FOREST FIRES RULES PUBLISHED

WHAT TO DO AND WHAT NOT TO DO, TOLD BY THE FOREST SERVICE.

The officials of district No. 1 of the forest service, have offered the aid and co-operation of the service in assisting the state to prevent forest fires, and the state board of land examiners has prepared posters which will give warning to all people who may frequent the woods. These posters are very explicit and give notice of the penalties attached to people who carelessly leave camp-fires burning. The punishment for malicious setting of fires is also specified.

According to the laws of Montana, any person whose carelessness causes a timber or grass fire is punishable by one year's imprisonment, a $2,000 fine, or both. Any person who maliciously sets fire to timber, woodland or grass is punishable by five years' imprisonment, a $5,000 fine, or both.

For the benefit of the uninitiated there is a series of "don'ts," which should be learned. "Don't" build larger camp-fires than necessary. Don't build fires in leaves, rotten wood, or against large or hollow logs. Don't build fires in windy weather unless a hole is dug, or the ground cleared so as to confine the fire. Don't build fires to clear land without first informing the nearest officer of the forest so he can assist you in controlling it. Be sure fire is extinguished before leaving it, even for a short absence.

Any sheriff, deputy sheriff, game warden, deputy game warden, or officer of the United States forest service can, and it is their duty to, arrest, without warrant, a violator of any state or federal forest law.

SHINE BAND ASSAILS MISSOULA'S EAR

ETHIOPIAN ORGANIZATION FROM KENTUCKY ASSASSINATES MANY TUNES.

Yesterday afternoon and evening nine little negroes, ranging from the pickaninny stage of development to two of whom the game law would soon expire if they were in Texas, exploited the needs of the Eckstein-Norton Institute of Cane Springs, Ky., by means of the Hare of brass and the rattle and boom of drum. The colored lads ranged in shade from ebony to caramel, if there is such a color, but were alike in one respect. This was the enthusiasm with which they attacked a tune and worried it to death. The two cornet players were handicapped by the limited range afforded by the size of their instruments and the tuba player was too busy holding up his horn to indulge in any gyrations, but the two smokers in the trombone section were worth going miles to see. At that, one of these attracted two-thirds of the attention bestowed on the entire organization. He was little and mighty dark and displayed the proverbial ability of the negro to "fake" a "second." He handled his instrument, at that, in better style than any other member of the band.

The band played vigorously whenever there was an opportunity and wandered all over the uptown district. A collection was taken at every stand and the donations were fairly liberal, although it must be admitted, the greatest generosity was displayed when a few selections were torn off in front of the colored club on West Main street. The adult who chaplined the band explained every time the procession came to a halt that the players were from the Eckstein-Norton institute and that the collections were to give them an education. Whatever truth there is in that matters little, for the band was unique enough to be worth the money, but one thing is certain, if the boys that annoyed Missoula's musical ear yesterday study one-half as hard as they play Booker T. Washington is to have at least nine successors.

ALIBI OF SUSPECTS CAUSES ARRESTS

SHERIFF GRAHAM SWEARS OUT WARRANTS FOR TWO ST. REGIS SALOON KEEPERS.

Just because a few suspects established an alibi by stating that they had spent a certain time in a St. Regis saloon and telling of what was going on in the resort, W. G. A. Campbell and Gust Swanson are in trouble. Several days ago seven men—most of them young fellows—were arrested on a charge of having rifled a Northern Pacific box car near St. Regis. Two or three of them were under age and the officials of the sheriff's office especially Mr. Graham, were interested when they all declared that they had spent the time, during which the car is supposed to have been robbed, in Campbell's saloon at St. Regis. All united in saying that they had been dancing with the women of a dance hall near the saloon and really a part of it and that all hands "promised to the bar," as in the days before the frontier was shoved off into the Pacific ocean. After satisfying himself that the men knew what they were talking about—for all told the same story—the sheriff set about to cause the arrest of Campbell and Swanson and yesterday's warrants and arrests followed. It is thought that the alibi established by the men taken for rifling the box car is good enough to clear them.

W. H. Lange, proprietor of the Savoy barber shop, has received an offer from James J. Corbett to travel with the celebrated pugilist's theatrical troupe this fall. Mr. Corbett's sporting partner, Mr. Lange and Mr. Corbett are old friends and it is said that they have handled the gloves together before. The offer to Mr. Lange came in the form of an inquiry from Corbett as to whether or not he was open to an engagement. Mr. Lange has made no reply as yet.
