed successfully. Cordial felicitations to the president and hearty congratulations to a harassed people who at last are free to get to work and make some money."

WE APPRECIATE.

Upon occasion, it has seemed to us that the editor of the Montana Lookout was severe in his criticism of Missoula and her people. Perhaps we are a little sensitive, but, now and then, there have been caustic paragraphs in the columns of the interesting review which is published weekly at Helena which seemed to us a bit unwarranted in so far as they concerned our home city. But, whatever has been said in the past, there is thorough appreciation in Missoula of the pleasant comment in which the editor of the Lookout indulges us and our town. Its friendly tone makes it good reading in Missoula and, in order that it may be seen by all of Missoula, here it is, just as it came from Helena in yesterday's mail:

"Just now Missoula is the ranking belle among Montana's municipal daughters, and it is not too much to say that she is without danger of a successful rival for a season or two. The 'coming out' of Missoula has been attended by a large number of extraordinary circumstances ordinarily calculated to embarrass a shy young city on her first appearance in public. 'Missoula has been a pretty and amiable child for so long that the parents and intimate acquaintances really never thought of her becoming anything else. The transition from school days to maturity, from the village group to the metropolis class, has been so sudden as to be startling. The physical growth has been marvelous if not abnormal. Her warmest admirers apprehended something awkward and ungainly as a natural consequence. It has been a perplexing task to keep her equipped with a wardrobe to meet her increasing and constantly changing needs. Finally, the whole United States accepted an invitation to her first public reception, and the crowd of strangers was enough to confuse the most experienced entertainer.

"Missoula has carried her honors with amazing dignity and grace. She has not fallen over her train, nor yet snubbed the least of her guests in haughty pride or noted indifference. If critical eyes have noted signs of gum chewing left in the back parlor, it is a family affair with which the public has no concern. She has charmed her company, delighted her friends and justified every claim made in her behalf—including the several hundred thousand on the Indian reservation—and is fully entitled to the bouquets, the bon-bons and all the other sweets which belong by honest conquest to the good, the beautiful and the true."

But, then, Mr. Taft will find the naming of census supervisors a comfortable vacation task after the tariff bill's strenuous demands.

There is not as much fuss over the new constitution for the irrigation congress as there was in Turkey, but it is much more important.

The Bitter Root is big enough and beautiful enough to satisfy even the critical inspection of President Elliott and his associates.

A cool room, a soft bed and comfortable meals—these are the compensations of the man who is unable to go camping.

China has backed up in the Mukden railway scrap. As long as she remains in the Orient, Japan is cock of the walk.

After two weeks of inquiry, the court at Annapolis has positively established the fact that Lieutenant Sutton was shot.

With Cartoonist McCutcheon behind him, Mr. Roosevelt will for the first time realize the perils of Dark Africa.

It's safe to say that King Alfonso would be glad to swap his city lot in Madrid for a reservation farm.

Spokane scored heavily in the Coeur d'Alene drawing, but she did the bulk of the registering, so it's fair.

There are enough good men on the ground to build the cutoff in quick time if they get started.

Thus far there have been no protests against Judge Witten's decisions.

Greece finds the Young Turks just as tough customers as the old Turks.

Next April when the lucky ones locate, there will be things doing again.

$50 Today Soon $500

Missoula is a good town, a better town in many ways than was Spokane when Spokane had only 20,000 people.

It is much more evident today that Missoula is to be a city of 50,000 than it was that Spokane was to have 50,000 when Spokane was Missoula's present size.

Yet-- Don't you wish you had bought a $50 lot or two in Spokane when Spokane had only 20,000 people? It would be worth many, many, many times $50 today.

Now-- The only $50 lots around Missoula are in Car Line addition. Better buy one or two. Pay for them $5 down and $5 a month.

Then when Missoula has 50,000 people (and that will not be so very long to wait) you can get $500 to $1,000 apiece for these lots, and the growth of the city will mean something to you financially.

You can say: "Yes, I had sense enough to buy a cheap lot or two when they sold for $50 each, and I can get from $500 to $1,000 each for them.

But-- If you put off, and wait, pretty soon there will not be any $50 lots for you around here, and in a short time the price will be beyond your ability to pay. Then when Missoula has 50,000 people, all you can say will be: "I could have bought those $500 to $1,000 lots for $50 each, but I didn't." And that will be mighty little satisfaction and less profit.

Prices in Car Line addition are going up pretty soon. Nearly $10,000 worth of lots have been sold there since July 25. Better see us today.
