Busy Corner, Phone 98

A pleasant surprise came yesterday afternoon to Postmaster Ross, in the shape of a telegram from the first assistant postmaster general, authorizing the immediate employment of two additional carriers. The message which contained the news was as brief as it was welcome; it read: "Employ two additional carriers seventh inst. Letter follows." Mr. Ross had no intimation that the increase in his official force was to be ordered, but he is sure he can use the new carriers to advantage. There has been a steady increase in the business of the postoffice here ever since the first of the year, and there is work enough for the additional men in other departments than the carrier, although the increase is much appreciated there. Mr. Ross will probably announce the names of the men chosen for the new position today.

Pat Conroy last night received a message from Seattle, which contained news thoroughly satisfactory to the Missoula friends of Sunshine Delantey. Ever since he was marooned with a Chinese cook in the floods last year, when he subsisted on rice and water for two weeks, Bill's imagination has given him great trouble; it has convinced him that he has a weak stomach and indigestion; so thoroughly was he convinced of this fact before he left here last week for the Seattle fair that he would eat nothing heavier than corned beef and cabbage, although he is fond of more substantial stuff. His friends had become alarmed about his mental condition and humored him, even to the extent of permitting him to beat them at cards, knowing that if he got excited he would be in bad shape. But he has overcome his imagination and is now convinced that his stomach is all right. The message that came last night was, in effect, that Beauty had taken a sea trip and when he became ill he was certain that his stomach was not strong enough to throw over the rail. Soon he got sicker and in a few minutes he was throwing half-way across the Pacific. He is convinced that his stomach is as strong as the next man's and when he gets back here there will be no more foolishness about a light diet. His Missoula friends are anxiously waiting for the opportunity to extend their personal congratulations, especially as it has been understood that Bill had at times labored under the hallucination that he was in love and that it was this that caused his weak stomach. But all the batty notions are banished now and Bill knows that his stomach is strong. He is sure to come back and try to run around Luke Gallagher the first time he has his engine out of the stall.

S. C. Clinger, superintendent of the Virginia City school, is returning to Missoula last night from his Seattle visit, accompanied by his wife and son. Mr. Clinger, it will be remembered, spent most of the summer in Missoula, leaving here a fortnight ago for a sight of the exposition before returning to his school work. Speaking last night of his visit, Mr. Clinger said to a Missoulian man: "We have had a pleasant time. Seattle is great and the fair, though not as large as some have been, is first rate. Some of the exhibits are fine; there are others which run a little too strongly to advertising private businesses, but these are not annoying when you learn how to keep away from them. There are many interesting features at the fair, notably the Alaskan exhibit and the forestry building. The states of Washington and Oregon have particularly good showings and the Hawaiian islands show an exhibit that is worth going to see. We were well treated and had a thoroughly enjoyable time."

"There is so much of this stuff," remarked the Associated Press operator during a lull in the sending of north-pole stories, "that I feel as if I had been fourteen times to the pole and back. I am glad Cook is not much of a talker; I don't know what he would do if he were loquacious." Then the circuit closed and the ticking began once more. But the operator was worried; anybody could see that. Presently, when Salt Lake had to "fill in" Butte on a section of the last story, the operator listened to the words as they were chopped up by the code; he had taken all the stuff the first time. He leaned back in his chair and then suddenly typed a message on the roll of copy paper in his machine. Business resumed soon and there was nothing more thought of the remark of the operator—he makes so many of them—until, an hour or so later, the telegraph editor, looking over the report, came across this, sandwiched between a dispatch from Terra del Fuego and another from Durant:

Willie—"Papa, what's the difference between the north pole and the south pole?"

Papa—"All the difference in the world, my boy. Now run and play."

HIGGINS AVENUE LINE WILL BE BUILT

TEMPORARY ROUTE WILL BE ALONG PATTEE STREET TO WEST FRONT.

A report which gained some publicity yesterday was to the effect that the electric railway management had decided not to build on Higgins avenue and that the principal business street of the city will be without car line accommodations. This report had just enough of truth in it to make its circulation an injustice to the Missoula Electric Railway company. It is true that the company has decided to build its first line from the eastern limit of the city to the Higgins avenue bridge without striking Higgins avenue until Front street is reached, but that the decision has been reached not to build on Higgins avenue is not true. The material for the Higgins avenue line has been ordered and the line will be built. The reason for the postponement of the construction of this line is best explained by the statement made last night to a Missoulian man by S. R. Inch, the local executive of the company.

"It is not true," said Mr. Inch, "that the company has decided not to build a line on Higgins avenue. I have heard this report several times during the afternoon, and I see it has been published in the Missoula Herald this evening. The statement in the evening paper was not authorized by any officer of the company, and it is so entirely misleading that I feel that it does the company a gross injustice."

"When Mr. Wethley was in town, yesterday, he authorized me to proceed with the construction of our line from the eastern limits of the city by way of Pine street to Madison, Madison to Cedar, Cedar to Pattee, Pattee to Front, Front to Higgins avenue and thence to the bridge. This route was my suggestion, and I believe you will agree with me that it is wise, under present conditions to build our first line this way."

In the present condition of Higgins avenue, it is impossible to build our line as it should be built. There is talk of paving the avenue. If it is paved, we must use one form of construction; if it is decided not to pave, another system must be used. In a paved street, we shall have to lay a slab of concrete under our line its entire length. This will not be done if the street is not paved.

"Until we know whether the street is to be paved or not, we shall not know how to construct our line, and it is certain that, in case it is decided to pave, the work cannot be done this fall. We are, therefore, compelled to make some temporary provision to get across the city."

"Before the avenue can be paved, the sewer must be reconstructed, the wire conduits and gas mains must be laid, the water pipes and the steam pipes from our heating plant must be made permanently secure. All of this will require time. In the meantime we have to get a line; if we were to build down the avenue now, it would be necessary to move our tracks while the sewer is being laid and there would be other difficulties so great as to render the operation of the road under such conditions practically impossible."

"On this account, Mr. Wethley agreed with me that the temporary route, which I have outlined, would be the best one to build at first. It is on this account only. The statement made tonight places us in the attitude of

THRILLERS TO THRILL TOMORROW

ANXIOUSLY AERONAUT AWAITS ANNOUNCEMENT OF ASCENSION'S ARRIVAL.

The balloon is here, the parachute has been well coiled and the aeronaut, aviator, sky pilot or parachute jumper—he calls himself "Professor" B. C. McClellan—is eagerly awaiting the opportunity that Monday brings to show an open-mouthed, bent-necked people that he doesn't care what happens to him. McClellan, who is to make two ascensions on Labor day, has a record of many flights and many successful drops from dizzy heights and his part of the program is sure to be done in a workmanlike manner, as he fits the day set aside for the enjoyment of those who make and do things with their hands. The first ascension comes at 11:30 Monday morning, while the second is scheduled in the evening. McClellan has signed an agreement not to rise so high that he cannot come down before time for his second elevation and both thrillers are bound to thrill at the proper moment.

There are lots of features of Labor day and the public should be pretty well aware of what all of them are by this time, but it isn't everybody that knows that there are to be all sorts of automobiles in the parade. In this section will be found the women of labordom, the salesladies and waitresses of Missoula. Many automobiles have already been promised and the committee is still on the lookout for more of the chug-chug wagons. All automobiles will report at the corner of Higgins avenue and Front street at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

TWO DAMAGE SUITS ARE FILED

JOHN SWAN SUES WINSTON BROS. AND RANCHERS WANT RAILROADS TO PAY.

John Swan, a minor, filed suit in the district court yesterday by his guardian ad litem, W. L. Kelley, against Winston Bros. company, asking $2,000 for injuries received while working near Henderson, Mon., on June 23, 1909. His complaint sets out that Swan was employed as an axeman, and that he was instructed to climb a tree for the purpose of fastening a rope to its top, so that the direction of its fall might be influenced. The lad fell 20 feet and was badly injured, according to the papers filed yesterday.

Twenty-four thousand, six hundred and forty dollars is the sum which Felix and Victor Cyr ask from the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Northern Pacific railway companies for damages to their ranch. Action for damages was instituted yesterday, the two ranchers alleging that the railroads had deflected the current of the Missoula river in such a manner as to cause it to overflow a considerable portion of their farm, rendering the land worthless and spoiling half-grown crops. The land specified is in section 11, township 11 north, range 16 west.

ARRESTED FOR THEFT OF COAT.

Officer Eklor last night arrested a man who gave his name as Pat O'Connor, who is alleged to have stolen a coat from a rancher, A. Denton, who lives on the edge of town. The man was seen to take the coat and was followed to the city by the owner, who gave his description to the police, with the result that the man was picked up at the Waldorf saloon. He was taken to the county jail and identified by Denton.

SOLDIERS' REMAINS SHIPPED.

The body of Edward Henry, the soldier of Fort Missoula who died at the post several days ago, was yesterday shipped to his former home in Atlanta, Ga.
