MAN AND WIFE PASS BY ON LONG JOURNEY

Just getting a good start on a horse-back ride that is to take them almost across the continent and must be completed within 110 days, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Taylor trotted into Missoula at noon yesterday. They are riding from Coeur d'Alene City to New York, and left the Idaho town on Sunday morning. The two are traveling on no particular schedule, but ride from sunrise to sunset, and are confident of winning the $1,000 that is wagered on their ability to make the long journey within the time limit set. Another requirement of their bet is that all expenses must be made by the selling of post cards.

MERCANTILE COMPANY TO INVADE VALLEY

Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by the Lolo Valley Mercantile company, with Dr. L. J. Coria, John C. Kitchen and Harry H. Parsons as incorporators. The company expects to do a general mercantile business in the valley during the rail road construction that is about to begin. The principal office of the concern will be in Missoula, with a branch somewhere in the valley. Of the fifteen shares of capital stock subscribed, thirteen are held by Dr. Coria.

TELLS OF DRINKING MUCH TIMBER LOST WITH WHITE MEN BY FIRE

SAM RESURRECTION SAYS HE WAS RIDING IN BOX CAR AND DRINKING WHISKY.

That Chief Sam Resurrection had been to Helena and Butte on a trip and was riding back to Missoula in a box car and drinking whisky with two white men on the night he received the injuries that may cost him his life, was learned yesterday by Major Fred C. Morgan, Indian agent for the Flatheads. But whether the chief sustained his injuries through a fall from the cars, was thrown from the train or was struck and then fell, or was thrown off the car, is still a mystery. Sam admits that he was too drunk to remember just what happened after he left Butte.

When Major Morgan learned of the condition of the noted chief he came to Missoula and secured an interpreter by the name of Joe Blodgett, an Indian who was very friendly with the chief. With the interpreter Mr. Morgan went to the hospital yesterday and talked to the patient. At first Sam told conflicting stories, but the interpreter finally succeeded in getting him to tell the same story twice without any variation. This story is that he first went to Helena and then to Butte on a trip. He started back to Missoula on a freight train, riding in a boxcar. The Indian declares that at Garrison he met two white men, who got into the car with him. He says he had 16 in his pocket and gave the men money at Garrison to buy whisky. This they drank between Garrison and Drummond, and at the latter place he gave them money to buy more whisky. This they consumed before they got to Butte, and he asserts that at Butte he again supplied the finances to secure some more liquor. He remembers helping drink this, but says he got very drunk and cannot recall what happened later.

The chief declares, however, that when he recovered consciousness all his money was gone, and all his "valuable" papers had disappeared from his pockets. Major Morgan believes that this much of Sam's story is correct, and is inclined to believe that he fell from the train, though it is possible that he may have been thrown from the train by tramps. Whether or not they are responsible for the Indian's injuries the men are amenable to the law for supplying liquor to an Indian, and if a description of them can be secured an effort will be made to bring them to justice. Sam's condition yesterday was very serious, one lung has become affected, and as an injury to an Indian's lungs seems to be particularly fatal, his chances for recovery are said to be very slim.

"KNIGHT FOR A DAY" VISITS MISSOULA

To take parts made famous by other stars in previous years and to make good in them is not exactly an easy matter, but it is just what Grace DeMar and Edward Hume have done in "A Knight for a Day." The roles created by May Vokes and Eddie Redwin and Mabel Hite and John Slavin, these two are carrying with success. Miss DeMar finds it difficult to hide her good looks in Tillie Day's unprepossessing appearance, but, outside of that, she looks the part as well as Miss Vokes and Mike Donlin's actress wife, and gets away with its comedy as well as either. Mr. Hume is good and that's enough to say about him, for his part is a hard one. The remainder of the company is nowhere near the classed the two leading people. A fair-sized audience saw the show at the Harms last evening.

LOCAL SOCIETY

Enjoyable Dance at Pavilion. One of the most enjoyable affairs of the season was the dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sterling and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Ellison at the pavilion last evening. The pavilion was artistically decorated with evergreens and flowers for the occasion, and cosy corners were found in every available place. Punch was served throughout the evening and at a late hour refreshments were served.

Mrs. Houghton Is Hostess.

Mrs. H. G. Houghton was hostess on Thursday evening at an enjoyable box party at the Harms theater to witness the clever performance, "The Gentleman from Mississippi." Following the play supper was served at the Savoy. A party of five enjoyed Mrs. Houghton's hospitality.

MUCH TIMBER LOST BY FIRE

THIRTY-MILE GALE FANS BLAZE IN BITTER ROOT—CAUSES HEAVY LOSS.

Blazing with uncontrollable fury, and sending forth clouds of smoke which could be seen for over 10 miles, causing residents of the upper end of the Bitter Root valley to wonder if Judgment day had not arrived, a large forest fire, which had been reported several days ago to be raging on Warm Springs creek, late Thursday afternoon broke loose from the large force which was engaged in fighting it and destroyed timber over an area of 400 acres, most of it being commercially valuable lodge-pole pine.

The blaze was a huge one and was caused by a 30-mile gale which arose suddenly, just as the fire-fighting force thought the conflagration under control, and, before the men realized how serious it was, their pack outfit, grub and supplies had been totally destroyed. The fire is located two miles up the west fork of Warm Springs creek and is still raging, although thought now to be under control.

Word was also received in the local forest service yesterday that another blaze was raging in the Medicine lake country, near Phillipsburg. Supervisor D. G. Kinney of the Missoula forest was notified yesterday morning by Ranger Jarvis of Phillipsburg that a fire was in progress in that locality, but no word was sent as to its extent and scope. A large number of forest rangers are located in that country and these, together with a number of men engaged in work on the Bitter Root road, are thought sufficient to cope with the blaze and keep it under control. Since further word from Ranger Jarvis had not been received late yesterday evening, it is thought that the fire is under control.
